Decisions United States. Federal Trade Commission,1994 Now the Chips Are Down Alison Gazzard,2024-05-21 The story of a pioneering microcomputer its beginnings as part of a national Computer Literacy Project its innovative hardware and its creative uses In 1982 the British Broadcasting Corporation launched its Computer Literacy Project intended to introduce interested adults to the world of computers and computing The BBC accompanied this initiative with television programs courses books and software an early experiment in multi platform education The BBC along with Acorn Computers also introduced the BBC Microcomputer which would be at the forefront of the campaign The BBC Micro was designed to meet the needs of users in homes and schools to demystify computing and to counter the general pessimism among the media in Britain about technology In this book Alison Gazzard looks at the BBC Micro examining the early capabilities of multi platform content generation and consumption and the multiple literacies this approach enabled not only in programming and software creation but also in accessing information across a range of media and in do it yourself computing She links many of these early developments to current new media practices Gazzard looks at games developed for the BBC Micro including Granny s Garden an educational game for primary schools and Elite the seminal space trading game She considers the shift in focus from hardware to peripherals describing the Teletext Adapter as an early model for software distribution and the Domesday Project which combined texts video and still photographs as a hypermedia like experience Gazzard s account shows the BBC Micro not only as a vehicle for various literacies but also as a user oriented machine that pushed the boundaries of what could be achieved in order to produce something completely new Machines as the Measure of Men Michael Adas,1989 This new edition of what has become a standard account of Western expansion and technological dominance includes a new preface by the author that discusses how subsequent developments in gender and race studies as well as global technology and politics enter into conversation with his original arguments The Death of Expertise Tom Nichols,2017-02-01 Technology and increasing levels of education have exposed people to more information than ever before These societal gains however have also helped fuel a surge in narcissistic and misguided intellectual egalitarianism that has crippled informed debates on any number of issues Today everyone knows everything with only a quick trip through WebMD or Wikipedia average citizens believe themselves to be on an equal intellectual footing with doctors and diplomats All voices even the most ridiculous demand to be taken with equal seriousness and any claim to the contrary is dismissed as undemocratic elitism Tom Nichols The Death of Expertise shows how this rejection of experts has occurred the openness of the internet the emergence of a customer satisfaction model in higher education and the transformation of the news industry into a 24 hour entertainment machine among other reasons Paradoxically the increasingly democratic dissemination of information rather than producing an educated public has instead created an army of ill informed and angry citizens who denounce intellectual achievement When ordinary citizens believe that no one knows more than anyone else democratic institutions themselves are in danger of falling either to populism or to technocracy or in the worst case a combination of both An update to the 2017 breakout hit the paperback edition of The Death of Expertise provides a new foreword to cover the alarming exacerbation of these trends in the aftermath of Donald Trump's election Judging from events on the ground since it first published The Death of Expertise issues a warning about the stability and survival of modern democracy in the Information Age that is even more important today
