The Trouble with Passion Erin Cech, 2021-11-09 Probing the ominous side of career advice to follow your passion this data driven study explains how the passion principle fails us and perpetuates inequality by class gender and race and it suggests how we can reconfigure our relationships to paid work Follow your passion is a popular mantra for career decision making in the United States Passion seeking seems like a promising path for avoiding the potential drudgery of a life of paid work but this passion principle seductive as it is does not universally translate The Trouble with Passion reveals the significant downside of the passion principle the concept helps culturally legitimize and reproduce an exploited overworked white collar labor force and broadly serves to reinforce class race and gender segregation and inequality Grounding her investigation in the paradoxical tensions between capitalism's demand for ideal workers and our cultural expectations for self expression sociologist Erin A Cech draws on interviews that follow students from college into the workforce surveys of US workers and experimental data to explain why the passion principle is such an attractive if deceptive career decision making mantra particularly for the college educated Passion seeking presumes middle class safety nets and springboards and penalizes first generation and working class young adults who seek passion without them The ripple effects of this mantra undermine the promise of college as a tool for social and economic mobility The passion principle also feeds into a culture of overwork encouraging white collar workers to tolerate precarious employment and gladly sacrifice time money and leisure for work they are passionate about And potential employers covet but won't compensate passion among job applicants This

Passion for Work Robert J. Vallerand, Nathalie Houliort, 2019-05-31 Passion is a pervasive concept in the work domain. Workers aspire to be passionate in the hope of finding meaning and satisfaction from their professional life while employers dream of passionate employees who will ensure organizational performance. Does passion for work matter? Does passion invariably bring about the anticipated positive outcomes or is there a darker side to passion for work that can also lead to negative outcomes for individuals and organizations? The goal of this book is to address these issues. This volume reviews major theories of work passion focusing specifically on the dominant theory, the Dualistic Model of Passion. This theory distinguishes between two types of passion: harmonious and obsessive, and their associated determinants and consequences. This volume provides a comprehensive understanding of passion for work by addressing the origin of the concept and its theoretical issues: how can passion for work be developed? what are the consequences to be expected at the individual and organizational levels and how can passion for work shed new light on contemporary issues in the workplace? Passion for Work: Theory, Research, and Applications synthesizes a vast body of existing research in the area, provides insights into new and exciting research avenues, and explores how passion for work can be cultivated in work settings in order to fulfill both workers' and employers' hopes for a productive and satisfying work life.

Zilch Nancy Lublin, 2010-06-24 A leading not-for-profit CEO on smart ways companies can cut costs while improving results. As CEO of the youth volunteering organization Do Something, Nancy Lublin has overseen its dramatic growth since 2003. She helped it evolve from a debt-ridden stodgy not-for-profit to a fast-moving buzz-driven magnet for teens. Do Something now draws more than one million monthly hits on its Web site while dispensing millions in grant money to young people with good ideas and a hunger to help others. Lublin now shows why the best not-for-profits are brilliant at doing more with less and what the mainstream business world can learn from them, especially in tough times. For instance, organizations like Do Something are tops at motivating people with nonfinancial incentives and doing effective grassroots marketing on a shoestring budget. Lublin's book distills the best lessons and stories from her career and includes interviews with other leaders of flourishing not-for-profits such as Wendy Kopp of Teach for America, Adam Sterling of Save Darfur, and John Lilly of Mozilla.
