The Sergeants Major of the Army, 2010 Moving Questions Joseph D Robinson, 2013-05-27 This book describes a half century of research on cellular membrane transport and on metabolic energy capture and utilization During this time which begins in the late 1930s the effort and imagination of various scientists overthrew reigning formulations created novel explanatory models and unified previously distinct experimental fields My primary goal is to display the course of that research showing how new experiments defined novel entities and processes and how an encompassing field bioenergetics then emerged A secondary goal is to present examples of mainstream biological research that illustrate how experimental results seen as refutations confirmations and elaborations can sway opinion toward a solid consensus This interpretation differs from the currently fashionable view of some commentators that stresses instead the central roles of power prestige gender class and ethnicity In any case the scientific practices exhibited here deserve proper philosophical scrutiny Although constraints of space have squeezed any analysis from this draft brief mention of salient issues does appear in relevant chapters and in the final conclusions Oddly historians and philosophers seem reluctant to deal with this science Those who do consider biological topics tend to focus on the theory of evolution even though the bulk of biological research in this century in terms of papers published and technology influenced has dealt not with evolution per se but with what may be termed physiology and biochemistry And these endeavors which are the aims efforts and accomplishments of the vast majority of biologists have been largely ignored

The Films of Gloria Swanson

Lawrence J. Quirk, 1988-03 Development Derailed Max Foran, 2013 In June of 1962 the Canadian Pacific Railway announced a proposal to redevelop part of its reserved land in the heart of downtown Calgary. In an effort to bolster its waning revenues and to redefine its urban presence the CPR proposed a multimillion dollar development project that included retail office and convention facilities along with a major transportation centre. With visions of enhanced tax revenues, increased land values and new investment opportunities Calgary's political and business leaders greeted the proposal with excitement. Over the following year the scope of the project expanded, growing to a scale never before seen in Canada. The plan took official form through an agreement between the City of Calgary and the railway company to develop a much larger area of land and to reroute or remove the railway tracks from the downtown area as a grand design for reshaping Calgary's urban core. In 1964 amid bickering and a failed negotiating process the project came to an abrupt end. What caused this promising partnership between the nation's leading corporation and the burgeoning city of Calgary to collapse? What in economic terms was perceived to be a win-win situation for both parties fell prey to a conflict between corporate rigidity and an unorganized, ill-informed and over-enthusiastic civic administration and city council. Drawing on the private records of Rod Sykes, the CPR's on-site negotiator and later Calgary's mayor, Foran unravels the fascinating story of how politics ultimately undermined promise. Max Foran is a Professor in the Faculty of Communication and History at the University of Calgary. He has written extensively on various western Canadian urban, rural and cultural topics, most recently on ranching, urban growth and sustainability.

History of the Rogue River National Forest, 1985 The Politics of Hunger in India B. Currie, 2000-03-29 Do people starve in democratic polities? It is often claimed that as government must respond to public needs in times of crisis, democracy has reduced famine in India since Independence. This book seeks to identify the processes which generate and perpetuate hunger in India and what sort of intervention by public and private agencies are best suited to combat this problem. Drawing on fieldwork in the much publicised Kalahandi district, Bob Currie explains why problems of poverty and alleged starvation remain despite regular elections and extensive regional and national publicity.
