Water at the Roots Philip Britts,2018 In a society uprooted by two world wars industrialization and dehumanizing technology a revolutionary farmer turns to poetry to reconnect his people to the land and one another A farmer poet activist pastor and mystic Britts 1917 1949 has been called a British Wendell Berry His story is no romantic agrarian elegy but a life lived in the thick of history As his country plunged headlong into World War II he joined an international pacifist community the Bruderhof and was soon forced to leave Europe for South America Amidst these great upheavals his response to root himself in faith to dedicate himself to building community to restore the land he farmed and to use his gift with words to turn people from their madness speaks forcefully into our time In an age still wracked by racism nationalism materialism and ecological devastation the life he chose and the poetry he composed remain a prophetic challenge

Hands Off My Food! Dr. Sina McCullough,2017-02-08 Americans have stopped being watchdogs over their own food supply Roughly 100 years ago with the birth of the FDA we handed that responsibility over to the government and the food industry They in turn have fundamentally transformed our food supply and it s making us sick including our children Not only are we losing our health to food related illnesses like cancer and heart disease we are losing our freedom Did you know that government and the food industry have already chosen your dinner for you In fact the government nudges you to pick the foods they want you to eat They've been doing it your whole life In Hands Off My Food Dr McCullough a Ph D in Nutrition from the University of California at Davis walks you through the truth behind what's currently in our food and how it got there You may be surprised to learn that our food system is not designed to protect our long term health Both the food industry and the government have played a major role in the demise of our food supply but they are not the root of the problem Dr McCullough reveals who is ultimately responsible for the adulteration of our food and how each of us has the power to restore the integrity of the food we eat by taking back our consent Together we can reclaim our voice by becoming the watchdogs we were meant to be It's easier than you might think
