Policies of Chaos Lynn T. White III, 2014-07-14 The tumult of the Cultural Revolution after 1966 is often blamed on a few leaders in Beijing or on long term egalitarian ideals or on communist or Chinese political cultures Lynn White shows however that the chaos resulted mainly from reactions by masses of individuals and small groups to three specific policies of administrative manipulation labeling groups designating bosses and legitimating violence in political campaigns These habits of local organization were common after 1949 and gave the state success in short term revolutionary aims despite scarce resources and staff but they also drove millions to attack each other later First measures accumulated before 1966 to give people bad or good names such as rightist or worker these set a family s access to employment education residence and rations so they gave interests to potential conflict groups Second policies for bossism went far beyond Confucian patronage patterns making work units tightly dependent on Party monitors so rational individuals either pandered to local bosses or when they could deposed them Third the institutionalized violence of political campaigns both mobilized activists and scared others into compliance These organizational measures were often effective in the short run before 1966 but accumulated social costs that China paid later The book ends with comparisons to past cases of mass urban ostracism in other countries and it suggests how such tragedies may be forecast or prevented in the future Originally published in 1989 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905
