Parasites and Parasitic Diseases Gilberto Antonio Bastidas Pacheco,2019-04-24 Parasitic diseases are considered nowadays as an important public health problem due to the high morbidity and mortality rates registered in the world These diseases result in more severe consequences for the social order of tropical and subtropical countries because many of them have low economic income that makes it even more difficult to design and implement health control programs This situation opens the door to the emergence and reemergence of these diseases therefore it is convenient necessary and essential to study and update the epidemiological behavior of tropical diseases with the objective of offering official health professionals and institutions current information for decision making in this area to ensure social welfare

Parasitic Diseases Dickson D. Despommier, Robert W. Gwadz, Peter J. Hotez, 2012-12-06 Worldwide the numbers of people suffering and dying from parasitic diseases are overwhelming with more than 100 million cases and 1 million deaths each year from malaria alone Despite the magnitude of the problem and the importance of the parasites that cause opportunistic infections among persons with HIV AIDS medical schools in the United States Canada and other developed countries consistently reduce the amount of time spent on parasitic diseases in the curriculum As a result most medical students receive limited information about these diseases and are inadequately prepared to diagnose or treat them as physicians This problem is too large to be resolved within the time available for parasitology in the medical school curriculum at most students can be acquainted with the salient features of the medically important parasites Likewise the traditional isolation of parasitology from the rest of the curriculum consistent with its exclusion from most microbiology texts is another unresolved problem In my opinion this is why most physicians are unable to think about the differential diagnosis of parasitic diseases in the same way that they routinely balance the probabilities of malignancy cardiovascular renal and pulmonary disease vs other infectious diseases To resolve these problems relevant paradigms from parasitology must be used in the teaching of cell biology molecular biology genetics and immunology
