Evaluation and Development Osvaldo N. Feinstein, 2018-02-06 Partnership is of growing importance in development work Partnerships among state private business and civil society organizations are increasingly used to deliver the goods and services required for balanced growth and poverty reduction Aid activities have shifted from a project focus to a more strategic and holistic focus on programs sectors and policies With this new orientation partnerships are often essential to deal with the added complexity and the larger number of agencies groups and stakeholders involved The Partnership Dimension takes on the issues in a series of chapters divided into two general parts Part 1 Foundations of Partnership and Their Evaluation covers the types of development partnership and critical issues involved and Part 2 Partnerships in Practice then illustrates the aspects and lessons of partnership experience through a series of case studies Many of the studies focus on the benefits of partnerships between institutions of government and civil society Benefits include effective knowledge transfer greater cross national cooperation the creation of new networks and capacity and penetration of new markets Private firms use partnerships with competitors to learn or reduce risk There is much to learn about when where and how best to use partnerships and in particular partnerships that involve less traditional combinations of actors such as global partnerships for public policy country focused aid partnerships private sector partnerships for knowledge creation and partnerships for community development involving business nongovernmental organizations and government Relatively little is known about the costs and benefits and the risks and rewards of different types of partnerships or about how best to conduct partnerships for different purposes This is why the current volume in the World Bank series is relevant for both development practitioners and policy analysts War on Hunger , Alternative Views of the New International Economic Order Jorge Lozoya, Jaime Estevez, Rosario Green, 2013-10-22 Alternative Views of the New International Economic Order A Survey and Analysis of Major Academic Research Reports focuses on research on the principles and objectives of the New International Economic Order including concerns on nutrition self reliance information technology global security and energy resources The manuscript first discusses development as a global concept as well as global security nutrition development and energy and natural resources The book then takes a look at international monetary and financial issues and international trade Topics include reform of the international monetary system collapse of the general agreement on tariffs and trade and proposals in global projects The publication examines transnational enterprises and technology transfer and food program including transnational corporations and self reliance national sovereignty technology transfer and transnational enterprises The book is a vital reference for readers interested in the study of the New International Economic Order Partnership Or Confrontation? Paul Alpert, 1972 Monograph on the problems of underdevelopment and the goals of development policy with particular reference to the role of developed countries discusses the potential of development aid and suggests that improved economic relations and international cooperation can foster
