Partners Against Hunger Consultative Group On International Agricultural Research:

Partners Against Hunger Warren C. Baum, Michael L. Lejeune, 1986 Partners Against Hunger Warren C. Baum, Michael L. Lejeune, 1986 Publications of the International Agricultural Research and Development Centers, 1989 Global Food and Agricultural Institutions D. John Shaw, 2008-10-27 This pioneering text brings together for the first time the global institutions on the front line of the campaign against hunger and poverty The institutions examined in this book the Food and Agricultural Organization FAO the International Fund for Agricultural Development IFAD the World Bank the World Food Programme WFP and the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research CGIAR play important roles in achieving and maintaining world food security which is essential for human existence economic and social development and world peace By analyzing the origins functions successes and difficulties of these global institutions Shaw highlights the continuing relevance of these bodies in their quest to meet the challenges of the twenty first century In the light of the current world food crisis this book provides a particularly pertinent commentary on a highly topical issue that is never far from the media spotlight This book is essential reading for all students academics and readers with an interest in international organisations agricultural development and economic and humanitarian affairs The CGIAR at 31, 2004 The Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research CGIAR was established in 1971 to support the Rockefeller and Ford Foundations in funding four international agricultural research centres in Colombia Mexico Nigeria and the Philippines As the first global programme to receive grants from the World Banks net income the CGIAR now consists of 16 autonomous international centres with a membership of 62 countries including 24 developing and transition economies This report evaluates the work of CGIAR and makes several recommendations to address the future challenges it faces in promoting agricultural research Economic Integration in the Western Hemisphere Caren Addis, 1994 The Doubly Green Revolution Gordon Conway, 2019-01-24 Today more than three quarters of a billion people go hungry in a world where food is plentiful A distinguished scientist here sets out an agenda for addressing this situation Initially published in 1997 in the United Kingdom the book is now available in the first edition produced for the Western hemisphere In it the author has updated information to reflect current economic indicators This volume includes a foreword written for the previous edition by Ismail Serageldin of the World Bank The original Green Revolution produced new technologies for farmers creating food abundance A second transformation of agriculture is now required specifically Gordon Conway argues a doubly green revolution that stresses conservation as well as productivity He calls for researchers and farmers to forge genuine partnerships in an effort to design better plants and animals He also urges them to develop or rediscover alternatives to inorganic fertilizers and pesticides improve soil and water management and enhance earning opportunities for the poor especially women Science Cultivating Practice H. Maat, 2013-04-17 Science Cultivating Practice is an institutional history of agricultural science in the Netherlands and its overseas territories The focus of this study is the variety of views about a proper relationship between science and agricultural practice Such views and plans materialised in the overall organisation of research and education Moreover the book provides case studies of genetics and plant breeding in the Netherlands colonial rice breeding and agricultural statistics Ideas affected the organisation as much as the other way round The net result was an institutional development in which the values of academic science were rated higher than the values of practice This book is a distinctive piece of work as it treats the dynamics of science in a European as well as in a colonial context These different ecological and social environments lead to other forms of knowledge and experimentation as well as other ways of organising science

The Future of Genetically Modified Crops Felicia Wu, William Butz, 2004-08-13 The world is now on the cusp of a new agricultural revolution the so called Gene Revolution in which genetically modified GM crops are tailored to address chronic agricultural problems in certain regions of the world This monograph report investigates the circumstances and processes that can induce and sustain this new agricultural revolution The authors compare the Green Revolution of the 20th century with the GM crop movement to assess the agricultural technological sociological and political differences between the two movements

The Profit of the Earth Courtney Fullilove, 2017-04-18 While there is enormous public interest in biodiversity food sourcing and sustainable agriculture romantic attachments to heirloom seeds and family farms have provoked misleading fantasies of an unrecoverable agrarian past The reality as Courtney Fullilove shows is that seeds are inherently political objects transformed by the ways they are gathered preserved distributed regenerated and improved In The Profit of the Earth Fullilove unearths the history of American agricultural development and of seeds as tools and talismans put in its service Organized into three thematic parts The Profit of the Earth is a narrative history of the collection circulation and preservation of seeds Fullilove begins with the political economy of agricultural improvement recovering the efforts of the US Patent Office and the nascent US Department of Agriculture to import seeds and cuttings for free distribution to American farmers She then turns to immigrant agricultural knowledge exploring how public and private institutions attempting to boost midwestern wheat yields drew on the resources of willing and unwilling settlers Last she explores the impact of these cereal monocultures on biocultural diversity chronicling a fin de siècle Ohio pharmacist's attempt to source Purple Coneflower from the diminishing prairie Through these captivating narratives of improvisation appropriation and loss Fullilove explores contradictions between ideologies of property rights and common use that persist in national and international development ultimately challenging readers to rethink fantasies of global agriculture's past and future The Wizard and the Prophet Charles Mann, 2019-04-16 From the bestselling award-winning author of 1491 and 1493 an incisive portrait of the two little-known twentieth-century scientists Norman Borlaug and William Vogt whose diametrically opposed views shaped our ideas about the environment laying the groundwork for how people in the twenty-first century will choose to live in tomorrow's world In forty years Earth's population will reach ten billion Can our world support that What kind of world will it be Those answering these questions generally fall into two deeply divided groups Wizards and Prophets as Charles Mann calls them in this balanced authoritative nonpolemical new book The Prophets he explains follow William Vogt a founding environmentalist who believed that in using more than our planet has to give our prosperity will lead us to ruin Cut back was his mantra Otherwise everyone will lose The Wizards are the heirs of Norman Borlaug whose research in effect wrangled the world in service to our species to produce modern high-yield crops that then saved millions from starvation Innovate was Borlaug's cry Only in that way can everyone win Mann delves into these diverging viewpoints to assess the four great challenges humanity faces food water energy climate change grounding each in historical context and weighing the options for the future With our civilization on the line the author's insightful analysis is an essential addition to the urgent conversation about how our children will fare on an increasingly crowded Earth Poverty Reduction and Beyond T. Shiraishi, T. Yamagata, S. Yusuf, 2009-06-25 This book highlights strategies for poverty reduction in developing countries with emphasis on the power of the market mechanism and vigor of the private sector focusing ODA on a few longer-term challenges and leveraging advances in technology to the fullest and underlining the importance of human rights and security

The World Under Pressure Carl Dahlman, 2011-11-09 The rapid rise of China and India is reshaping our global economic and environmental systems raising major issues of stability governance and sustainability This book develops a framework that shows the interdependence between economic size trade finance technology environment security and global governance Author Carl J Dahlman uses this framework to provide data on the speed of global power shifts and to trace the implications for nations worldwide Analyzing this critical moment in historical context he offers insights into our most pressing concerns Specifically China and India's unchecked growth has the potential to ignite trade resource cold and conventional wars Moreover these nations could set in motion monumental challenges related to climate change The text warns that the current international governance system is not up to the challenges of defusing these frictions Major powers including China and India must do more to address the gathering storm Developing sustainable economic and social relationships will be a most difficult charge but the cost of putting off reforms will be lower global welfare Dahlman ends the book with starting points for change Forest Trees National Research Council, Board on Agriculture, Committee on Managing Global Genetic Resources: Agricultural Imperatives, 1991-02-01 News reports concerning decline of the world's forests are becoming sadly familiar. Most losses are measured in square kilometers but a more profound loss cannot be measured. As forests disappear so do their genetic resources. The genes they possess can no longer aid in their adaptation to a changing environment nor can they be used to develop improved varieties or products. This book assesses the status of the world's tree genetic resources and management efforts. Strategies for meeting future needs and alternatives to harvesting natural forests are presented. The book also outlines methods and technologies for management, evaluates activities now under way, and makes specific recommendations for a global strategy for forest management.

The Intellectual Property and Food Project Charles Lawson, Jay Sanderson, 2016-03-03 The relationship between intellectual property and food affects the production and availability of food by regulating dealings in products, processes, innovations, information, and data. With increasingly intricate relations between international and domestic law as well as practices and conventions, intellectual property and food interact in many different ways. This volume is a timely consideration and assessment of some of the more contentious and complex issues found in this relationship, such as genetic technology, public research, and food security, socio-economic factors, and the root cause of poverty and patent busting. The contributions are from leading scholars in this emerging field, and each chapter foregrounds some of the key developments in the area, exploring historical, doctrinal, and theoretical issues in the field while at the same time developing new ideas and perspectives around intellectual property and food. The collection will be a useful resource in leading further discussion and debate about intellectual property law and food.

Endangered Maize Helen Anne Curry, 2022-01-25 Many people worry that we're losing genetic diversity in the foods we eat. Over the past century, crop varieties standardized for industrial agriculture have increasingly dominated farm fields. Concerned about what this transition means for the future of food, scientists, farmers, and eaters have sought to protect crop plants they consider endangered. They have organized high-tech genebanks and heritage seed swaps. They have combed fields for ancient landraces and sought farmers growing Indigenous varieties. Behind this widespread concern for the loss of plant diversity lies another extinction narrative about the survival of farmers themselves, a story that is often obscured by urgent calls to collect and preserve. Endangered Maize draws on the rich history of corn in Mexico and the United States to trace the motivations behind these hidden extinction stories and show how they shaped the conservation strategies adopted by scientists, states, and citizens. In Endangered Maize, historian Helen Anne Curry investigates more than a hundred years of agriculture and conservation practices to understand the tasks that farmers and researchers have considered essential to maintaining crop diversity. Through the contours of efforts to preserve diversity in one of the world's most important crops, Curry reveals how conservationists forged their methods around expectations of social, political, and economic transformations that would eliminate diverse communities and cultures. In this fascinating study of how cultural narratives shape science Curry argues for new understandings of endangerment and alternative strategies to protect and preserve crop diversity

Food Security and Nutrition Uwe Kracht, Manfred Schulz, 1999 The persistence of an unacceptably high level of hunger and malnutrition worldwide presents a serious challenge to the world on the threshold of the third millennium Although enough food is produced to feed mankind about 840 million people go hungry among them are 185 million pre school children that are severely underweight for their age Since an additional 80 million people have to be fed each year achieving food security is a central global challenge if not the most important development issue The aim of the reader is to analyze actual problems in the field of food security and nutrition and to discuss present and future strategies to overcome hunger Food security is a complex subject In order to master this complexity we distinguish between four dimensions of analyses Theoretical analytical empirical descriptive normative political institutional Series Spektrum Berliner Reihe zu Gesellschaft Wirtschaft und Politik in Entwicklungsländern Berlin Series on Society Economy and Politics in Developing Countries Vol 50

From "Climate-Smart" to "Climate-Just Agriculture" Anthony Pahnke, 2025-07-03 Combining innovative social theory with ongoing policy discussions on climate change this book analyzes past and present efforts at challenging global poverty through reforming the dynamics of worldwide agricultural production Focusing on the efforts of the World Bank and CGIAR research centers particularly through research and projects that have been launched by the International Maize and Wheat Improvement Center CIMMYT and the International Food Policy Research Institute IFPRI Climate Smart to Climate Just exposes how neoliberal principles of limited government and individual entrepreneurship have expanded through the development of Climate Smart Agriculture At the same an alternative Climate Just Agriculture is becoming possible as rightwing populists have disrupted international free trade orthodoxy and social movement demands for food sovereignty gain traction in key international spaces As Pahnke explains in this innovative account Climate Just Agriculture includes structural changes to free trade agreements that would build from local and regional food systems to make them resilient in the face of the adverse effects of climate change This resiliency moreover allows marginalized groups the capacity to create and participate in markets that allow for greater self sufficiency to push back on colonialism and imperialism Written in a clear and accessible style this book will be essential reading for students and scholars of sociology environmental studies and politics as well as for policymakers and professionals involved in climate change policy and the agriculture and food industry
