Parent Education And Public Policy:

Parenting Matters National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Committee on Supporting the Parents of Young Children, 2016-11-21

Decades of research have demonstrated that the parent child dyad and the environment of the family which includes all primary caregivers are at the foundation of children's well being and healthy development. From birth children are learning and rely on parents and the other caregivers in their lives to protect and care for them. The impact of parents may never be greater than during the earliest years of life when a child's brain is rapidly developing and when nearly all of her or his experiences are created and shaped by parents and the family environment. Parents help children build and refine their knowledge and skills charting a trajectory for their health and well being during childhood and beyond. The experience of parenting also impacts parents themselves. For instance parenting can enrich and give focus to parents' lives, generate stress or calm and create any number of emotions including feelings of happiness, sadness, fulfillment and anger. Parenting of young children today takes place in the context of significant ongoing developments. These include a rapidly growing body of science on early childhood, increases in funding for programs and services for families, changing demographics of the U.S. population and greater diversity of family structure. Additionally parenting is increasingly being shaped by technology and increased access to information about parenting. Parenting Matters identifies parenting knowledge, attitudes and practices associated with positive developmental outcomes in children ages 0-8, universal preventive and targeted strategies used in a variety of settings that have been effective with parents of young children and that support the identified knowledge, attitudes and practices, and barriers to and facilitators for parents' use of practices that lead to healthy child outcomes as well as their participation in effective programs and services. This report makes recommendations directed at an array of stakeholders for promoting the wide scale adoption of effective programs and services for parents and on areas that warrant further research to inform policy and practice. It is meant to serve as a roadmap for the future of parenting policy research and practice in the United States.

Parent Education and Public Policy Ron Haskins, Diane Adams, National Institute of Education (U.S.), 1983. This volume examines parent programs in the context of policy to support families, the disjunction between advocates of parent programs and federal policymakers, federal legislation for parent programs and programs for parents of preschool children, school age children and children with special needs.

Parent Education Deborah Campbell, Glen Palm, 2019-04-11. Parent Education: Working with Groups and Individuals revises Group Parent Education first published in 2004 by introducing new concepts and strategies and expanding the approach for parent groups to include working individually with parents. It builds on this foundation with new resources and service delivery models. It introduces a continuum of parent education services in a conceptual framework from prevention to intervention and focuses on relationship building between the parent educator and parents It also examines common issues and challenges in the parent educator role Designed to serve as a core textbook for parent and family life education classes Parent Education incorporates new activities related to the content along with video examples and discussion prompts It is ideal for upper division and graduate level courses in parent education social work nursing mental health and early childhood education Group

Parent Education Deborah Campbell, Glen Palm, 2004 For those working in group parent education I am sure it will be a valuable resource and make its way onto the essential reading list of many courses Journal In Service Education This book is devoted to training parent educators and family counsellors and represents a unique and important contribution to the growing field of parent education and support programmes The authors build upon the rich traditions of group parent education while incorporating contemporary theory and practice Parents and Schools William W. Cutler, 2000-06-15

Who holds ultimate authority for the education of America's children teachers or parents Although the relationship between home and school has changed dramatically over the decades William Cutler's fascinating history argues that it has always been a political one and his book uncovers for the first time how and why the balance of power has shifted over time Starting with parental dominance in the mid nineteenth century Cutler chronicles how schools growing bureaucratization and professionalization allowed educators to gain increasing control over the schooling and lives of the children they taught Central to his story is the role of parent teacher associations which helped transform an adversarial relationship into a collaborative one Yet parents have also been controlled by educators through PTAs leading to the perception that they are company unions Cutler shows how in the 1920s and 1930s schools expanded their responsibility for children's well being outside the classroom These efforts sowed the seeds for later conflict as schools came to be held accountable for solving society's problems Finally he brings the reader into recent decades in which a breakdown of trust racial tension and parents' rights have taken the story full circle with parents and schools once again at odds Cutler's book is an invaluable guide to understanding how parent teacher cooperation which is essential for our children's educational success might be achieved

Effective Family Strengthening Interventions Karol Linda Kumpfer, 1998 Starting Strong II Early Childhood Education and Care OECD, 2006-09-14 This review of early childhood education and care ECEC in twenty OECD countries describes the social economic conceptual and research factors that influence early childhood policy Critical Perspectives on Education Policy and Schools, Families, and Communities Sue Winton, Gillian Parekh, 2020-03-01 Critical Perspectives on Education Policy and Schools Families and Communities offers scholars students and practitioners important new knowledge about how current policies impact families schools and community partnerships The book's authors share a critical orientation towards policy and policy research and invite readers to think differently about what policy is who policymakers are and what policy can achieve Their chapters discuss findings from research grounded in diverse theories including institutional ethnography critical disability theory and critical race theory The authors encourage scholars of family school and community partnerships to ask who benefits from policies and who loses and how proposed reforms maintain or disrupt existing relations of power The chapters present original research on a broad range of policies at the local state provincial and national levels in Canada and the USA Some authors look closely at the enactment of specific district policies including a school district s language translation policy and a policy to create local advisory bodies as part of decentralization efforts Other chapters reveal the often unacknowledged yet necessary work parents do to meet their children s needs and enable schools to operate A few chapters focus on challenges and paradoxes of including families and community members in policymaking processes including a case where parents demonstrated a preference for a policy that research demonstrates can be detrimental to their children s future education opportunities Another set of chapters emphasizes the centrality of policy texts and how language influences the educational experiences and engagement of students and their families Each chapter concludes with a discussion of implications of the research for educators families and other community partners

Program Performance Standards United States. Office of Child Development,1975 Public Policy Digest of the National Planning Association ,1944 Parenting to a Degree Laura T. Hamilton,2016-04-29 Helicopter parents the kind that continue to hover even in college are one of the most ridiculed figures of twenty first century parenting criticized for creating entitled young adults who boomerang back home But do involved parents really damage their children and burden universities In this book sociologist Laura T Hamilton illuminates the lives of young women and their families to ask just what role parents play during the crucial college years Hamilton vividly captures the parenting approaches of mothers and fathers from all walks of life from a CFO for a Fortune 500 company to a waitress at a roadside diner As she shows parents are guided by different visions of the ideal college experience built around classed notions of women s work family plans and the ideal age to grow up Some are intensively involved and hold adulthood at bay to cultivate specific traits professional helicopters for instance help develop the skills and credentials that will advance their daughters careers while pink helicopters emphasize appearance charm and social ties in the hopes that women will secure a wealthy mate In sharp contrast bystander parents whose influence is often limited by economic concerns are relegated to the sidelines of their daughter s lives Finally paramedic parents who can come from a wide range of class backgrounds sit in the middle intervening in emergencies but otherwise valuing self sufficiency above all Analyzing the effects of each of these approaches with clarity and depth Hamilton ultimately argues that successfully navigating many colleges and universities without involved parents is nearly impossible and that schools themselves are increasingly dependent on active parents for a wide array of tasks with intended and unintended consequences Altogether Parenting to a Degree offers an incisive look into the new and sometimes problematic relationship between students parents and universities

Black Education Willy DeMarcell Smith, Eva Wells Chunn, This highly focused collection of papers commissioned by the National Urban League offers a candid and courageous portrait of black education in transition This is a period as the editors note in their opening remarks that is characterized by a huge shift from federal responsibility for minority education to authority and autonomy being lodged at the local government level Further many institutions that once worked well no longer do so Many ambitious social programs and policies that originally promised much have been abandoned have failed or just faded away Pivotal to these times and changes is the question of the extent to which the American educational system has been or still is capable of being responsive to incorporating and even instigating equity and excellence for black Americans This volume asks the hard questions is the educational system geared up for the maintenance of anything other than mainstream values can it adapt to minority youth requirements when why and how do educational policies of majorities and minorities clash How are priorities to be established on the basis of wealth or need The legal statutes and administrative enforcement of equal educational opportunities are explored in depth and with a deep compassion for all parties involved
