Parting Of Ways:

Parting Ways Judith Butler, 2013-11-01 Judith Butler follows Edward Said's late suggestion that through a consideration of Palestinian dispossession in relation to Jewish diasporic traditions a new ethos can be forged for a one state solution. Butler engages Jewish philosophical positions to articulate a critique of political Zionism and its practices of illegitimate state violence, nationalism, and state-sponsored racism. At the same time, she moves beyond communitarian frameworks, including Jewish ones that fail to arrive at a radical democratic notion of political cohabitation. Butler engages thinkers such as Edward Said, Emmanuel Levinas, Hannah Arendt, Primo Levi, Martin Buber, Walter Benjamin, and Mahmoud Darwish as she articulates a new political ethic. In her view, it is as important to dispute Israel's claim to represent the Jewish people as it is to show that a narrowly Jewish framework cannot suffice as a basis for an ultimate critique of Zionism. She promotes an ethical position in which the obligations of cohabitation do not derive from cultural sameness but from the unchosen character of social plurality. Recovering the arguments of Jewish thinkers who offered criticisms of Zionism or whose work could be used for such a purpose, Butler disputes the specific charge of anti-Semitic self-hatred often leveled against Jewish critiques of Israel. Her political ethic relies on a vision of cohabitation that thinks anew about binationalism and exposes the limits of a communitarian framework to overcome the colonial legacy of Zionism. Her own engagements with Edward Said and Mahmoud Darwish form an important point of departure and conclusion for her engagement with some key forms of thought derived in part from Jewish resources but always in relation to the non-Jew. Butler considers the rights of the dispossessed, the necessity of plural cohabitation, and the dangers of arbitrary state violence, showing how they can be extended to a critique of Zionism even when that is not their explicit aim. She revisits and affirms Edward Said's late proposals for a one state solution within the ethos of binationalism. Butler's startling suggestion: Jewish ethics not only demand a critique of Zionism but must transcend its exclusive Jewishness in order to realize the ethical and political ideals of living together in radical democracy.

Parting Ways Denise Carson, 2011-04-10 Carson explores in captivating detail the new alternatives to traditional institutionalized dying, mourning, and memorialization. She deftly paints a vivid portrait of her own experiences and successfully ties in conceptual research on newer death rituals. This book is truly unique and timely. Tony Bell, Professor Emeritus at California State University Fullerton, Department of Sociology. Parting Ways provides a fresh and contemporary perspective on American death rituals. Carson expertly weaves her personal narrative around existing research, and in the process, she delivers an important analysis on ritual and death that is poignant and widely accessible. Reformed Theological Seminary. A Parting of the Ways Michael Friedman, 2011-04-15 Since the 1930s, philosophy has been divided into two camps: the analytic tradition, which prevails in the Anglophone world, and the continental tradition, which holds sway over the European continent. A Parting of the Ways looks at the origins of this split through the lens of one defining episode: the disputation in Davos, Switzerland, in 1929 between the two most eminent German philosophers, Ernst

Cassirer and Martin Heidegger This watershed debate was attended by Rudolf Carnap a representative of the Vienna Circle of logical positivists Michael Friedman shows how philosophical differences interacted with political events Both Carnap and Heidegger viewed their philosophical efforts as tied to their radical social outlooks with Carnap on the left and Heidegger on the right while Cassirer was in the conciliatory classical tradition of liberal republicanism The rise of Hitler led to the emigration from Europe of most leading philosophers including Carnap and Cassirer leaving Heidegger alone on the continent

Gentile Christian Identity from Cornelius to Constantine Terence L. Donaldson,2020-11-05 Originally an ascribed identity that cast non Jewish Christ believers as an ethnic other gentile soon evolved into a much more complex aspect of early Christian identity Gentile Christian Identity from Cornelius to Constantine is a full historical account of this trajectory showing how in the context of the parting of the ways the early church increasingly identified itself as a distinctly gentile and anti Judaic entity even as it also crafted itself as an alternative to the cosmopolitan project of the Roman Empire This process of identity construction shaped Christianity's legacy paradoxically establishing it as both a counter empire and a mimicker of Rome's imperial ideology Drawing on social identity theory and ethnography Terence Donaldson offers an analysis of gentile Christianity that is thorough and highly relevant to today's discourses surrounding identity ethnicity and Christian Jewish relations As Donaldson shows a full understanding of the term gentile is key to understanding the modern Western world and the church as we know it

The Ways That Often Parted Lori Baron, Jill Hicks-Keeton, Matthew Thiessen, 2018-11-09 Focused studies on the historical interactions and formations of Judaism and Christianity This volume of essays from an internationally renowned group of scholars challenges popular ways of understanding how Judaism and Christianity came to be separate religions in antiquity Essays in the volume reject the belief that there was one parting at an early point in time and contest the argument that there was no parting until a very late date The resulting volume presents a complex account of the numerous ways partings occurred across the ancient Mediterranean spanning the first four centuries CE Features Case studies that explore how Jews and Christians engaged in interaction conflict and collaboration Examinations of the gospels Paul's letters the book of James as well as rabbinic and noncanonical Christian texts New evidence for historical reconstructions of how Christianity came on the world scene

The Divisions of French Catholicism, 1629-1645 Anthony David Wright, 2011 Drawing on sources from the Jesuit archives in Rome and on Port Royal material in Paris the book begins with an investigation into the development of Catholic Reform in France showing the problems that emerged before 1629 and the degree to which these were or were not resolved The second half of the book contrasts the fragmentation of the movement in the years beyond 1629 and the context of Richelieu's new directions in French foreign policy Covering a crucial period in the lead up to the establishment of an absolute monarchy in France this book provides a rich new explanation of the development of French political and ecclesiastical history It will be of interest not only to those studying the early modern period but to anyone wishing to understand the roots of French secular society

Parting Words Justin A. Sider, 2018-11-29 Valedictory addresses offer a way to conceptualize the relation of self to others private to public ephemeral to eternal Whether deathbed pronouncements political capitulations or seafaring farewells parting words played a crucial role in the social imagination of Victorian writing In this compelling new book Justin Sider traces these public addresses across a wide range of works from poems by Byron Tennyson and Browning to essays by Twain and Wilde to novels by Dickens and Eliot Ironically while the Victorian era saw the loss of faith in a unitary national public it asked poetry to address just such a public Attending to the form rather than the discursive content of poets' engagement with public culture Parting Words explains how the valedictory allowed Victorian poets to explore the ways their poems might be received by distant and anonymous readers in an emergent mass culture Using a wide array of materials such as letters and reviews to describe the rapidly changing print culture in which poets were intervening Sider shows how the growing diversification and destabilization of the Victorian reading public was countered by the demand for a public poetry. Characteristically the speakers of Tennyson's Ulysses and Matthew Arnold's Empedocles on Etna imagine their farewells as simultaneous entrances into a public space where they and their readers however distant might yet meet. This new consciousness anticipated modernist poetry which in turn used the valedictory to underscore the futility and alienation of such hopes.

Jews and Christians - Parting Ways in the First Two Centuries CE? Jens Schröter, Benjamin A. Edsall, Joseph Verheyden, 2021-08-23 The present volume is based on a conference held in October 2019 at the Faculty of Theology of Humboldt University Berlin as part of a common project of the Australian Catholic University, the Katholieke Universiteit Leuven, and the Humboldt University Berlin. The aim is to discuss the relationships of Jews and Christians in the first two centuries CE against the background of recent debates which have called into question the image of parting ways for a description of the relationships of Judaism and Christianity in antiquity. One objection raised against this metaphor is that it accentuates differences at the expense of commonalities. Another critique is that this image looks from a later perspective at historical developments which can hardly be grasped with such a metaphor. It is more likely that distinctions between Jews, Christians, Jewish Christians, Christian Jews, etc. are more blurred than the image of parting ways allows. In light of these considerations, the contributions in this volume discuss the cogency of the parting of the ways model with a look at prominent early Christian writers and places and suggest more appropriate metaphors to describe the relationships of Jews and Christians in the early period.
