Parcel Of Rogues How Free Trade Is Failing Canada:

Parcel of Rogues Maude Barlow,1990 Parcel of Rogues Maude Barlow,1991 Decision at Midnight Michael Hart,2011-11-01 On 2 January 1988 Canada and the United States signed what was then the most comprehensive free trade agreement the world had ever seen This book is the story of those FTA negotiations the preparations for and conduct of the negotiations as well as the ideas and issues behind them From their unique perspective as participants Michael Hart Bill Dymond and Colin Robertson capture the drama and the personalities involved in the long struggle to make a free trade deal They describe the extensive consultations the turf fighting among insiders the innate caution of both politicians and bureaucrats and the need to cultivate powerful constituencies in order to overcome the inertia of conventional wisdom

Proposed Negotiation of a Free Trade Agreement with Mexico United States. Congress. House. Committee on Ways and Means. Subcommittee on Trade,1991 Defying Conventional Wisdom Jeffrey McKelvey Ayres,1998-01-01 The first major study on the origins strategies and activities of movements and coalitions in opposition to free trade that arose in Canada and spread across North America it captures an important developmental period in Canadian political life NAFTA — Past, Present and Future P. Coffey,J. Colin Dodds,Enrique Lazcano,Robert Riley,2012-12-06 NAFTA has been described by one expert as being a partial customs union It is in any case a special kind of free trade area because it consists of two highly developed economies and one large third world economy In this book the contributors examine the specific interests of the three member countries Canada Mexico and the United States in the creation of NAFTA They also assess the influence of this trade area on their economics Looking to the future doubts are expressed about the feasibility of using NAFTA a hope expressed by the USA as a stepping stone in the creation of a Free Trade Area of the Americas Instead the contributors see the consolidation of MERCOSUR in Latin America and the creation of a new Trans Atlantic Market as proposed by Sir Leon Brittan as more likely developments In the Space of Theory Matthew Sparke,2005 How is the meaning of the hyphen in nation state changing in the context of globalization and proliferating political struggles How can we investigate the transformation of the nation state by marking the normally unmarked hyphen in geo graphy Debunking deterritorialization both as a discourse and as an antiessentialist abstraction Matthew Sparke offers answers to these questions by examining the contemporary geographies of the United States and Canada In the Space of Theory details the territorial implications of the Iraq war NAFTA welfare reform constitutional reform cross border regional development and the legal battles of First Nations In using antiessentialist arguments to elucidate the complexity of these developments Sparke seeks to ground and critique postfoundational theory itself He shows how the postfoundational arguments of Homi Bhabha Arjun Appadurai Timothy Mitchell Ernesto Laclau Chantal Mouffe Michael Hardt and Antonio Negri obscure politically important processes of reterritorialization at the same time they deterritorialize diverse theoretical assumptions about the nation state Engaged with theory and grounded in close study of cultural political and economic change In the Space of Theory explores the geographies of struggle that at once underlie and undermine the hyphen in contemporary nation states Matthew Sparke is associate professor of geography and international studies at the University of Washington

Taking Trade to the Streets Susan Ariel Aaronson, 2011-02-16 In the wake of civil protest in Seattle during the 1999 World Trade Organization meeting many issues raised by globalization and increasingly free trade have been in the forefront of the news But these issues are not necessarily new Taking Trade to the Streets describes how so many individuals and nongovernmental organizations came over time to see trade agreements as threatening national systems of social and environmental regulations Using the United States as a case study Susan Ariel Aaronson examines the history of trade agreement critics focusing particular attention on NAFTA the North American Free Trade Agreement between Canada Mexico and the United States and the Tokyo and Uruguay Rounds of trade liberalization under the GATT She also considers the question of whether such trade agreement critics are truly protectionist The book explores how trade agreement critics built a fluid global movement to redefine the terms of trade agreements the international system of rules governing trade and to redefine how citizens talk about trade The terms of trade is a relationship between the prices of exports and of imports That movement which has been growing since the 1980s transcends borders as well as longstanding views about the role of government in the economy While many trade agreement critics on the left say they want government policies to make markets more equitable they find themselves allied with activists on the right who want to reduce the role of government in the economy Aaronson highlights three hot button social issues food safety the environment and labor standards to illustrate how conflicts arise between trade and other types of regulation And finally she calls for a careful evaluation of the terms of trade from which an honest debate over regulating the global economy might emerge Ultimately this book links the history of trade policy to the history of social regulation It is a social political and economic history that will be of interest to policymakers and students of history economics political science government trade sociology and international affairs Susan Ariel Aaronson is Senior Fellow at the National Policy Institute and occasional commentator on National Public Radio's Morning Edition

Contingent Work, Disrupted Lives Belinda Leach, Anthony Winson, 2002-11-23 Contingent Work Disrupted Lives examines the repercussions of economic globalization on several manufacturing dependent rural communities in Canada Foregrounding a distinct interest in the grassroots effects of such contemporary corporate strategies as plant closures and downsizing authors Anthony Winson and

Belinda Leach consider the impact of this restructuring on the residents of various communities The authors argue that the new rural economy involves a fundamental shift in the stability and security of people s lives and ultimately it causes wrenching change and an arduous struggle as rural dwellers struggle to rebuild their lives in the new economic terrain Beginning with broader theoretical and empirical literature on global changes in the economy and the effects of these changes on labour the text then focuses exploration on manufacturing in Ontario with an analysis of five community case studies Winson and Leach give considerable attention to the testimony of numerous residents they report on in depth interviews with key respondents and blue collar workers in five separate communities ranging from diverse manufacturing towns to single industry settlements The result is an intimate contextual knowledge of the workers lives and their attempts to adapt to the tumultuous economic terrain of 1990s rural Canada Winner of the John Porter Prize for 2003 awarded by the Canadian Sociology and Anthropology Association

Becoming an Ally Anne Bishop, 2023-04-14 Already I have found myself quoting Anne Bishop s wisdom her simple advice is compelling Right now in

Australia she has the power to lead us as we struggle with questions of guilt responsibility and patterns of oppression which are larger than ourselves Rev Tim Costello President Baptist Union of Australia Becoming an Ally is must reading for anyone concerned with understanding and challenging the dynamics forms and sources of oppression whether it is their own oppression that of others or both Bob Mullaly is Head of Social Work at Victoria University Melbourne Where does oppression come from Has it always been with us just human nature What can we do to change it What does individual healing have to do with the struggles for social justice What does social justice have to do with individual healing Why do members of the same oppressed group fight each other sometimes more viciously than their oppressor Why do some who experience oppression develop a life long commitment to fighting oppression while others turn around and oppress others Anne Bishop draws on her many years experience in community work to write this feisty and bestselling guide for activists community workers and welfare workers International Migration, Refugee Flows and Human Rights in North America Alan Burtham Simmons, 1996 Contributors explore the relationship between sexual abuse and eating disorders touching on issues such as false memory syndrome reenactment of trauma by self abuse syndromes and the influence of early trauma on eating behavior Other topics include sexual violence as a predictor of food related syndromes trauma based therapy dissociation feminist approaches to treatment and the sexual self of an eating disordered person Includes a first person narrative Annotation copyright by Book News Inc Portland OR The End Of Globalization Alan Rugman, 2012-09-30 Professor Alan Rugman is one of the world's leading academics in the field of international business and strategy In The End of Globalization he argues that we are currently witnessing the end of globalization and draws on new research and analysis to argue that globalization never really happened anyway Like Bartlett and Ghoshal's Managing Across Borders this book is aimed at the market of practitioners and policy makers not academics and theoreticians showing them what the current state of the global economy means for them Global business is dominated by the 500 largest multinational enterprises MNEs out of a total of 30 000 MNEs altogether The 500 MNEs that are the engines of international business think regional and act local Using analysis drawn from world leading companies Professor Rugman looks in detail at the managerial implications of the end of globalization including in depth discussion of corporate strategies organizational structures and analytical methods Selling the Environment Short Canadian Environmental Law Association, 1991 Ruling the World Lloyd Gruber, 2000-03-20 The last few decades have witnessed an extraordinary transfer of policy making prerogatives from individual nation states to supranational institutions If you think this is cause for celebration you are not alone Within the academic community and not only among students of international cooperation the notion that political institutions are mutually beneficial that they would never come into existence much less grow in size and assertiveness were they not Pareto improving is today's conventional wisdom But is it true In this richly detailed and strikingly original study Lloyd Gruber suggests that this emphasis on cooperation's positive sum consequences may be leading scholars of international relations down the wrong theoretical path The fact that membership in a cooperative arrangement is voluntary Gruber argues does not mean that it works to everyone's advantage To the contrary some cooperators may incur substantial losses relative to the original non cooperative status quo So what then keeps these participants from withdrawing Gruber's answer in a word is power specifically the go it alone power exercised by the regime's beneficiaries many of whom would continue to benefit even if their partners the losers were to opt out To lend support to this thesis Gruber takes a fresh look at the political origins and structures of European Monetary Unification and NAFTA But the theoretical arguments elaborated in Ruling the World extend well beyond money and trade touching upon issues of long standing interest to students of security cooperation environmental politics nation building even political philosophy Bold and compelling this book will appeal to anyone interested in understanding how power politics really operates and why for better or worse it is fueling much of the supranational activity we see today

Painful Choices David A. Welch, 2011-06-27 Under what conditions should we expect states to do things radically differently all of a sudden In this book David Welch seeks to answer this question constructing a theory of foreign policy change inspired by organization theory cognitive and motivational psychology and prospect theory He then test drives the theory in a series of comparative case studies in the security and trade domains Argentina's decision to go to war over the Falklands Malvinas vs Japan's endless patience with diplomacy in its conflict with Russia over the Northern Territories America's decision to commit large scale military force to Vietnam vs its ultimate decision to withdraw and Canada's two abortive flirtations with free trade with the United States in 1911 and 1948 vs its embrace of free trade in the late 1980s Painful Choices has three main objectives to determine whether the general theory project in the field of international relations can be redeemed given disappointment with previous attempts to reflect on what this reveals about the possibilities and limits of general theory and to inform policy Welch argues that earlier efforts at general theory erred by aiming to explain state behavior which is an intractable problem Instead since inertia is the default expectation in international politics all we need do is to explain changes in behavior Painful Choices shows that this is a tractable problem with clear implications for intelligence analysts and negotiators

NAFTA and Sovereignty Joyce Hoebing, Sidney Weintraub, M. Delal Baer, 1996 The process of economic integration among the United States Canada and Mexico involves more political co operation than has been the case historically The distinction between domestic and international policy is becoming increasingly blurred inviting a redefinition of sovereignty both conceptually and in practice The ensuing implications encompass domestic political accommodation as well as trilateral issues such as commercial policy
