became President of the ACLS in 1982 he believed that the ACLS's tradition of high caliber scholarship and teaching should be commemorated through an annual lecture delivered by a distinguished humanist on the life of learning. As a result of Ward's vision each year since 1983 the American Council of Learned Societies has invited one of America's leading scholars to deliver the Haskins Lecture in honor of Charles Homer Haskins, a distinguished scholar and teacher who was instrumental in the founding of the ACLS. In this volume which commemorates the 75th anniversary of the ACLS Douglas Greenberg and Stanley Katz bring together the lectures presented by ten of America's most distinguished scholars. Each lecture is a personal and intellectual glimpse into the life of learning of such celebrated scholars as Maynard Mack, Annemarie Schimmel, and John Hope Franklin. The lectures focus on self-reflection of lives dedicated to learning rather than on scholarship in the usual sense of the term. Ranging from being forced to learn Latin to painful memories of war and racism, the lecturers all recount stories from their eventful lives. Each offers thoughts on the body of work he or she has produced and the forces, personal and intellectual, that have shaped it. The scholars bring something of their disciplines to the lectures, sharing not only personal anecdotes but their love of learning. The range of disciplines the lecturers come from represents the diversity of the scholarship supported by the ACLS. Their lectures offer a unique intellectual history of some of our most renowned scholars and will also serve as a history of the Council, the role it has played in fostering scholarship, and the vast contributions it has made to American letters throughout the past seventy-five years.

Can Theories be Refuted? Sandra Harding, 1975-12-31. According to a view assumed by many scientists and philosophers of science and standardly found in science textbooks, it is controlled experience which provides the basis for distinguishing between acceptable and unacceptable theories in science; acceptable theories are those which can pass empirical tests. It has often been thought that a certain sort of test is particularly significant: crucial experiments provide supporting empirical evidence for one theory while providing conclusive evidence against another. However, in 1906 Pierre Duhem argued that the falsification of a theory is necessarily ambiguous and therefore that there are no crucial experiments; one can never be sure that it is a given theory rather than auxiliary or background hypotheses which experiment has falsified. W. V. Quine has concurred in this judgment, arguing that our statements about the external world face the tribunal of sense experience not individually but only as a corporate body. Some philosophers have thought that the Duhem-Quine thesis gratuitously raises perplexities. Others see it as doubly significant: these philosophers think that it provides a base for criticism of the foundational view of knowledge which has dominated much of western thought since Descartes, and they think that it opens the door to a new and fruitful way to conceive of scientific progress in particular and of the nature and growth of knowledge in general.
