Reef Fish Spawning Aggregations: Biology, Research and Management Yvonne Sadovy de Mitcheson,Patrick L. Colin,2011-11-06 Reef fish spawning aggregations ranging from small groups to many tens of thousands of individuals are spectacular but poorly known natural phenomena whereby fish assemble at specific times and locations to spawn For some species these large groups may be the only form of reproduction the high fish numbers briefly giving a false impression of stability and abundance an illusion of plenty They are often a focus for intensive seasonal fishing because of their predictability and because many important commercial fishes form them Highly vulnerable to overexploitation many aggregations and their associated fisheries have disappeared or are in decline Few are effectively managed or incorporated into protected areas Aggregations are not well understood by fishery scientists managers and conservationists and their significance little appreciated by fishers or the wider public To ensure their persistence to replenish important fisheries in coral ecosystems maintain their ecosystem function and continue to delight divers a significant change in perspective is needed to foster protection and management This book provides comprehensive and practical coverage of the biology study and management of reef fish aggregations exploring their how when where and why It explores ways to better protect study manage and conserve them while identifying key data gaps and questions The text is extensively illustrated with many unique never before published photographs and graphics Case studies on over 20 interesting and important fishes are included outlining their biology and fisheries and highlighting major concerns and challenges

Monitoring functional groups of herbivorous reef fishes as indicators of coral reef resilience : a practical guide for coral reef managers in the Asia Pacific region Alison L. Green,David R. Bellwood,2009 This document provides practical advice to field practitioners based on an example from the Asia Pacific Region Key functional groups of herbivores are identified species are assigned to each functional group and methods are provided for monitoring their abundance biomass and size structure This document represents the first attempt to develop a monitoring program that is specifically designed to monitor key functional groups of herbivorous reef fishes as indicators of coral reef resilience Even though it is based on the best available information it is important to remember that the science underpinning these methods is still new and developing Further research is now required to address knowledge gaps and refine monitoring methods
