Parents As Educators Training Parents To Teach Their Children:

Parenting Matters National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Committee on Supporting the Parents of Young Children, 2016-11-21

Decades of research have demonstrated that the parent child dyad and the environment of the family which includes all primary caregivers are at the foundation of children's well being and healthy development. From birth children are learning and rely on parents and the other caregivers in their lives to protect and care for them. The impact of parents may never be greater than during the earliest years of life when a child's brain is rapidly developing and when nearly all of her or his experiences are created and shaped by parents and the family environment. Parents help children build and refine their knowledge and skills charting a trajectory for their health and well being during childhood and beyond. The experience of parenting also impacts parents themselves. For instance, parenting can enrich and give focus to parents' lives, generate stress or calm and create any number of emotions including feelings of happiness, sadness, fulfillment and anger. Parenting of young children today takes place in the context of significant ongoing developments. These include a rapidly growing body of science on early childhood, increases in funding for programs and services for families, changing demographics of the U.S. population and greater diversity of family structure. Additionally, parenting is increasingly being shaped by technology and increased access to information about parenting. Parenting Matters identifies parenting knowledge, attitudes and practices associated with positive developmental outcomes in children ages 0-8, universal preventive and targeted strategies used in a variety of settings that have been effective with parents of young children and that support the identified knowledge, attitudes and practices, and barriers to and facilitators for parents' use of practices that lead to healthy child outcomes as well as their participation in effective programs and services. This report makes recommendations directed at an array of stakeholders for promoting the wide scale adoption of effective programs and services for parents and on areas that warrant further research to inform policy and practice. It is meant to serve as a roadmap for the future of parenting policy research and practice in the United States.

Dear Parents Gabbie Stroud, 2020-02-04

In this funny, heartfelt and passionate call to arms, Gabbie Stroud makes a plea to all parents to understand their roles as their children's lifelong teachers and show how they can best help their kids, teachers and schools achieve the best results for the next generation of leaders. Written by

Gabbie Stroud author of the national bestseller Teacher Dear Parents is a passionate call to arms for all parents to understand their role as their children's lifelong teachers showing how they can help their kids educators and schools achieve the best outcomes for the next generation So many Australian parents are buying the government line about standardised testing of students through programs like NAPLAN and My School which make them think they are getting results because of rankings and comparisons But they don't seem to realise that these new forms of assessment are actually negatively affecting our kids ability to gain the crucial life skills and appreciation for learning that have been and should be the main aim of teaching In Dear Parents a funny heartfelt and impassioned series of letters to the mothers fathers and caregivers of Australia Gabbie Stroud makes a plea to all parents to understand the fundamental changes to the way their children are being taught and the results of this process on the development of future generations She wants parents to recognise their responsibility as their children's primary educators and to appreciate the lifelong benefits that committed and dedicated school teachers can bring to their kids A moving and inspiring journey through teaching and learning and all they can be If you have a young person in your life or know somebody who does please read this book

Morris Gleitzman Australian Children's Laureate Gabbie Stroud's Dear Parents is a crucial bridge between two important pillars in education parents and teachers but most importantly it holds at its passionate heart the best interests of children If you want to understand the way your children are being educated in these challenging times and whether the system is fit for purpose you must read this funny informative and eye opening book

Parents and Schools William W. Cutler, 2000-06-15 Who holds ultimate authority for the education of America's children teachers or parents Although the relationship between home and school has changed dramatically over the decades William Cutler's fascinating history argues that it has always been a political one and his book uncovers for the first time how and why the balance of power has shifted over time Starting with parental dominance in the mid nineteenth century Cutler chronicles how schools growing bureaucratization and professionalization allowed educators to gain increasing control over the schooling and lives of the children they taught Central to his story is the role of parent teacher associations which helped transform an adversarial relationship into a collaborative one Yet parents have also been controlled by educators through PTAs leading to the perception that they are company unions Cutler shows how in the 1920s and 1930s schools expanded their responsibility for children's well being outside the classroom These efforts sowed the seeds for later conflict as schools came to be held accountable for solving society's problems Finally he brings the reader into recent decades in which a breakdown of trust racial tension and parents rights have taken the story full circle with parents and schools once again at odds Cutler's book is an invaluable guide to understanding how parent teacher cooperation which is essential for our children's educational success might be achieved
