Creative Destruction Tyler Cowen, 2009-01-10 A

Frenchman rents a Hollywood movie A Thai schoolgirl mimics Madonna Saddam Hussein chooses Frank Sinatra's My Way as the theme song for his fifty-fourth birthday It is a commonplace that globalization is subverting local culture But is it helping as much as it hurts In this strikingly original treatment of a fiercely debated issue Tyler Cowen makes a bold new case for a more sympathetic understanding of cross-cultural trade Creative Destruction brings not stale suppositions but an economist's eye to bear on an age-old question Are market exchange and aesthetic quality friends or foes On the whole argues Cowen in clear and vigorous prose they are friends Cultural destruction breeds not artistic demise but diversity Through an array of colorful examples from the areas where globalization's critics have been most vocal Cowen asks what happens when cultures collide through trade whether technology destroys native arts why and whether Hollywood movies rule the world whether globalized culture is dumbing down societies everywhere and if national cultures matter at all Scrutinizing such manifestations of indigenous culture as the steel band ensembles of Trinidad Indian handweaving and music from Zaire Cowen finds that they are more vibrant than ever thanks largely to cross-cultural trade For all the pressures that market forces exert on individual cultures diversity typically increases within society even when cultures become more like each other Trade enhances the range of individual choice yielding forms of expression within cultures that flower as never before While some see cultural decline as a half-empty glass Cowen sees it as a glass half full with the stirrings of cultural brilliance Not all readers will agree but all will want a say in the debate this exceptional book will stir

Cartographies of Travel and Navigation

James R. Akerman, 2006-10-01 Finding one's way with a map is a relatively recent phenomenon In premodern times maps were used if at all mainly for planning journeys in advance not for guiding travelers on the road With the exception of navigational sea charts the use of maps by travelers only became common in the modern era indeed in the last two hundred years maps have become the most ubiquitous and familiar genre of modern cartography Examining the historical relationship between travelers navigation and maps Cartographies of Travel and Navigation considers the cartographic response to the new modalities of modern travel brought about by technological and institutional developments in the twentieth century Highlighting the ways in which the travelers operators and planners of modern transportation systems value maps as both navigation tools and as representatives of a radical new mobility this collection brings the cartography of travel by road sea rail and air to the forefront placing maps at the center of the history of travel and movement Richly and colorfully illustrated Cartographies of Travel and Navigation ably fills the void in historical literature on transportation mapping Atlas of World War Two David Jordan, Andrew Wiest, 2004 Features all the major battles and campaigns of World War II from the invasion of Poland in 1939 to the defeat of Japan in 1945 Specially commissioned maps are accompanied by action photographs and detailed annotation Maps are Territories David Turnbull, 1989-01 This book forms part of the HUS203 HUS204 Nature and human nature course offered by the School of Humanities in Deakin University s Open Campus Program Global Publics Valeska Huber, Jürgen Osterhammel, 2020-04 This volume combines a present day and historical concern on the topic of global publics between the communication revolution of the 1870s and the digital age Building on earlier theories of public spheres Valeska Huber and Jürgen Osterhammel expand the notion of global publics not only geographically but also by charting new thematic territory describing global publics as courts of global opinion as market places or as arenas for competition As the first historical volume ever to combine different facets of global publics ranging from infrastructures the press film and theatre to human rights politics it brings together established and emerging authors in the field of history and from related disciplines such as geography sociology and literature who explore how global publics were configured imagined and fragmented In this way Global Publics Their Power and Their Limits not only provides a new conceptual framework and important case studies but also shows how histories of global communication might be studied in the future Cartography Giles Darkes, Mary Spence, 2017 A practical guide to making better maps covering the fundamentals of what actually works in map design Covers the basics from data gathering map datums and co ordinate systems through to how maps are made and map design explaining the difference between designing maps for print and maps for the web all explained in simple terms for the non expert to understand and apply to their own work Fully updated with major new sections on thematic mapping and the world view co ordinate systems map projections and geographical information systems GIS
