

A photograph of a rocky coastline. The foreground and middle ground are dominated by dark, layered rock formations, likely sedimentary. The rocks are wet and have a glossy sheen. In the background, the ocean is visible, with white-capped waves breaking against the shore. A person is standing on a rock in the middle ground, looking out towards the sea. The person is wearing a yellow jacket and dark pants. The overall scene is dramatic and scenic.

Passion For Wildlife The History Of The Canadian Wildlife Service:

A Passion for Wildlife J. Alexander Burnett, 2011-11-01 A Passion for Wildlife chronicles the history of the Canadian Wildlife Service and the evolution of Canadian wildlife policy over its first half century. It presents the exploits and accomplishments of a group of men and women whose dedication to the ideals of science conservation and a shared vision of Canada as a country that treasures its natural heritage has earned them the respect of their profession around the world. Drawing on interviews and anecdotes, personal correspondence and the published record, the book addresses topics as varied as game law enforcement, field biology, habitat conservation, environmental education, toxicology, federal-provincial relations and international diplomacy. Accessible to anyone interested in nature, it will appeal particularly to wildlife managers, scientists, naturalists as well as students of biology, wildlife technology and environmental studies. An Environmental History of Canada Laurel Sefton MacDowell, 2012-07-31 Traces how Canada's colonial and national development contributed to modern environmental problems such as urban sprawl, the collapse of fisheries and climate change. Includes over 200 photographs, maps, figures and sidebar discussions on key figures, concepts and cases. Offers concise definitions of environmental concepts. Ties Canadian history to issues relevant to contemporary society. Introduces students to a new dynamic approach to the past. Throughout history, most people have associated northern North America with wilderness, with abundant fish and game, snow-capped mountains and endless forest and prairie. Canada's contemporary picture gallery, however, contains more disturbing images: deforested mountains, empty fisheries and melting ice caps. Adopting both a chronological and thematic approach, Laurel MacDowell examines human interactions with the land and the origins of our current environmental crisis, from first peoples to the Kyoto Protocol. This richly illustrated exploration of the past from an environmental perspective will change the way Canadians and others around the world think about and look at Canada.

The Subjugation of Canadian Wildlife Max Foran, 2018-04-10 Hardly a day goes by without news of the extinction or endangerment of yet another animal species, followed by urgent but largely unheeded calls for action. An eloquent denunciation of the failures of Canada's government and society to protect wildlife from human exploitation, Max Foran's The Subjugation of Canadian Wildlife argues that a root cause of wildlife depletions and habitat loss is the culturally ingrained beliefs that underpin management practices and policies. Tracing the evolution of the highly contestable assumptions that define the human-wildlife relationship, Foran stresses the price wild animals pay for human self-interest. Using several examples of government oversight at the federal, provincial and territorial levels, from the Species at Risk Act to the Biodiversity Strategy, Protected Areas Network and provincial management plans, this volume shows that wildlife policies are as much or more about human needs, priorities and profit as they are about preservation. Challenging established concepts, including ecological integrity, adaptive management, sport hunting as conservation and the flawed belief that wildlife is a renewable resource, the author compels us to recognize animals as sentient individuals and as integral components of complex ecological systems A passionate critique of contemporary wildlife policy The Subjugation of Canadian Wildlife calls for belief change as the best hope for an ecologically healthy wildlife rich Canada A Passion for Wildlife James Alexander Burnett, Anthony J. Erskine, Ottawa Field-Naturalists' Club, 1999 The Game of Conservation Mark Cioc, 2009-11-15 The Game of Conservation is a brilliantly crafted and highly readable examination of nature protection around the world Twentieth century nature conservation treaties often originated as attempts to regulate the pace of killing rather than as attempts to protect animal habitat Some were prompted by major breakthroughs in firearm techniques such as the invention of the elephant gun and grenade harpoons but agricultural development was at least as important as hunting regulations in determining the fate of migratory species The treaties had many defects yet they also served the goal of conservation to good effect often saving key species from complete extermination and sometimes keeping the population numbers at viable levels It is because of these treaties that Africa is dotted with large national parks that North America has an extensive network of bird refuges and that there are any whales left in the oceans All of these treaties are still in effect today and all continue to influence nature protection efforts around the globe Drawing on a wide variety of primary and secondary sources Mark Cioc shows that a handful of treaties all designed to protect the world's most commercially important migratory species have largely shaped the contours of global nature conservation over the past century The scope of the book ranges from the African savannahs and the skies of North America to the frigid waters of the Antarctic

Hunting for Empire Greg Gillespie, 2011-11-01 Hunting for Empire offers a fresh cultural history of sport and imperialism Greg Gillespie integrates critical perspectives from cultural studies literary criticism and cultural geography to analyze the themes of authorship sport science and nature In doing so he produces a unique theoretical lens through which to study nineteenth century British big game hunting and exploration narratives from the western interior of Rupert's Land Sharply written and evocatively illustrated Hunting for Empire will appeal to students and scholars of culture sport geography and history and to general readers interested in stories of hunting empire and the Canadian wilderness The Canadian Environment in Political Context, Second Edition Andrea Olive, 2019-08-20 The Canadian Environment in Political Context uses a non technical approach to introduce environmental politics to undergraduate readers The second edition features expanded chapters on wildlife water pollution land and energy Beginning with a brief synopsis of environmental quality across Canada the text moves on to examine political institutions and policymaking the history of environmentalism in Canada and other crucial issues including Indigenous peoples and the environment as well as Canada's North Enhanced with case studies key words and a comprehensive glossary Olive's book addresses the major environmental concerns and challenges that Canada faces in the twenty first century The Culture of Hunting in Canada Jean L. Manore, Dale Miner, 2011-11-01 The Culture of Hunting in Canada covers elements of the history of hunting from the pre colonial period until the present in all parts of Canada and features essays by practitioners and scholars of hunting and by pro and anti hunting lobbyists The result crosses the boundaries between scholarship and personal reflection and between academia and advocacy Topics include hunting identities conservation and its relationship to hunting tensions between hunters and non hunters and between Aboriginal and non Aboriginal hunting groups hunting ethics debates over hunting practices and regulations animal rights and gun control This book makes an unprecedented contribution to the study of hunting in Canada and its role in our culture When the Caribou Do Not Come Brenda L. Parlee, Ken J. Caine, 2018-05-23 In the 1990s news stories began to circulate about declining caribou populations in the North Were caribou the canary in the coal mine for climate change or did declining numbers reflect overharvesting by Indigenous hunters or failed attempts at scientific wildlife management Grounded in community based research in northern Canada a region in the forefront of co management efforts these collected stories and essays bring to the fore the insights of the Inuvialuit Gwich'in and Saht'ot'ine people for whom caribou stewardship has been a way of life for centuries Anthropologists historians political scientists ecologists and sociologists join forces with elders and community leaders to discuss four themes the cultural significance of caribou caribou ecology food security and caribou management Together they bring to light past challenges and explore new opportunities for respecting northern communities cultures and economies and for refocusing caribou management on the knowledge practices and beliefs of northern Indigenous peoples Ultimately When the Caribou Do Not Come drives home the important role that Indigenous knowledge must play in understanding and coping with our changing Arctic ecosystems and in building resilient adaptive communities Taking the Air Paul Kopas, 2007-12-01 In Taking the Air Paul Kopas takes a comprehensive approach to the policy aspects of the management of parks and protected areas He scrutinizes the policy making process for national parks since the mid 1950s and interrogates the rationale and policies that have governed their administration He argues that national parks and park policy reflect not only environmental concerns but also the political and social attitudes of bureaucrats citizens interest groups Aboriginal peoples and legal authorities He explores how the goals of each group have been shaped by the historical context of park policy influencing the shape and weight of their contributions The Real Thing Briony Penn, 2015 A biography of Canadian biologist educator and conservationist Ian McTaggart Cowan Wildlife, Conservation, and Conflict in Quebec, 1840-1914 Darcy Ingram, 2013-04-29 Despite the popular assumption that wildlife conservation is a recent phenomenon it emerged over a century and a half ago in an era more closely associated with wildlife depletion than preservation In Wildlife Conservation and Conflict in Quebec Darcy Ingram explores the combination of NGOs fish and game clubs and state administered leases that formed the basis of a unique system of wildlife conservation in North America Inspired by a longstanding belief in progress improvement and social order based on European as well as North American models this system effectively privatized Quebec's fish and game resources often to the detriment of commercial and subsistence hunters and fishers Canada and Arctic North America Graeme Wynn, 2006-11-10 This comprehensive treatment of the environmental history of northern North America offers a compelling account of the complex encounters of people technology culture and ecology that shaped modern day Canada and Alaska From the arrival of the earliest humans to the very latest scientific controversies the environmental history of Canada and Arctic North America is dramatic diverse and crucial for the very survival of the human race Packed with key facts and analysis this expert guide explores the complex interplay between human societies and the environment from the Aleutian Islands to the Grand Banks and from the Great Lakes to the Arctic Islands How has the challenging environment of America s most northerly regions with some areas still dominated by native peoples helped shape politics and trade What have been the consequences of European contact with this region and its indigenous inhabitants How did natives and newcomers cope with and change this vast and forbidding territory Can a perspective on the past help us in grappling with the conflict between oil exploration and wilderness preservation on the North Slope of Alaska Part of ABC CLIO s Nature and Human Societies series this unique work charts the region s environmental history from prehistory to modern times and is essential reading for students and experts alike

Seeking Refuge Robert M Wilson,2011-07-01 Each fall and spring millions of birds travel the Pacific Flyway the westernmost of the four major North American bird migration routes The landscapes they cross vary from wetlands to farmland to concrete inhabited not only by wildlife but also by farmers suburban families and major cities In the twentieth century farmers used the wetlands to irrigate their crops transforming the landscape and putting migratory birds at risk The U S Fish and Wildlife Service responded by establishing a series of refuges that stretched from northern Washington to southern California What emerged from these efforts was a hybrid environment where the distinctions between irrigated farms and wildlife refuges blurred Management of the refuges was fraught with conflicting priorities and practices Farmers and refuge managers harassed birds with shotguns and flares to keep them off private lands and government pilots took to the air dropping hand grenades among flocks of geese and herding the startled birds into nearby refuges Such actions masked the growing connections between refuges and the land around them Seeking Refuge examines the development and management of refuges in the wintering range of migratory birds along the Pacific Flyway Although this is a history of efforts to conserve migratory birds the story Robert Wilson tells has considerable salience today Many of the key places migratory birds use the Klamath Basin California s Central Valley the Salton Sea are sites of recent contentious debates over water use Migratory birds connect and depend on these landscapes and farmers face pressure as water is reallocated from irrigation to other purposes In a time when global warming promises to compound the stresses on water and migratory species Seeking Refuge demonstrates the need to foster landscapes where both wildlife and people can thrive

Literature, Science, and Animal Advocacy in Canada Candice Allmark-Kent,2023-11-26 Literature Science and Animal Advocacy in Canada Practical Zoocriticism is the first book length study of animals in Canadian literature Using a historical approach it offers a much needed alternative to existing models of animals as symbols of Canadian victimhood Spanning more than a century the scope of this book includes classic writers Ernest Thompson Seton and Charles G D Roberts as well as popular contemporary authors such as Barbara Gowdy Yann Martel Margaret Atwood and many others By recontextualizing these works with closer attention to contemporary scientific and animal advocacy debates this book offers a fresh new perspective on a wide range of texts

Environmental Contaminants in Biota W. Nelson Beyer, James P. Meador, 2011-02-23 Examining tissue residues of contaminants in biota reveals the movement of contaminants within organisms and through food chains as well as the context for understanding and quantifying injuries to organisms and their communities Yet tissue concentrations of some contaminants are especially challenging to interpret and the ability of today's analytical chemists to provide reliable analytical data of most important environmental contaminants often surpasses the ability of ecotoxicologists to interpret those data Offering guidance on the ecotoxicologically meaningful interpretation of tissue concentrations Environmental Contaminants in Biota Interpreting Tissue Concentrations Second Edition is updated with current data and new ways of analyzing those data as well as additional contaminants not previously considered Beginning with a history of wildlife toxicology and data interpretation chapters cover a wide range of contaminants and their hazardous and lethal concentrations in various animals including DDT Dioxins PCBs and PBDEs in aquatic organisms methylmercury selenium and trace metals in fishes and aquatic invertebrates and pharmaceuticals and organic contaminants in marine mammals The book considers the impact of Polychlorinated Biphenyls Dibenzo p Dioxins and Dibenzofurans and Polybrominated Diphenyl Ethers cyclodiene and other organochlorine pesticides in birds and mammals Later chapters examine the effects and analysis of lead cadmium and radionuclides in biota With thousands of published research papers reporting tissue concentrations each year Environmental Contaminants in Biota Interpreting Tissue Concentrations Second Edition gives ecotoxicologists the ability to draw actionable value regarding the toxicological consequences of those concentrations and relate tissue concentrations quantitatively to injury the core of ecotoxicology

More Than Birds Val Shushkewich, 2012-11-17 The fascinating development of natural history studies in North America is portrayed through the life stories of 22 naturalists The hope is that once people personally encounter the natural world and become aware of its intricacy fragility beauty and significance they will recognize the need for conservation

Against the Tides Ronald Rudin, 2021-11-15 For four centuries dykes held back the largest tides in the world in the Bay of Fundy region of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia These dykes turned salt marsh into arable land and made farming possible but by the 1940s they had fallen into disrepair Against the Tides is the never before told story of the Maritime Marshland Rehabilitation Administration MMRA a federal agency created in 1948 to reshape the landscape Although agency engineers often borrowed from long standing dykeland practices they were so convinced of their own expertise that they sometimes disregarded local conditions marginalizing farmers in the process The engineers hubris resulted in tidal dams that compromised some of the region's rivers leaving behind environmental damage This book is a vivid richly detailed account of a distinctive landscape and its occupants revealing the push pull of local and expert knowledge and the role of the state in the postwar era The Beaver Hills Country Graham MacDonald, 2009 This book explores a relatively small but interesting and anomalous region of Alberta between the North Saskatchewan and the Battle Rivers Ecological themes such as climatic cycles ground water availability vegetation succession and the response of wildlife and the impact of fires shape the possibilities and provide the challenges to those who have called the region home or used its varied resources Indians Metis and European immigrants
