Self-management support to handle everyday life with Parkinson´s disease Carina Hellqvist,2020-04-27 Background Being diagnosed with Parkinson s disease PD is a life altering experience The long term condition requires continuous adjustments to the everyday life not only of the person affected but also for care partners There is still insufficient knowledge on how best to support this process of acceptance and adjustment to encourage self management Aims The aim of this thesis is to enhance the knowledge and understanding of self management for persons with PD PwPD and their care partners Furthermore to investigate whether the self management intervention Swedish National Parkinson School can be used as a tool to support self management and how nurses specialised in the care of persons with Parkinson s disease can tailor their support to encourage self management in everyday life Method and design Both qualitative and quantitative designs and methods were used in the three studies included in this thesis Participants included a total of 209 persons Of these 127 were persons with PD and 75 were care partners Participants with PD were largely in the middle stages of the disease The time since diagnosis ranged from less than one year to over 20 years and most participants had lived with the disease for around five years Participants were cared for at five separate outpatient clinics both geriatric and neurological in three county and two university hospitals across Sweden Data collection included observations interviews self reported questionnaires and audio recordings of the National Parkinson School in clinical care The overall results of this thesis were obtained using a qualitative approach where the results of the three studies were analysed using qualitative thematic analysis as described by Braun and Clarke 2006 Results In combining the results of the separate studies through thematic analysis three distinct but interrelated themes were evident These described the processes and efforts of persons to accept manage and adjust to everyday life with PD The theme A changed reality involves participants descriptions of how life changed after the diagnosis of PD For many this was a shock and both the person affected and their care partners experienced a variety of emotions such as anger denial and hopelessness It changed their personal identities their perception of themselves as individuals and as a couple They worried about what the future would hold and the uncertainty was hard to accept and handle One strategy for processing and beginning to acknowledge the new situation involved speaking openly about the diagnosis. The second theme, Finding a new path, involves a description of how, after accepting or at least acknowledging their new reality, participants started to find ways of managing the impact of PD on everyday life, incorporating it into their current life and identity. Many felt new knowledge was needed and turned to books and websites on PD. An intervention which was appreciated in terms of providing tools for self-observation and self-knowledge was the Swedish National Parkinson School. Participants later used these techniques to communicate and observe symptoms and healthcare needs. Being an active participant in life and performing activities such as physical exercise or other activities they enjoyed were also used as a strategy to feel satisfaction in life. Participants frequently worked out self-care and compensatory strategies to handle everyday tasks. Another strategy they found comforting and helpful involved retaining a positive mind set and believing that a good future lay ahead. In the third category, The companions, the participants described self-management in everyday life as a task they performed together. Management of PD was considered the shared responsibility of the person affected and the care partner but was also influenced by others such as family members and close friends. The Swedish National Parkinson School provided knowledge as a form of common ground for the person affected and the care partner. During the Swedish National Parkinson School, the social interaction involved in exchanging experiences and feeling support from others in the same situation was considered helpful and was much appreciated.

Conclusions: Management of PD in everyday life involves both the person affected and the care partner. After the initial emotional reactions, alongside feelings of lost identity and an altered life, persons started to look to the future and were ready to find ways of handling the changed conditions of their everyday lives. Persons with PD and their care partners were now willing to learn more about PD and to find tools and strategies to help them manage its impact on their everyday lives. During this phase, they appreciated the support of the Swedish National Parkinson School intervention. In the intervention, they would meet others in the same situation to find support and exchange experiences. They also turn to healthcare for support in the process of self-management in everyday life. Nurses working specifically to support PwPD and their CP will need to tailor support taking into account the disease trajectory as well as the psychological processes involved in accepting and adjusting to PD to best fit the unique needs and wishes of every person with PD and their care partner.

Marsden's Book of Movement Disorders Ivan Donaldson, C. David Marsden, Susanne Schneider, Kailash Bhatia, 2012-03-29. This book represents the final work of the late Professor C. David Marsden, who was the most influential figure in the field of movement disorders in terms of his contributions to both research and clinical practice in the modern era. It was conceived and written by David Marsden and his colleague at the Institute of Neurology, Prof. Ivan Donaldson. It was their intention that this would be the most comprehensive book on movement disorders and also that it would serve as the clinical Bible for the management of these conditions. It provides a masterly survey of the entire topic, which has been made possible only by vast laboratory and bedside experience. Marsden's Book of Movement Disorders covers the full breadth of movement disorders from the underlying anatomy and understanding of basal ganglia function to the diagnosis and management of specific movement disorders including the more common conditions such as Parkinson's Disease through to rare and very rare conditions such as Niemann Pick disease. Chapters follow a structured format with historical overviews, definitions, clinical features, differential diagnosis, investigations, and treatment covered in a structured way. It is extensively illustrated with many original photographs and diagrams of historical significance. Among these illustrations are still images of some original film clips of some of Dr Marsden's patients published here for the first time. Comprehensively referenced and updated by experts from the Institute of Neurology at Queen Square, this book is a valuable reference for not just movement disorder specialists and researchers but also for clinicians who care for patients with movement disorders.

An Essay on the Shaking Palsy James Parkinson, 1817 Through the Patient's Eyes Margaret Gerteis, Susan Edgman-Levitan, Jennifer Daley, Thomas L. Delbanco, 2002-05-03. Sponsored by the Picker Commonwealth Program for Patient Centered Care. In this comprehensive research based look at the experiences and needs of patients, the authors explore models of care that can make hospitalization more humane. Through the Patient's Eyes provides insights into why some hospitals are more patient centered than others, how physicians can become more involved in patient centered quality efforts, and how patient centered quality can be integrated into health care policy standards and regulations. The authors show how by bringing the patient's perspective to the design and delivery of health services, providers can improve their ability to meet patient's needs and enhance the quality of care.
