Parents And The Achieving Child:

Parenting Matters National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Committee on Supporting the Parents of Young Children, 2016-11-21

Decades of research have demonstrated that the parent child dyad and the environment of the family which includes all primary caregivers are at the foundation of children's well being and healthy development. From birth children are learning and rely on parents and the other caregivers in their lives to protect and care for them. The impact of parents may never be greater than during the earliest years of life when a child's brain is rapidly developing and when nearly all of her or his experiences are created and shaped by parents and the family environment. Parents help children build and refine their knowledge and skills charting a trajectory for their health and well being during childhood and beyond. The experience of parenting also impacts parents themselves. For instance parenting can enrich and give focus to parents' lives, generate stress or calm and create any number of emotions including feelings of happiness, sadness, fulfillment and anger. Parenting of young children today takes place in the context of significant ongoing developments. These include a rapidly growing body of science on early childhood, increases in funding for programs and services for families, changing demographics of the U.S. population and greater diversity of family structure. Additionally parenting is increasingly being shaped by technology and increased access to information about parenting. Parenting Matters identifies parenting knowledge, attitudes and practices associated with positive developmental outcomes in children ages 0-8, universal preventive and targeted strategies used in a variety of settings that have been effective with parents of young children and that support the identified knowledge, attitudes and practices and barriers to and facilitators for parents' use of practices that lead to healthy child outcomes as well as their participation in effective programs and services. This report makes recommendations directed at an array of stakeholders for promoting the wide scale adoption of effective programs and services for parents and on areas that warrant further research to inform policy and practice. It is meant to serve as a roadmap for the future of parenting policy research and practice in the United States.

Parenting Behaviour and Children's Cognitive Development Sara Meadows, 2013-10-23 The association between parents behaviour and children s cognitive development is at the meeting place of several prominent theories of psychological development and a range of complex methodological and conceptual issues On the one hand there are theories which argue that the impetus of development is within the child and is largely unaffected by his or her experience of social interaction on the other are the commonsense experience of parents and educators and the body of neo Vygotskian theory which would see the child s development as profoundly affected by social interaction or even constituted by it The purpose of this book is to examine theories and evidence carefully in order to assess the causal links between parent behaviour and children s cognitive development There is a considerable amount of evidence that suggests an association between parents behaviour and their children s cognitive development but there are many possible explanations for this association including direct effects of parental teaching styles on the children s learning and motivation differential social class practices and opportunities genetic resemblances and methodological artifacts A close and critical look at a wide range of research and of theory is necessary if the causal questions are to be clarified This book develops the current arguments about the nature and causes of cognitive development providing a critical discussion of the available research and relating it to psychological theory It is suitable for advanced students of psychology and education

Crossing Boundaries Giuseppina Marsico, Koji Komatsu, Antonio Iannaccone, 2013-07-01 This book brings in the focus on the borders between different contexts that need to be crossed in the process of education Despite the considerable efforts of various groups of researchers all over the World it does not seem that traditional educational psychology has succeeded in illuminating the complex issues involved in the schoolfamily relationship From a methodological perspective there is no satisfactory explanation of the connection between representations and actual practice in educational contexts Crossing Boundaries is an invitation to cultural psychology of educational processes to overcome the limits of existing educational psychology Eemphasizing social locomotion and the dynamic processes the book try to capture the ambiguous richness of the transit from one context to another of the symbolic perspective that accompanies the dialogue between family and school of practices regulating the interstitial space between these different social systems How family and school fill occupy circulate avoid or strategically use this space in between What discourses and practices saturate this Border Zone and or cross from one side to the other Crossing Boundaries gathers contributions with the clear aim of documenting and analysing what happens at points of contact between family culture and scholastic educational culture from the perspective of everyday life This book is in itself an attempt to cross the border between the theorizing on the borders and how the outside world and the others are perceived from a certain point of view and the practices that characterize the school home interaction

Making Families Work and What To Do When They Don't Terry S Trepper, Bill Borchardt, 2013-02-01 Making Families Work and What To Do When They Don t offers specific recommendations for increasing family harmony through more effective parenting practices This important new book helps parents improve family

understanding and relationships by reducing the emotional interference anger betrayal guilt shame and fear that blocks healthier and happier family connections Each chapter is laced with knowledge and therapeutic humor that examine dimensions to family living in a way that helps parents lighten up a little rather than tighten up a lot Parents will find that encouraging family members to take one another less seriously increases their opportunities for more constructive interactions Marital and family counselors social workers psychologists guidance counselors psychiatrists and other human service professionals can use the valuable information in this book to help families view their interfamilial relationships more objectively and to take each other less seriously creating more constructive interactions and happier stronger relationships Therapists will learn to encourage clients to question and challenge conventional ideas of the family that often lead to demands exaggerations irrational expectations personalizations and self and other judgments all of which contaminate the family relationship Using the scientific principles of rational thinking Author Bill Borchardt questions the relationship between parents and their children and the degree of influence parents have over their children He places the focus on a parental advocacy model by which parents are encouraged to give themselves some emotional slack and to develop a sense of humility for what they can and cannot do for their children This starts the process of family members learning what to realistically expect and accept from one another Borchardt shows readers that by taking the sacredness and golden rules out of the definitions of family living emotional upset and oppositional behavioral obstacles can be minimized and more emotional well being and family fulfillment can be experienced Each chapter in Making Families Work and What To Do When They Don't is lined with knowledge and therapeutic humor that examines dimensions of family living in a way that assists families in loosening up a little rather than tightening up a lot This improves family members understanding of and relationships among one another by reducing the emotional interference feelings of anger betrayal guilt shame fear that blocks healthy happy family connections and by offering specific practical recommendations for increasing family harmony Through his analyses of 30 topics of family living presented under the umbrella of learning what to realistically expect of imperfect parents of imperfect children in an imperfect world Borchardt reveals to readers that individuals are active participants in creating their own emotional problems and disturbances people exaggerate the significance of past family disturbances emotional slack and fewer unrealistic demands of self and others leads to a happier family family members often disturb themselves unnecessarily by escalating family values into sacred demands families don't shape character they reveal it Unlike other books about family living Making Families Work and What To Do When They Don't analyzes the dysfunctional ideas that family members hold about themselves and others rather than the dysfunctional relationships that naturally exist between fallible human beings In this guidebook readers learn creative new ways of approaching old family problems and they gain succinct explanations of how they can help their own and other families do things differently and do different things to improve emotional and behavioral well being within the family

Parenting Tom Luster, Lynn Okagaki, 2006-04-21 Parenting

An Ecological Perspective was originally created in 1993 to answer questions such as Why do parents differ markedly in the ways in which they care for their children What factors contribute to individual differences in parenting behavior The framework used for addressing these questions is the ecological perspective developed by Urie Bronfenbrenner who recognized that children s development is influenced by the interactions that they have over time with the people objects and symbols in their immediate environment Luster and Okagaki have updated the original text focusing on parental behavior and also included 6 new chapters covering topics such as fathers gender of parent children with special needs ethnicity and socioeconomic status and parent education The text summarizes the latest research on factors that influence parenting with each chapter providing a look at one important influence and the linkages among these various factors An ecological perspective draws attention to the fact that the lives of parents and children are intertwined and that understanding factors that influence parents is important for understanding the experiences of children Social/Emotional Issues, Underachievement, and Counseling of Gifted and Talented Students Sidney M. Moon, 2004-03-23 The expert guide to the major issues and chief trends in studies of underachievement and affective needs of gifted students Focusing on the social and emotional characteristics of gifted students in general and underachievers in particular the sixteen articles in this ready reference also provide an introduction to appropriate counseling methods for the gifted Key features include Expert Sidney M Moon s comprehensive analysis of some of the most influential research on underachievement social emotional issues and counseling approaches for the gifted Effective educational and personal interventions designed to reverse underachievement Recommendations for addressing the specialized and differentiated counseling needs of gifted students With the guidance and insight of the field s top authorities educators will learn how to intervene more effectively with high ability individuals experiencing social emotional difficulties and will discover how they can help all gifted students achieve optimal social emotional and personal development The ERGE Series The National Association for Gifted Children series Essential Readings in Gifted Education is a 12 volume collection of seminal articles from Gifted Child Quarterly Put the knowledge and power of more than 25 years of research on giftedness and talent into your hands with the leading theories studies and findings the experts in the field have to offer Parents And The Dynamics Of Child Rearing George W Holden, 2019-07-11 Research into parent child relationships is a diverse field of inquiry attracting investigators from a variety of disciplines and subdisciplines This book integrates and synthesizes the literature by focusing on issues concerning the parent The text is organized around four key questions What determines parental behavior What are the effects of parenting on children What makes some parents more effective than others Why do some parents maltreat their children George Holden adopts a dynamic rather than a static perspective on parenting This dynamic approach reflects parents capacity to modify their behavior as they respond to changes in their children and in their own lives Throughout the text historical antecedents as well as methodological and theoretical issues are highlighted Although the book is designed for advanced courses focusing on the parent child relationship it also provides a good overview for those interested in current research concerning parenting
