Parliament House Canberra A Building Fo:

, Performing Representation Shirin M. Rai, Carole Spary, 2018-10-09 Seven decades after India's independence women members occupy 1 in 10 seats in the Lok Sabha the lower house of the Indian Parliament In analysing women's limited presence in the Indian Parliament Performing Representation breaks new ground in scholarship on gender and politics It explores the possibilities and limits of parliamentary democracy and the participation of women in its institutional performances This book offers new insights into the gendered nature of the performance aesthetics and norms of parliamentary life through an examination of electoral data legislative debates and life stories of women MPs The authors avoid both the framing of women MPs either simply as challengers of masculinized institutional politics or only as docile actors in a gendered institution Making a strong case for taking parliamentary politics seriously in these times of populism the book raises critical questions about the politics of difference claim making representation and intersectionality and addresses these as part of global feminist debates on the importance of the women's representation in political institutions

Australian Senate Practice Australia. Parliament. Senate, J. R. Odgers, 1953 A Short History of Parliament Clyde Jones, 2009 This institutional history charts the development and evolution of parliament from the Scottish and Irish parliaments through the post Act of Union parliament and into the devolved assemblies of the 1990s It considers all aspects of parliament as an institution including membership parties constituencies and elections House to House Phillip

Pendal, David William Black, 2004 The Annotated Constitution of the Australian Commonwealth Sir John Quick, 1901 Parliament House at Work Martyn Jolly, Anne Zahalka, 2014 Parliamentary Zone Review Australia. National Capital Authority, 2000 In 1998 the Commonwealth Government of Australia announced that the National Capital Authority would undertake a strategic review of the Parliamentary Zone and initiate the development of a master plan In recent years the public concerns about the Zone have included the lack of people spaces problems relating to through traffic and car parking the physical location of major buildings from each other the incomplete pedestrian network and the ageing of significant landscape items The review found a growing interest in the place of indigenous culture in the National Capital as well as a desire for more historical interpretation and commemoration As well as responding to these and other issues the review was aimed at refreshing and promulgating the historical vision for the Parliamentary Zone that has the Griffin plan at its foundation House of Representatives Practice Australia. Pettifer, Alan Robert Browning, J. K. Porter, 1981 Federal Capital Architecture Ken Charlton, 1984 Capital Designs Eileen Chanin, 2018-09-03 This book relates the untold story of how Australia's first diplomatic mission was conceived designed and built Commenced in 1913 Australia House was opened in 1918 while the Great War still raged Being London's first purpose built Dominion embassy building it defined London as an Imperial capital It is a story of ambitions and achievements global imperial local and personal Truth of the Palace Letters Paul Kelly, Troy Bramston, 2020-10-27 In July

2020 the National Archives of Australia released the long suppressed correspondence between Sir John Kerr and Queen Elizabeth II written during Kerr's tumultuous tenure as Governor General of Australia. The letters cover the constitutional crisis that culminated in Kerr's infamous dismissal of Labor Prime Minister Gough Whitlam in 1975. In The Truth of the Palace Letters, Paul Kelly and Troy Bramston reveal their meaning and significance for understanding the dismissal. The analysis of these documents and their authors throws a revealing light on the connection between the Queen in Buckingham Palace and the Governor General in Canberra. Coupled with newly discovered archival documents and interviews, Kelly and Bramston explain the implications of the letters for our Constitution, our democracy, and the republic debate. Recollections of a Bleeding Heart Don Watson, 2008. If he had never become Prime Minister, Paul Keating's place in Australian history would still have been assured. He was the Treasurer who deregulated the economy, the weaver of Labor's modern story, its heavy weapon in the parliament. He was also the great enigma: a self-educated boy from Sydney's working class and a defining element of the head-kicking Labor right who loved Paris, Mahler, and Second Empire clocks. Paul Keating did become Prime Minister. In December 1991, he wrested it from Bob Hawke, and the bruises from that struggle were part of the baggage he brought to the job. The other parts included the worst recession in 60 years and an electorate determined to make him pay for it. Keating defied the odds and won the 1993 election, and in his four years as Prime Minister, set Australia on a new course towards engagement with Asia, a republic reconciliation, a social democracy built on a modern export-based economy and sophisticated public systems of education and training, health, and social security. Widely regarded as a quintessential economic rationalist, Keating's record clearly shows that his vision was infinitely broader and more complex. Don Watson was employed as Keating's speechwriter. Though a bleeding heart liberal trained in history rather than economics, he became an advisor and friend to Keating. RECOLLECTIONS OF A BLEEDING HEART based on notes Watson kept through the four turbulent and exhausting years of Keating's Prime Ministership is a frank, sympathetic, and engrossing portrait of this brilliant and perplexing man and a unique reflection on modern politics. Recollections of a Bleeding Heart by Don Watson. Canberra is Australia's capital city. Developed according to the detailed plans produced by Walter Burley Griffin, Canberra's wide avenues and long vistas were designed to give prominence to the city's important government buildings and showcase the dignity of the nation's capital. Although it was a very quiet place for the first few decades of its existence, Canberra has now developed into a vibrant city with business, shopping, and entertainment precincts. Most visitors to Canberra are unaware that it could have been called Eureka or Britannia, or that sheep farming continued within the city's boundaries for many years after the first Parliament House was built. This book includes these stories as well as many others from the history of Canberra, and there is also a chapter on the Westminster System of

The story of Australian architecture might be said to parallel the endeavours of Australians to adapt reconcile themselves with their home neighbours It is the story of 200 years of coming to terms with the land of adaptation insight making do Early settlers were poorly provisioned profoundly ignorant of the land richly prejudiced towards its peoples They pursued many paths over many terrains From the moist temperate region of Tasmania with heavy Palladian villas to the monsoonal north with open lightweight stilt houses the continent has induced most different regional building styles Being All

Equal Judith Kapferer,2020-08-18 Is there such a thing as an Australian national identity Or is Australia just a melting pot of different peoples and cultures without a common culture What is distinctive and what is universal about everyday life in Australia In a post colonial age of globalizing economies the political quest for national identity is increasingly urgent This topical book traces the ways in which the Australian state and its people struggle to represent the social and cultural practices of everyday life in an attempt to draw meaning from diverse understandings of pasts presents and futures Class gender and ethnicity are shown to underpin this popular debate fuelled by shifting interpretations of egalitarianism and individualism The author a prominent Australian sociologist investigates how a nation s identity is created through its folk heroes and folk festivals civic and domestic architecture education politics and art Ned Kelly Parliament House the Melbourne Cup and the Adelaide Grand Prix are all interrogated for the light they shed on Australian ideologies and institutions This book will be fascinating reading for those who seek a deeper understanding of how a national identity can be moulded and redefined
