Contemporary Cambodian, the Social Institutions, a Joint Project of the Foreign Service Institute and the Defense Language Institute, 1974 United States. Department of State, 1974      Comparative Literature and the Historical Imaginary Kaisa Kaakinen, 2017-06-12 This book argues that increasingly transnational reading contexts of the twenty-first century place new pressures on fundamental questions about how we read literary fiction Prompted by the stylistic strategies of three European migrant writers of the twentieth century Conrad Weiss and Sebald it demonstrates the need to pose more differentiated questions about specific effects that occur when literary narratives meet a readership with a heterogeneous historical imaginary In conversation with reception theory trauma theory and transnational and postcolonial studies the study shows how historical pressures in the twentieth and twenty first centuries require comparative literature to address not only implied but also various unimplied reading positions that engage history in displaced yet material ways This book opens new analytical paths for thinking about literary texts as media of historical imagination and conceiving relations between incommensurable historical events and contexts Challenging overly global and overly local readings alike the book presents a sophisticated contribution to discussions on how to reform the discipline of comparative literature in the twenty first century

Contemporary Cambodian, the Social Institutions Lim Hak Kheang, Madeline Elizabeth Ehrman, Kem Sos, 1974 Angkor Wat Luke Kurtis, 2017-08-04 In 1963 Allen Ginsberg traveled to Cambodia and visited the ancient Khmer temples He wrote Angkor Wat an eponymous poem about the temple complex It was a very different time pre Vietnam War pre Khmer Rouge and before the bustling tourism trade that is now the lifeblood of Siem Reap Yet the Angkor Wat temples themselves remain a unique source of inspiration for poets and photographers who travel there from all over the world Over half a century later Angkor Wat by Luke Kurtis is both the artist's homage to Ginsberg's text as well a celebration of his own pilgrimages to the ancient city Published in 1968 Ginsberg's Angkor Wat book was a single long poem accompanied by photographs by Alexandra Lawrence Kurtis's book is a suite of poems paired with his original photography Chronicling the poet's own travels where he explored mythical stories and experienced mystical visions Kurtis's poems take you on a tour of Angkor Wat and beyond unlike any other and tell the story of one American poet deepening his Buddhist spirituality Minerva, 1995

Disorientation Karl Ashoka Britto, 2004-04-01 This book explores literary representations of cultural hybridity spanning nearly half a century a period marked by major shifts in Franco Vietnamese relations How can identity be thought and represented outside of the oppositional categories that divide cultures histories languages and races Can the intercultural subject be understood as more than a site of cultural contestation as anything other than a confrontation between incompatible binary opposites This book offers compelling responses to these questions through a series of close readings of francophone novels written by Vietnamese authors during and just after the colonial period While many contemporary studies of cultural hybridity tend to privilege the postmodern deconstructive play of postcolonial identities Disorientation seeks to uncover what is often obscured in such celebratory analyses the rigid and potentially traumatic conditions under which colonized subjects experienced the tensions and contradictions of intercultural identity The close readings that form the core of the book are inflected by cultural and historical considerations and informed by a range of primary documents that includes training manuals for colonial administrators works of imperialist propaganda tourist guidebooks and travel writing and textbooks from Franco Vietnamese schools These contextualized analyses recast the problem of interculturality in an Asian francophone context expanding the historical and cultural fields within which questions of identity and difference are currently discussed and offering a striking perspective from which to question postcolonial theories of hybridity
