Pastoral Production and Society ,1979 Change and Development in Nomadic and Pastoral Societies ,2022-10-17 Agricultural and Pastoral Societies in Ancient and Classical History Michael Adas,2001 Introduces readers to the cross cultural study of ancient and classical civilizations The book is divided into two sections the first examining the ongoing interaction between ancient agrarian and nomadic societies and the second focusing on regional patterns in the dissemination of ideas

Pastoralist Livelihoods in Asian Drylands Ariell Ahearn,Troy Sternberg,Allison Hahn,2017 Pastoralist Livelihoods in Asian Drylands brings together the work of scholars from across Asia to discuss the transforming boundaries agencies and risks involved in pastoralist livelihoods The authors whose research sites range from Oman to Mongolia Syria to Pakistan share methodological commitment to long term field research participant observation and engagement with local communities There is a focus on pastoralist engagements with governance institutions and the essays collectively argue that risk which is often imagined in environmental terms for pastoralist peoples often stems from government policies and political circumstances The authors challenge common ecological approaches to understanding social change amongst pastoralist groups by focusing on the politics of resource distribution and control Papers in the volume support an indigenous perspective on pastoralists and present academic perceptions and assessments of key issues in their local context

volume were first published in 1979 and were written by specialists in different aspects of the study of pastoralism covering all major groups of nomadic pastoralists. They show how the study of nomadic pastoralism can contribute to the understanding of the forms of human existence. The essays examine the relationships between the economic and social organization of pastoral societies and the ecological constraints to which they are subjected, discuss the factors which contribute to the emergence of social and economic inequalities within nomadic societies and analyse whether the evolution of pastoral society is a function of the contact which nomadic groups have with settled agricultural and urban societies or of the contradictions internal to pastoral societies themselves. Pastoral Production and society, 1976 Pastoralists Philip Carl Salzman, 2018-02-13 Drawing upon the author's extensive field research among pastoral peoples in the Middle East, India and the Mediterranean and on more than 30 years of comparative study of pastoralists around the world, Pastoralists is an authoritative synthesis of the varieties of pastoral life. At an ethnographic level, the concise volume provides detailed analyses of divergent types of pastoral societies including segmentary tribes, tribal chiefdoms and peasant pastoralists. At the same time, it addresses a set of substantive theoretical issues: ecological and cultural variation, equality and inequality, hierarchy and the basis of power and state power and resistance. The book validates pastoralists as a conceptual category even as it reveals the diversity of societies, subsistence strategies and power arrangements subsumed by that term.

Hunters, Pastoralists and Ranchers Tim Ingold, 1988-03-31 Throughout the northern circumpolar tundras and forests and over many millennia human populations have based their livelihood wholly or in part upon the exploitation of a single animal species, the reindeer. Yet some are hunters, others pastoralists, while today traditional pastoral economies are being replaced by a commercially oriented ranch industry. In this book, drawing on ethnographic material from North America and Eurasia, Tim Ingold explains the causes and mechanisms of transformations between hunting, pastoralism and ranching, each based on the same animal in the same environment and each viewed in terms of a particular conjunction of social and ecological relations of production. In developing a workable synthesis between ecological and economic approaches in anthropology, Ingold introduces theoretically rigorous concepts for the analysis of specialized animal-based economies which cast the problem of domestication in an entirely new light. Pastoralism in Africa Michael Bollig, Michael Schnegg, Hans-Peter Wotzka, 2013-07-01 Pastoralism has shaped livelihoods and landscapes on the African continent for millennia. Mobile livestock husbandry has generally been portrayed as an economic strategy that successfully met the challenges of low biomass productivity and environmental variability in arid and semi-arid environments. This volume focuses on the emergence, diversity and inherent dynamics of pastoralism in Africa based on research during a twelve-year period on the southwest and northeast regions. Unraveling the complex prehistory, history and contemporary political ecology of African pastoralism results in insight into the ingenuity and flexibility of historical and contemporary herders. Pastoralism and Development in Africa Andy Catley, Ian Scoones, Jeremy Lind, 2013 A view of development at the margins in the pastoral areas of the Horn of Africa highlights innovation and entrepreneurialism cooperation and networking and diverse approaches rarely in line with standard development prescriptions Through twenty detailed empirical chapters the book highlights diverse pathways of development going beyond the standard aid and disaster narratives

Pastoral Politics Timothy Howe,2008 Written by a historian with a specialization in animal husbandry this monograph provides an essential practical aspect of historical study to a field that generally overlooks such mundane matters Howe addresses the basic issues of why Classical Greece would have chosen to dedicate land that would have otherwise been useful for food plant cultivation to the raising of domestic livestock Sure to bring new light on an area often simply accepted as a way of life in the ancient world this study provides an entryway into Classical thought about a necessity of ancient life

Hierarchy Knut Mikkelsen,Olaf H. Smedal,2009 On the basis of diverse ethnographic contexts in Oceania Asia and the Middle East the author s challenge current conceptions of hierarchical formations and reassess former debates both with regard to new theoretical issues and the new world situation of post colonial and neocolonial agendas

Empires of Ancient Eurasia Craig Benjamin,2018-05-03 Introduces a crucial period of world history when the vast exchange network of the Silk Roads connected most of Eurasia

Redefining Politics Adrian Leftwich,2013-04-15 This book challenges conventional conceptions of politics which focus largely on the institutions of government and the associated struggles for power around them It argues that politics is involved in all the activities of cooperation and conflict whereby people organize the use production and distribution of human natural and material resources Found in all human groups institutions and societies politics everywhere influences and reflects the structures of power social organization culture and ideology These central themes are illustrated by drawing on a wide range of societies including the Kung hunter gatherers the pre Columbian Aztecs and the Pastoral Maasai as well as modern Britain and Third World societies from Chile to China Other examples of village communities a typical university department and the World Bank show how institutions may also be analyzed in terms of the definition of politics used here It is equally central to the argument that many of the most critical problems occurring in societies can be attributed to their politics and this theme is explored looking at such problems as poverty famines epidemics violence and unemployment in Britain and throughout the world

Pastoralism in the New Millenium Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,2001-01-01 Pastoralism refers to the type of farming system which uses extensive grazing on grasslands for livestock production This type of farming covers 25 per cent of the world s land area and supports 20 million households It makes substantial contributions to the economies of developing countries although agricultural encroachment conflict and drought continue to erode this way of life This publication considers key policy issues and trends involved in attempts to improve the livelihoods of pastoralist families and communities structured content tailored to meet the needs of students across various streams and levels State and Society John Gledhill, Barbara Bender, Mogens Trolle Larsen, 1995 The traditional Eurocentric view of state formation and the rise of civilization is challenged in this broad ranging book Bringing archaeological research into contact with the work of ethno historians and anthropologists it generates a discussion of fundamental concepts rather than a search for modern analogies for processes that occurred in the past Building Resilience of Human-Natural Systems of Pastoralism in the Developing World Shikui Dong, Karim-Aly S. Kassam, Jean François Tourrand, Randall B. Boone, 2016-08-30 This edited volume summarizes information about the situational context threats problems challenges and solutions for sustainable pastoralism at a global scale The book has four goals The first goal is to summarize the information about the history distribution and patterns of pastoralism and to identify the importance of pastoralism from social economic and environmental perspectives The results of an empirical investigation of the environmental and socio economic implications of pastoralism in representative pastoral regions in the world are also incorporated The second goal is to argue that breaking coupled human natural systems of pastoralism leads to degradation of pastoral ecosystems and to create an analysis framework to assess the vulnerability of worldwide pastoralism Our analysis framework provides approaches to help comprehensively understand the transitions and the impacts of human natural systems in the pastoral regions in the world The third goal is to identify the successful models in promoting coupled human natural systems of pastoralism and to learn lessons of breaking coupled human cultural pastoralism systems through examining the representative cases in regions including Central Asia Southern and Eastern Asia Northern and Eastern Africa the European Alps and South America The fourth goal is to identify the strategies to build the resilience of the coupled human natural systems of pastoralism worldwide We hope that our book can facilitate the further examination of sustainable development of coupled human natural systems of pastoralism by providing the summaries of existing data and information related to the pastoralism development and by offering a framework for better understanding and analysis of their social economic and environmental implications
