Herders, Warriors, And Traders John G Galaty,2019-03-04 African pastoralists have been devastated by drought famine and dislocation yet herding remains the most viable system of support for the inhabitants of the vast arid and semi arid zones Using case studies of the Tswana and the San the interlacustrine pastoralists the Masai and Mursi of East Africa and the multi ethnic regional systems of Lak The Collapse of a Pastoral Economy Samwel Shanga Mhajida,2019 This research unravels the economic collapse of the Datoga pastoralists of central and northern Tanzania from the 1830s to the beginning of the 21st century The research builds from the broader literature on continental African pastoralism during the past two centuries Overall the literature suggests that African pastoralism is collapsing due to changing political and environmental factors My dissertation aims to provide a case study adding to the general trends of African pastoralism while emphasizing the topic of competition as not only physical but as something that is ethnically negotiated through historical and collective memories There are two main questions that have guided this project 1 How is ethnic space defined by the Datoga and their neighbours across different historical times And 2 what are the origins of the conflicts and violence and how have they been narrated by the state throughout history Examining archival sources and oral interviews it is clear that the Datoga have struggled through a competitive history of claims on territory against other neighbouring communities The competitive encounters began with the Maasai entering the Serengeti in the 19th century and intensified with the introduction of colonialism in Mbulu and Singida in the late 19th and 20th centuries The fight for control of land and resources resulted in violent clashes with other groups Often the Datoga were painted as murderers and impediments to development Policies like the amalgamation measures of the British colonial administration in Mbulu or Ujamaa in post colonial Tanzania aimed at confronting the Datoga problem but were inadequate in neither addressing the Datoga issues of identity nor providing a solution to their quest for land ownership and control

The Dry Forests and Woodlands of Africa Emmanuel N. Chidumayo, Davison J. Gumbo, 2010-09-23 The dry forests and woodlands of Sub Saharan Africa are major ecosystems with a broad range of strong economic and cultural incentives for keeping them intact However few people are aware of their importance compared to tropical rainforests despite them being home to more than half of the continent's population This unique book brings together scientific knowledge on this topic from East West and Southern Africa and describes the relationships between forests woodlands people and their livelihoods Dry forest is defined as vegetation dominated by woody plants primarily trees the canopy of which covers more than 10 per cent of the ground surface occurring in climates with a dry season of three months or more This broad definition wider than those used by many authors incorporates vegetation types commonly termed woodland shrubland thicket savanna wooded grassland as well as dry forest in its strict sense The book provides a comparative analysis of management experiences from the different geographic regions emphasizing the need to balance the utilization of dry forests and woodland products between current and future human needs Further the book explores the techniques and strategies that can be deployed to improve the management of African dry forests and woodlands for the benefit of all but more importantly the communities that live off these vegetation formations Thus the book lays a foundation for improving the management of dry forests and woodlands for the wide range of products and services they provide Bulletin signalétique ,1981 Pastoralism in Tropical Africa International African Seminar Staff,

Aging in Sub-Saharan Africa National Research Council,Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education,Committee on Population,Panel on Policy Research and Data Needs to Meet the Challenge of Aging in Africa,2006-11-10 In sub Saharan Africa older people make up a relatively small fraction of the total population and are supported primarily by family and other kinship networks They have traditionally been viewed as repositories of information and wisdom and are critical pillars of the community but as the HIV AIDS pandemic destroys family systems the elderly increasingly have to deal with the loss of their own support while absorbing the additional responsibilities of caring for their orphaned grandchildren Aging in Sub Saharan Africa explores ways to promote U S research interests and to augment the sub Saharan governments capacity to address the many challenges posed by population aging Five major themes are explored in the book such as the need for a basic definition of older person the need for national governments to invest more in basic research and the coordination of data collection across countries and the need for improved dialogue between local researchers and policy makers This book makes three major recommendations 1 the development of a research agenda 2 enhancing research opportunity and implementation and 3 the translation of research findings Foreign Intervention in Africa Elizabeth Schmidt,2013-03-25 This book chronicles foreign political and military interventions in Africa from 1956 to 2010 helping readers understand the historical roots of Africa s problems
