Syrian Episodes John W. Borneman, 2007-02-26 When Princeton anthropologist John Borneman arrived in Syria's second largest city in 2004 as a visiting Fulbright professor he took up residence in what many consider a rogue state on the frontline of a clash of civilizations between the Orient and the West Hoping to understand intimate interactions of religious political and familial authority in this secular republic Borneman spent much time among different men observing and becoming part of their everyday lives Syrian Episodes is the striking result Recounting his experience of living and lecturing in Aleppo Syria's second largest city John Borneman offers deft first person stories of the longings and discontents expressed by Syrian sons and fathers as well as a prescient analysis of the precarious power held by the regime its relation to domestic authority and the conditions of its demise Combining literary imagination and anthropological insight the book's discrete narratives converge in an unforgettable portrait of contemporary culture in Aleppo We read of romantic seductions rumors of spying the play of light in rooms the bargaining of tourists in bazaars and an attack of wild dogs With unflinching honesty and frequent humor Borneman describes his encounters with students and teachers customers and merchants and women and families many of whom are as intrigued with the anthropologist as he is with them Refusing to patronize those he meets or to minimize his differences with them Borneman provokes his interlocutors teasing out unexpected confidences comic responses and mutual misunderstandings He engages the curiosity and desire of encounter and the possibility of ethical conduct that is willing to expose cultural differences Combining literary imagination and anthropological insight Syrian Episodes offers an unforgettable portrait of contemporary culture in Aleppo

Wombs and Alien Spirits Janice Boddy, 1989-12-01 Based on nearly two years of ethnographic fieldwork in a Muslim village in northern Sudan Wombs and Alien Spirits explores the z r cult the most widely practiced traditional healing cult in Africa Adherents of the cult are usually women with marital or fertility problems who are possessed by spirits very different from their own proscribed roles as mothers Through the woman the spirit makes demands upon her husband and family and makes provocative comments on village issues such as the increasing influence of formal Islam or encroaching Western economic domination In accommodating the spirits the women are able metaphorically to reformulate everyday discourse to portray consciousness of their own subordination Janice Boddy examines the moral universe of the village discussing female circumcision personhood kinship and bodily integrity then describes the workings of the cult and the effect of possession on the lives of men as well as women She suggests that spirit possession is a feminist discourse though a veiled and allegorical one on women's objectification and subordination Additionally the spirit world acts as a foil for village life in the context of rapid historical change and as such provides a focus for cultural resistance that is particularly though not exclusively relevant to women

Ancestor Christology Cletus Chukwuemeka Nwaogwugwu, 2011-01-07 The study of the application of the title ancestor to Christ permits the author to delve into the Christological reflection in Africa today through one of the principal ways. At play here is the inculturation of the faith which cannot be fully achieved without a process of theological assimilation of the fundamental parameters in the African life. The thesis therefore is not only limited to a mere description of the contemporary panorama in that respect but attempts to offer a theological evaluation of the real expressive capacity of the title as it has been proposed. The criterion used is therefore double. In the first place the thesis tried to show that the human and the divine natures of Jesus Christ can be maintained in such a way that there is no rupture with the great tradition of the Christological councils. In the second place if it is capable of responding to demands of Christology from above and from below. In all this however the horizon of the debate is not occidental exegetical investigation well known by the author but from the theological ambient of sub Saharan world. The conclusion is positive pondering the terms involved. The work can be of great use in the christoological endeavors of contemporary Africa as well for those who desire to delve into it. Don Alfonso Carrasco Rouco director of the thesis and now Bishop of the Diocese of Lugo Spain. The work of Don Cletus Chukwuemeka contains a clear description of what we may call African traditional religiosity as well as the theological efforts to inject Christianity into this cultural and religious tradition. The central point of these efforts revolves around the understanding of Christ. The most original aspect of this work is in the critical recourse to the figure of the ancestor or proto ancestor to present the identity of Christ in a way that is faithful to the Church tradition and at the same time significant for the religious and cultural tradition of Africa. Dr Don Gerardo del Pozo Abejn Censor of the thesis.

People as Subject, People as Object Virginia R. Domínguez, 1989 Nationalism and the Politics of Culture in Quebec Richard Handler, 1988

Richard Handler's pathbreaking study of nationalistic politics in Quebec is a striking and successful example of the new experimental type of ethnography interdisciplinary in nature and intensively concerned with rhetoric and not only of anthropologists but also of scholars in a wide range of fields and it is likely to stir sharp controversy. Bringing together methodologies of history sociology political science and philosophy as well as anthropology Handler centers on the period 1976-1984 during which the independantiste Parti Québécois was in control of the provincial government and nationalistic sentiment was especially strong. Handler draws on historical and archival research and on interviews with Quebec and Canadian government officials as he addresses the central question. Given the similarities between the epistemologies of both anthropology and nationalist ideology how can one write an ethnography of nationalism that does not simply reproduce and thereby endorse nationalistic beliefs. Handler analyzes various responses to the nationalist vision of a threatened existence. He examines cultural tourism ideology of the Quebec government legislations concerning historical preservation language legislation and policies towards immigrants and cultural minorities. He concludes with a thoughtful meditation on the futility of nationalisms.

Reading Ethnography David Jacobson, 1991-01-01 This book presents a model for analyzing and evaluating ethnographic arguments. It examines the relationship between the claims anthropologists make about human behavior and the data they use to warrant them Jacobson analyzes the textual organization of ethnographies focusing on the ways in which problems interpretations and data are put together He examines in detail a limited number of well known ethnographic cases which are selected to illustrate basic theoretical frameworks and modes of analysis By advancing a method for assessing ethnographic accounts the book contributes to the current debate on the role of rhetoric and reflexivity in anthropology

The Lost Drum James F. embarrassing powers of extensibility intrude themselves into people's desire to swallow other objects, organs, persons, and discourses. Introduction. Paper edition. Unseen. 1995. Annotation copyright by Book News, Inc., Portland, OR.

When Men are Women John Colman Wood, 1999 In this fascinating exploration of the cultural models of manhood, When Men are Women examines the unique world of the nomadic Gabra people, a camel herding society in northern Kenya. Gabra men denigrate women and feminine things yet regard their most prestigious men as women. As they grow older, all Gabra men become dabella, or ritual experts who have feminine identities. Wood's study draws from structuralism, psychoanalytic theory, and anthropology to probe the meaning of opposition and ambivalence in Gabra society. When Men are Women provides a multifaceted view of gender as a cultural construction independent of sex but nevertheless fundamentally related to it. By turning men into women, the Gabra confront the dilemmas and ambiguities of social life. Wood demonstrates that the Gabra can provide illuminating insight into our own culture's understanding of gender and its function in society.

Not Just Child's Play Felicia R. McMahon, 2009-10-20 Winner of the 2008 Chicago Folklore Prize, Felicia R. McMahon breaks new ground in the presentation and analysis of emerging traditions of the Lost Boys, a group of parentless youths who fled Sudan under tragic circumstances in the 1990s. With compelling insight, McMahon analyzes the oral traditions of the DiDinga Lost Boys, about whom very little is known. Her vibrant ethnography provides intriguing details about the performances and conversations of the young DiDinga in Syracuse, New York. It also offers important insights to scholars and others who work with refugee groups. The author argues that the playful traditions she describes constitute a strategy by which these young men proudly position themselves as preservers of DiDinga culture and as harbingers of social change rather than as victims of war. Drawing ideas from folklore, linguistics, drama, and play theory, the author documents the danced songs of this unique group. Her inclusion of original song lyrics translated by the singers and descriptions of conversations convey the voices of the young men. Well researched and carefully developed, this book makes an original contribution to our understanding of refugee populations and tells a compelling story at the same time.

Articulating Islam: Anthropological Approaches to Muslim Worlds Magnus Marsden, Konstantinos Retsikas, 2012-11-08 This collection of arresting and innovative chapters applies the techniques of anthropology in analyzing the role played by Islam in the social lives of the world's Muslims. The volume begins with an introduction that sets out a powerful case for a fresh approach to this kind of research, exhorting anthropologists to pause and reflect on when Islam is and is not a central feature of their informants' life worlds and identities. The chapters that follow are written by scholars with long-term specialist research experience in Muslim societies ranging from Kenya to Pakistan and from Yemen to China; thus they explore and compare Islam's social significance in a variety of settings that are not confined to the Middle East or South Asia alone. The authors assess how helpful current anthropological research is in shedding light on Islam's relationship to contemporary societies Collectively the contributors deploy both theoretical and ethnographic analysis of key developments in the anthropology of Islam over the last 30 years even as they extrapolate their findings to address wider debates over the anthropology of world religions more generally Crucially they also tackle the thorny question of how in the current political context anthropologists might continue conducting sensitive and nuanced work with Muslim communities Finally an afterword by a scholar of Christianity explores the conceptual parallels between the book's key themes and the anthropology of world religions in a broader context This volume has key contemporary relevance for example its conclusions on the fluidity of people's relations with Islam will provide an important counterpoint to many commonly held assumptions about the incontestability of Islam in the public sphere

Playing Different Games

Dereje Feyissa, 2011-07-01 Focusing on ethnicity and its relation to conflict this book goes beyond sterile debates about whether ethnic identities are natural or socially constructed Rather ethnic identity takes different forms Some ethnic boundaries are perceived by the actors themselves as natural while others are perceived to be permeable The argument is substantiated through a comparative analysis of ethnic identity formation and ethnic conflict among the Anywaa and the Nuer in the Gambella region of western Ethiopia The Anywaa and the Nuer are not just two ethnic groups but two kinds of ethnic groups Conflicts between the Anywaa and Nuer are explained with reference to three variables varying modes of identity formation competition over resources and differential incorporation into the state system
