

What are the 4 Types of Parenting Styles?

Find out which parenting style works best for kids

High Expectations

Authoritative

- Provides reasons for equitable rules and allows children to make their own decisions within those boundaries
- Lovingly supports children to achieve high expectations and overcome challenges
- Creates a mutually respectful relationship where children learn to judge situations for themselves and are set up for successful decision-making as they grow older

Authoritarian

- Holds children to rigid rules without explanation or flexibility
- Coerces children's behavior by withholding approval, or using sarcasm and ridicule
- Often creates a strained relationship where children may rebel, resent parents, struggle making decisions for themselves, or have lower self-esteem

High Love

Low Love

Permissive

- Have lax and inconsistent expectations and rules
- Overindulge children in an effort to be liked by or considered a friend to them
- Prone to fostering impulsive, aggressive children who have low expectations for themselves

Neglectful

- Absent or willfully uninvolved – provides little to no love, guidance, or nurture
- Indifferent to their child's physical or emotional needs, friends, or activities
- Leaves children with unmet needs, resulting in lower happiness levels and behavior problems

Low Expectations

Parenting What We Need To Know To Make A Difference:

Parenting Matters National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Committee on Supporting the Parents of Young Children, 2016-11-21

Decades of research have demonstrated that the parent child dyad and the environment of the family which includes all primary caregivers are at the foundation of children's well being and healthy development. From birth children are learning and rely on parents and the other caregivers in their lives to protect and care for them. The impact of parents may never be greater than during the earliest years of life when a child's brain is rapidly developing and when nearly all of her or his experiences are created and shaped by parents and the family environment. Parents help children build and refine their knowledge and skills charting a trajectory for their health and well being during childhood and beyond. The experience of parenting also impacts parents themselves. For instance, parenting can enrich and give focus to parents' lives, generate stress or calm and create any number of emotions including feelings of happiness, sadness, fulfillment and anger. Parenting of young children today takes place in the context of significant ongoing developments. These include a rapidly growing body of science on early childhood, increases in funding for programs and services for families, changing demographics of the U.S. population and greater diversity of family structure. Additionally, parenting is increasingly being shaped by technology and increased access to information about parenting. Parenting Matters identifies parenting knowledge, attitudes and practices associated with positive developmental outcomes in children ages 0-8, universal preventive and targeted strategies used in a variety of settings that have been effective with parents of young children and that support the identified knowledge, attitudes and practices, and barriers to and facilitators for parents' use of practices that lead to healthy child outcomes as well as their participation in effective programs and services. This report makes recommendations directed at an array of stakeholders for promoting the wide scale adoption of effective programs and services for parents and on areas that warrant further research to inform policy and practice. It is meant to serve as a roadmap for the future of parenting policy research and practice in the United States.

Parenting Paul David Tripp, 2016-09-14 Winner of the ECPA Book of the Year Award for Christian Living. What is your calling as a parent? In the midst of folding laundry, coordinating carpool schedules and breaking up fights, many parents get lost. Feeling pressure to do everything right and raise up good children, it's easy to lose sight of our ultimate purpose as parents in the quest for practical tips and guaranteed formulas. In this life-giving book, Paul Tripp offers parents much more than a to-do list. Instead, he presents us with a big picture view of God's plan for us as parents. Outlining fourteen foundational principles centered on the gospel, he shows that we need more than the latest parenting strategy or list of techniques. Rather, we need the rescuing grace of God, grace that has the power to shape how we view everything we do as parents. Freed from the burden of trying to manufacture life change in our children's hearts, we can embrace a grand perspective of parenting overflowing with vision, purpose and joy.
