It disputes the primacy placed on individuals in the design and planning process and instead looks to the larger influences of politics, culture, economics and globalization to uncover the roots of how our built environment evolves. In these chapters, historians offer their analysis on design as a vehicle for power and as a mediator of social currents. Power is defined through a variety of forms: modernization, obsolescence, technology, capital, ergonomics, biopolitics and others. The chapters explore the diffusion of power through the establishment of norms and networks that frame human conduct, action, identity and design. They follow design as it functions through the body in the home and at the state and international level. Overall, Aggregate views the intersection of architecture with the human need for what Foucault termed governmentality: societal rules, structures, repetition and protocols as a way to provide security and
