Passions We Desire:

Slaves of the Passions Mark Schroeder, 2007-12-13 Long claimed to be the dominant conception of practical reason the Humean theory that reasons for action are instrumental or explained by desires is the basis for a range of worries about the objective prescriptivity of morality As a result it has come under intense attack in recent decades A wide variety of arguments have been advanced which purport to show that it is false or surprisingly even that it is incoherent Slaves of the Passions aims to set the record straight by advancing a version of the Humean theory of reasons which withstands this sophisticated array of objections Mark Schroeder defends a radical new view which if correct means that the commitments of the Humean theory have been widely misunderstood Along the way he raises and addresses questions about the fundamental structure of reasons the nature of normative explanations the aims of and challenges facing reductive views in metaethics the weight of reasons the nature of desire moral epistemology and most importantly the relationship between agent relational and agent neutral reasons for action

God, Technology, and the Christian Life Tony Reinke, 2022 Articulates a true biblical theology of technology weaving extensive biblical texts together with the history and philosophy behind the major technological innovations of history

Hume, Passion, and Action Elizabeth Schmidt Radcliffe, 2018 David Hume's theory of action is well known for several provocative theses including that passion and reason cannot be opposed over the direction of action Elizabeth S Radcliffe defends an original interpretation of Hume's views on passion reason and motivation which is consistent with other theses in Hume's philosophy loyal to his texts and historically situated She challenges the now orthodox interpretation of Hume on motivation presenting an alternative that situates Hume closer to Humeans than many recent interpreters have Part of the strategy is to examine the thinking of the early modern intellectuals to whom Hume responds Most of these thinkers insisted that passions lead us to pursue harmful objects unless regulated by reason and most regarded passions as representations of good and evil which can be false Understanding Hume's response to these claims requires appreciating his respective characterizations of reason and passion The author argues that Hume's thesis that reason is practically impotent apart from passion is about beliefs generated by reason rather than about the capacity of reason Furthermore the argument makes sense of Hume's sometimes ridiculed description of passions as original existences having no reference to objects The author also shows how Hume understood morality as intrinsically motivating while holding that moral beliefs are not themselves motives and why he thought of passions as self-regulating contrary to the admonitions of the rationalists Make Magic of Your Life T. contributed to the book Deleuze and the Passions Ceciel Meiborg (Ed.), Sjoerd van Tuinen, 2016 In recent years the humanities social sciences and neuroscience have witnessed an affective turn especially in discourses around post Fordist labor economic and ecological crises populism and identity politics mental health and political struggle This new awareness would be unthinkable without the pioneering work of Gilles Deleuze who replaced judgment with affect as the very material movement of thought every concept is an affective experience a becoming Besides entirely active affects the highest practice of thought there is no thought without passive affects or passions Instead of a calm and rational philosophy of passions Deleuzian thought is therefore inseparable from isolated and passionate cries that deny what everybody knows and what nobody can deny every true thought is an aggression This inseparability of reason and passion is by no means an anti intellectualist or irrationalist stance Rather it is critical since it protects reason from its self imposed stupidity by relating it to the unthought forces that condition it And it is clinical because thought becomes possessed by a power of selection The purely active i e free floating unrecorded desire is never enough to produce a consistent relation to the future which is why we need the passions to give us an initial orientation to force and enable us to think Passions are the beliefs perceptions representations and opinions that attach us to the world they make up the very material of which our lives and thoughts are composed Instead of truth as the ultimate criterion of judgment the only principle according to which affective becomings can be selected and evaluated is the extent to which they proliferate joy Spinoza and Marx show how the recruitment of desire traditionally takes place through the tyrants and priests who inspire sad passions in us Similarly the work of Deleuze and Guattari on capitalism and schizophrenia can be read as an encyclopedia of the passions that constitute the affective infrastructure of the socius of contemporary capitalism If it takes a lot of inventiveness or imagination to be able to diagnose our present becomings this is because becomings are always composites of joyful and sad passions Capitalism could not exist if it did not also inspire happiness love courage and perhaps even beatitude That is why today we witness the spectacle of the happily dominated Fr d ric Lordon of the self entrepreneur the managerial class the flex worker the citizen consumer the bean roasting hipster and the self managed team It is within this field of contradictory and heterogeneous passions that the authors of this volume pursue the diagnosis of our past and present becomings Their contributions add up to a systematic taxonomy of the passions and indicate their importance for a thinking that reaches beyond itself
