

EPM5760 Sample Case Study Exercises

Note:

These are just a couple of sample exercises. In the actual case study session of week 7, you will be given a case study scenario with around 5 exercises and 2 hours to answer (TBC).

Case Study Scenario:

Assume you are a firm of construction managers who have been appointed on a consulting basis to advise the developer for the proposed "Office Development Complex" to be developed in Dockland area of Melbourne. A conceptual design brief has already been prepared by other consultants, but the detailed design has not yet commenced, nor has any decision been made on the exact method of project delivery.

THE SITE

The proposed development is to be constructed at Dockland area of Melbourne. The site is bounded by roads and buildings on either side. The site area is regular and approx.: 3200 m².

Total development cost is expected to be around $180 million including finance charges and cost escalation. Assume that the total development period is 36 months (includes design, permits and construction).

PROJECT DESCRIPTION

The project consists of:

- 40 storey Tower is to be an office building
- Four basement car parks
- Ground floor is catered for retail area
- The basement floors within the complex structure can be utilised for the numerous plant rooms and storage required for the complex.
- The street level floor will be fully landscaped and will have limited area of retail and entertainment zones.
