Regional Archaeologies , 1967 Discovering Regional Archaeology Leslie Valentine Grinsell, 1971 Regional Perspectives in Archaeology Richard Tabor, 2004 Richard Tabor's updated thesis analyses the relationship between regional survey sampling and the narratives or archaeological story telling drawn from them In essence he seeks to test how remote some interpretations are from the raw data through case studies based on surveys in Europe Africa and North and South America Classifying surveys according to the distribution of resources and their spatial and chronological resolution he examines the intentions of surveys and whether they achieve their goal of describing patterns of human behaviour

Chalkland Andrew J. Lawson, 2007 Chalkland is the summation of more than four decades of first hand involvement in the discovery and interpretation of the archaeology of Wessex and of the Stonehenge region in particular Far more than a reinterpretation of the sequence of events and construction phases which occurred at Stonehenge this thorough far reaching and up to date narrative presents a new account of the Wessex chalklands The Writers Directory , 2013 The National Union Catalogs, 1963- , 1964 Land, Power and Prestige David T. Yates, 2007-08-01 A major phase of economic expansion occurred in southern England during the second and early first millennium BC accompanied by a fundamental shift in regional power and wealth towards the eastern lowlands This book offers a synthesis of available data on Bronze Age lowland field systems in England including a gazetteer of sites The research demonstrates the importance of large scale animal husbandry in the mixed farming regimes as evidenced in the design of the field systems which incorporate droveways stock proof fencing watering holes cow pens sheep races and gateways for stockhandling It is argued that the field systems represented a form of conspicuous production an intensification of agrarian endeavour or a statement of intent to be understood in relation to the maintenance display and promotion of hierarchical social systems involved in exchange with their counterparts across the English Channel

Suburban Life in Roman Durnovaria Mike Trevvarthen, 2008 Excavations at the former County Hospital site Dorchester have provided a rare opportunity to examine a reasonably large area of the south western corner of the Roman town of Durnovaria Evidence for a series of buildings including a late Roman town house complete with fine mosaics was recovered as well as working areas and probable barns A wide range of largely domestic objects and evidence for local produce was recovered as well as important evidence for allec or fish sauce and for imported wine or vine fruits olive oil grain and lentils The results of the excavations are presented here in an easy to read format accompanied by many colour photographs and illustrations Technical reports will be available on Wessex Archaeology's website www.wessexarch.co.uk Collins Field Guide to Archaeology Eric Stuart Wood, 1975 Quaternary of the Trent David R. Bridgland, Andy Howard, Mark J. White, Tom S. White, 2014-03-31 This volume is an integrated overview and synthesis of available data relating to the Quaternary evolution of the River Trent It provides detailed descriptions of the Pleistocene sedimentary records from the Trent its tributaries and related drainage systems a sedimentary record that spans a period of approximately half a million years and the biostratigraphical and archaeological material preserved therein Significant new data are presented from recently discovered sites of geological and archaeological importance including previously unrecognised fluvial deposits as well as novel analyses such as mathematical modelling of fluvial incision as recorded by the river terrace deposits In combination with a thorough review of the literature on the Trent these new data have contributed to revised chronostratigraphical and palaeogeographical frameworks for central England and revealed the complexity of the Pleistocene fluvial and glacial records in this region The fragmentary Trent terrace sequence is an important element of wider reconstructions of Pleistocene palaeodrainage in Britain providing a link between the records preserved in the English Midlands and those in East Anglia Antiquity A Quarterly Review of Archaeology, 1928
