Regional Economic Institutions and Conflict Mitigation Yoram Z. Haftel, 2012-05-21 Economic integration fosters regional peace Transforming East Asia Naoko Munakata, 2007-08-29 A Brookings Institution Press and the Research Institute of Economy Trade and Industry Japan publication East Asian economic integration is on the rise In the past decade all of the region s powers have begun negotiating free trade agreements with their neighbors They are also exploring broader regional options such as the creation of an East Asian summit or free trade area These developments have not always been welcomed by observers in other parts of the world Some fear that they mark a turn away from integration into the global economy and herald the emergence of a closed inward looking bloc In this timely and important book Naoko Munakata offers an alternative perspective based on her experience as an economic official and trade negotiator over the past 20 years East Asian integration she argues is not driven by defensiveness or anti Western sentiment Instead it reflects pragmatic calculations of economic interest as well as a desire for mutual trust and a sense of community Munakata makes her case by analyzing developments in the region since the mid 1980s highlighting such important factors as the evolution of Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation APEC the impact of the 1997 98 Asian financial crisis and the rise of China She also outlines possible future scenarios for the region and offers policy prescriptions for building on regionalism s achievements to date Over the coming decades the rise of China its relationship with Japan and the institutional arrangements that bind those countries to the United States and the countries of East and Southeast Asia will become critical factors in the global balance of power Transforming East Asia is essential reading for anyone seeking to understand the roots of this transformation Economic

Regional Economic Communities Olutayo, Akinpelu O.,Adeniran, Adebuseyi I.,2015-12-01 This book examines how the existence of overlapping regional institutions has presented a daunting challenge to the workings of various Regional Economic Communities RECs on the African continent The majority of the African countries are members of overlapping and sometimes contradictory RECs For instance in East Africa while Kenya and Uganda are both members of EAC and COMESA Tanzania which is also a member of the EAC left COMESA in 2001 to join SADC In West Africa while all former French colonies belong to ECOWAS they simultaneously keep membership of UEMOA an organization which is not recognized by the African Union AU Such multiple and confusing memberships create unnecessary duplication and dims the light on what ought to be priority Various chapters in this book have therefore sought to identify and proffer solutions to related challenges confronting the workings of the RECs in different sub regions of the African continent The discourses range from security to the stock exchange identity integration development framework labour movement and cross border relations The pattern adopted in the book involves devolution of related discussions from the general to the specific that is from the continental level to sub regional case studies Assessment and Measurement of Regional Integration Philippe De

Lombaerde,2006-09-27 A unique examination of why the quest for global free trade often forgets that trade liberalization is organized regionally rather than multilaterally There are now more than 250 regional integration initiatives and this number is steadily increasing This trend raises a key question What is the impact of regional integration both for the countries involved and for those excluded from regional integration schemes Using a combined economic political science and scientific approach this book explores how regional integration can be measured and evaluated and delivers comprehensive answers It looks at the methodological problems involved in designing monitoring tools for regional integration in a systematic way and makes a number of concrete suggestions for designing and organising systems of indicators of regional integration It also offers a critical overview of available indicators and tools and presents crucial new monitoring instruments This book will be of great interest to students and researchers of international relations and economics as well as policy makers and professionals within international and regional organizations Regional Integration and Development

Maurice W. Schiff,L. Alan Winters,2003 This text examines regionalism from the perspective of developing countries It presents a comprehensive account of existing theory and empirical results and incorporates the findings of formal analyses of the politics and dynamics of regionalism Regional Economic Integration in East Asia Jane Drake-Brockman,Peter Drysdale,2002 There has been a proliferation of proposals for bilateral free trade areas in East Asia in recent times These initiatives fly in the face of the long standing support of key players in the region such as Japan for the MFN based non discriminatory trading system and the commitment to non discriminatory trade liberalisation and reform within APEC As China establishes its role in the WTO its interests are very much in an open global trading system The paper argues that the core interests of East Asian economies remain in non discriminatory global trading arrangements and prosecuting those interests within the Doha Round of trade negotiations It suggests that a way forward in sorting out the trade distorting and protectionist effects of free trade agreements would be for East Asian economies to take a lead in negotiations on strengthening WTO rules on preferential trade arrangements In terms of global economic welfare the only good preferential arrangement is one that disappears in time The paper makes specific recommendations for re vamping the rule on preferential trade arrangements with that objective in mind P 1

Economic Integration and Development Mordechai Elihu Kreinin,Michael G. Plummer,2003-01-01 The intriguing and provocative results on the effects of the single European market and NAFTA make this short book worth a read even if one is concerned only with how developing countries have been affected by regional trade agreements that do not include them Peter J Montiel Journal of Regional Science This book is an excellent attempt to pin down the effects of regional economic integration on developing countries it will prove to be a good guide for researchers and students of development economics working in the area of regional trading arrangements and policymakers and governments which are in the process of exploring the possibilities of forming free trade areas Pravakar Sahoo Development Policy Review Students interested in either the methodological issues inherent in research on trade or on the economics of trading blocs in general would profit from the book James J Hentz The European Journal of Development Research Questions related to the economics of regionalism became increasingly important beginning in the late 1980s when regional groupings started to become very popular as a tool of commercial policy The goal of this book is to address the question of whether or not regionalism in developed countries has truly benefited developing countries and to what degree regionalism among developing countries and between developed and developing countries will improve economic development prospects Mordechai Kreinin and Michael Plummer consider the implications of the emerging global trend of economic regionalism for developing countries The analysis focuses on the trade and investment effects of integration in developed countries on developing countries as well as the ramifications of regional integration in the latter After an extensive review of the theoretical and empirical literature pertinent to the economics of regionalism the book considers the ex post trade and direct foreign investment effects of the Single Market Program in Europe and NAFTA followed by chapters on ASEAN and economic integration in Latin America primarily MERCOSUR The study suggests three salient conclusions First in designing preferential trading arrangements developed countries should recognize and attempt to minimize the possible discriminating effect on developing countries Second the developing countries have an abiding interest in the success of WTO negotiations that would minimize the discrimination against them of regional groupings in Europe and North America And third any customs unions or free trade areas among the developing countries themselves should be outward looking if they are to enhance the welfare of developing countries Economists and policy scholars as well as readers interested in regionalism and economic development will find this book a great resource
