Passion Society:

A Passion for Society Iain Wilkinson, Arthur Kleinman, 2016-01-26 What does human suffering mean for society And how has this meaning changed from the past to the present In what ways does the problem of suffering serve to inspire us to care for others How does our response to suffering reveal our moral and social conditions In this trenchant work Arthur Kleinman a renowned figure in medical anthropology and Iain Wilkinson an award winning sociologist team up to offer some answers to these profound questions A Passion for Society investigates the historical development and current state of social science with a focus on how this development has been shaped in response to problems of social suffering Following a line of criticism offered by key social theorists and cultural commentators who themselves were unhappy with the professionalization of social science Wilkinson and Kleinman provide a critical commentary on how studies of society have moved from an original concern with social suffering and its amelioration to dispassionate inquiries The authors demonstrate how social action through caring for others is revitalizing and remaking the discipline of social science and they examine the potential for achieving greater understanding through a moral commitment to the practice of care for others In this deeply considered work Wilkinson and Kleinman argue for an engaged social science that connects critical thought with social action that seeks to learn through caregiving and that operates with a commitment to establish and sustain humane forms of society

The Psychology of Passion Dr Robert J. Vallerand, 2015-05-01 Winner of the 2017 APA William James Book Award The concept of passion is one we regularly use to describe our interests and yet there is no broad theory that can explain the development and consequences of passion for activities across people's lives In The Psychology of Passion Robert J Vallerand presents the first such theory providing a complete presentation of the Dualistic Model of Passion and the empirical evidence that supports it Vallerand conceives of two types of passion harmonious passion which remains under the person's control and obsessive passion which controls the person While the first typically leads to adaptive behaviors the obsessive form of passion leads to less adaptive and at times maladaptive behaviors Vallerand highlights the effects of these two types of passion on a number of psychological phenomena such as cognition emotions performance relationships aggression and violence He also discusses the development of passion and reviews a range of literature on passion for activities

The Ruling Passion Christopher Lane, 1995 In The Ruling Passion Christopher Lane examines the relationship between masculinity homosexual desire and empire in British colonialist and imperialist fictions at the turn of the twentieth century Questioning the popular assumption that Britain's empire functioned with symbolic efficiency on sublimated desire this book presents a counterhistory of the empire's many layers of conflict and ambivalence Through attentive readings of sexual and political allegory in the work of Kipling Forster James Beerbohm Firbank and others and deft use of psychoanalytic theory The Ruling Passion interprets turbulent scenes of masculine identification and pleasure power and mastery intimacy and antagonism By foregrounding the shattering effects of male homosexuality and interracial desire and by insisting on the centrality of unconscious fantasy and the death drive The Ruling Passion examines the startling recurrence of colonial failure in narratives of symbolic doubt and ontological crisis Lane argues compellingly that Britain can progress culturally and politically only when it has relinquished its residual fantasies of global mastery

The Trouble With Passion Cheryl Hall,2013-01-22 Political theorists have long argued that passion has no place in the political realm where reason reigns supreme But is this dichotomy between reason and passion sustainable Does it underestimate the indispensable role of passion in a fully democratic society Drawing upon Plato Rousseau and contemporary feminist theorists Cheryl Hall argues that passion is an essential component of a just political community and that the need to educate passion together with reason is paramount Trouble with Passion provides a compelling defense of the crucial place of passion in politics

Solomon,2003-01-30 The idea that we are in some significant sense responsible for our emotions is an idea that Robert Solomon has developed for almost three decades Here in a single volume he traces the development of this theory of emotions and elaborate it in detail Two themes run through his work the first presents a cognitive theory of emotions in which emotions are construed primarily as evaluative judgments The second proposes an existentialist perspective in which he defends the idea that as we are responsible for our emotions Indeed sometimes it even makes sense to say that we choose them While the first claim has gained increasing currency in the literature his claim about responsibility for emotions has continued to meet with considerable resistance and misinterpretation The new emphasis on evolutionary biology and neurology has mistakenly reinforced the popular prejudice that emotions happen to us and are entirely beyond our control This volume is also a kind of intellectual memoir of Solomon's own development as a thinker The essays written in the 1980s elaborate the themes of the intentionality of emotion and the claim that emotions are judgments in this period he is also increasingly preoccupied with how emotions vary and are identified in a variety of cultures In the 1990 s his interests evolve to consider the social and political role of emotions and theories about emotion The final section presents his current philosophical position on the seeming passivity of the passions Despite his own critical assessment of his earlier work he continues to argue that in the final analysis we are responsible for our emotions and existential quality of our lives

Cultural Passions Elizabeth Wilson,2013-05-28 Elizabeth Wilson is one of our most radical cultural critics In Cultural Passions she transcends the division between high and low culture exploring the emotional commitment people bring to the books performances objects and rituals in which they find meaning and challenging an enduring suspicion of the pleasure of the aesthetic Ranging from Marcel Proust to tarot readings from urban planning to interiors Elizabeth Wilson investigates an underlying Puritanism in critical commentary on matters as wide ranging as Roger Federer and C S Lewis Surrealism and fashion and the relationship of religion to fan culture She questions why pleasure appears suspect even as consumer society incites it and turns life into entertainment She questions why there is such fear of elitism when at the same time the fans of mass culture are held in contempt Subverting conventional views her oblique point of view provides startling insights on both familiar and marginal cultural experiences

The Eclectic Magazine John Holmes Agnew,Walter

Hilliard Bidwell,1844 The Sublime Andrew Ashfield,Peter de Bolla,1996-08-15 This collection of texts on the Sublime provides the historical context for the foundation and discussion of one of the most important aesthetic debates of the Enlightenment The significance of the Sublime in the eighteenth century ranged across a number of fields literary criticism empirical psychology political economy connoisseurship landscape design and aesthetics painting and the fine arts and moral philosophy and has continued to animate aesthetic and theoretical debates to this day However the unavailability of many of the crucial texts of the founding tradition has resulted in a conception of the Sublime often limited to the definitions of its most famous theorist Edmund Burke Andrew Ashfield and Peter de Bolla s anthology which includes an introduction and notes to each entry offers students and scholars ready access to a much deeper and more complex tradition of writings on the Sublime many of them never before printed in modern editions Ghosts of Passion Brian D. Bunk,2007-03-28 The question of what caused the Spanish Civil War 1936-39 is the central focus of modern Spanish historiography In Ghosts of Passion Brian D Bunk argues that propaganda related to the revolution of October 1934 triggered the broader conflict by accentuating existing social tensions surrounding religion and gender Through careful analysis of the images produced in books newspapers posters rallies and meetings Bunk contends that Spain s civil war was not inevitable Commemorative imagery produced after October 1934 bridged the gap between rhetoric and action by dehumanizing opponents and encouraging violent action against them In commemorating the uprising revolutionaries and conservatives used the same methods to promote radically different political agendas they deployed religious imagery to characterize the political situation as a battle between good and evil with the fate of the nation hanging in the balance and exploited traditional gender stereotypes to portray themselves as the defenders of social order against chaos The resulting atmosphere of polarization combined with increasing political violence to plunge the country into civil war Imagining Interest in Political Thought Stephen G. Engelmann,2003-09-05 Imagining Interest in Political Thought argues that monistic interest or the shaping and coordination of different pursuits through imagined economies of self and public interest constitutes the end and means of contemporary liberal government The paradigmatic theorist of monistic interest is the English political philosopher Jeremy Bentham 1748-1832 whose concept of utilitarianism calls for maximization of pleasure by both individuals and the state Stephen G Engelmann contends that commentators have too quickly dismissed Bentham s philosophy as a crude materialism with antiliberal tendencies He places Benthamite utilitarianism at the center of his account and in so doing reclaims Bentham for liberal political theory Tracing the development of monistic interest from its origins in Reformation political theory and theology through late twentieth century neoliberalism Engelmann reconceptualizes the history of liberalism as consisting of phases in the history of monistic interest or economic government He describes how monistic interest as formulated by Bentham is made up of the individual s imagined expectations which are constructed by the very regime that maximizes them He asserts that this construction of interests is not the work of a self-serving manipulative state

Rather the state which is itself subject to strict economic regulation is only one cluster of myriad public and private agencies that produce and coordinate expectations In place of a liberal vision in which government appears only as a protector of the free pursuit of interest Engelmann posits that the free pursuit of interest is itself a mode of government one that deploys individual imagination and choice as its agents

Passion for Wine Jean-Charles Boisset, Reason and Passion Michael G. Peletz, 2023-11-15 This book provides a historical and ethnographic examination of gender relations in Malay society in particular in the well known state of Negeri Sembilan famous for its unusual mixture of Islam and matrilineal descent Peletz analyzes the diverse ways in which the evocative heavily gendered symbols of reason and passion are deployed by Malay Muslims Unlike many studies of gender this book elucidates the cultural and political processes implicated in the constitution of both feminine and masculine identity It also scrutinizes the relationship between gender and kinship and weighs the role of ideology in everyday life Peletz insists on the importance of examining gender systems not as social isolates but in relation to other patterns of hierarchy and social difference His study is historical and comparative it also explores the political economy of contested symbols and meanings More than a treatise on gender and social change in a Malay society this book presents a valuable and deeply interesting model for the analysis of gender and culture by addressing issues of hegemony and cultural domination at the heart of contemporary cultural studies This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology This title was originally published in 1996
