Gene Quantification Francois Ferre,2012-12-06 Geneticists and molecular biologists have been interested in quantifying genes and their products for many years and for various reasons Bishop 1974 Early molecular methods were based on molecular hybridization and were devised shortly after Marmur and Doty 1961 first showed that denaturation of the double helix could be reversed that the process of molecular reassociation was exquisitely sequence dependent Gillespie and Spiegelman 1965 developed a way of using the method to titrate the number of copies of a probe within a target sequence in which the target sequence was fixed to a membrane support prior to hybridization with the probe typically a RNA Thus this was a precursor to many of the methods still in use and indeed under development today Early examples of the application of these methods included the measurement of the copy numbers in gene families such as the ribosomal genes and the immunoglobulin family Amplification of genes in tumors and in response to drug treatment was discovered by this method In the same period methods were invented for estimating gene numbers based on the kinetics of the reassociation process the so called Cot analysis This method which exploits the dependence of the rate of reassociation on the concentration of the two strands revealed the presence of repeated sequences in the DNA of higher eukaryotes Britten and Kohne 1968 An adaptation to RNA Rot analysis Melli and Bishop 1969 was used to measure the abundance of RNAs in a mixed population
