Fischer's Choice Martin Meredith, 2015-02-10 Martin Meredith documents the remarkable life of Bram Fischer in his biography Fischer's Choice Fischer was born into an aristocratic Afrikaans family but became one of South Africa's leading revolutionaries Regarded in his youth as having a brilliant career ahead of him he rebelled not only against the apartheid system but also against his own Afrikaner people As a defence lawyer Fischer managed to save Mandela from the death penalty demanded by state prosecutors for his sabotage activities He played a remarkable role in the underground movement aimed at overthrowing the government To the very last even when all the other conspirators had been arrested or fled into exile Fischer held out sought for months by the security police His single handed efforts ended inevitably in failure Sentenced to life imprisonment he was cast into solitary confinement the government continued to regard him as a potentially dangerous influence even when he was dying of cancer refusing all appeals to release him until the last few weeks of his life Set against the dramatic background of two massive historical struggles one by the Afrikaans the other by the Africans Fischer's life contains all the ingredients of a political thriller

The Carter Presidency John Dumbrell, 1993 Examines President Jimmy Carter's human rights policies both at home and abroad and tests the record of his presidency against the competence and compassion theme sounded by him in the 1976 campaign Dumbrell argues that Carter was neither incompetent nor lacking in a compassionate vision

Cold War and Black Liberation Thomas J. Noer, 1985 For too long Africa has been the dark continent in the history of American foreign relations Recent debate over the importance of human rights however has focused attention on that continent Thomas Noer's study of U S policy toward the regimes of South Africa Rhodesia and Angola is among the first to explore the African angle in American diplomacy It is also the first work to analyze the influence of the American civil rights and black power movements on foreign relations Based on extensive research in recently declassified materials Cold War and Black Liberation documents the intense debates and diplomatic dilemmas arising in 1948 with the triumph of South Africa's Nationalist party and its ensuing policy of apartheid In the context of the emerging civil rights movement in the United States Noer then details America's response to the international problem of white rule on a black continent concluding his study with an epilogue that carries the narrative into the 1980s Noer's study also illustrates the basic conflict in American diplomacy between traditional commitments to majority rule and human rights and more immediate and often prevailing strategic economic and political interests The emotional issues of race human rights and anticommunism make policy decisions complex and controversial as American blacks black Africans European allies and the white minority governments all lobbied to influence U S policy
