Reinventing Government In Iceland:

Reinventing Government in Iceland Ómar Hlynur Kristmundsson, 2003 The book describes a case study of governmental reform in Iceland during the period 1993-2000. Public management reform has become a political priority in Iceland as elsewhere in the world in the last two decades as a response to economic and administrative problems during this time. It has also been a reaction to ideas which have come in vogue for both diagnosing the problems of government and providing solutions. The problems identified involve the growing cost of the public sector and an inefficient and unresponsive bureaucracy. The solutions offered focus on ensuring efficiency, effectiveness and flexibility by transferring government activities to the competitive marketplace through privatization or by adopting a market mechanism within government. The literature has identified both theoretical flaws and potential limitations in the application of current governmental reform. The literature however does not provide voluminous empirical data on its effects. The book includes data on the significance of public management for the central government in Iceland and illustrates how various situational factors such as administrative characteristics, reform management capacity and experiential learning efforts have contributed to the reform outcome.

The A to Z of Iceland Gudmundur Halfdanarson, 2010-05-10 While Iceland is the second largest inhabited island in Europe with only 313 000 inhabitants in 2007, the Icelanders form one of the smallest independent nations in the world. Around two thirds of the population lives in the capital Reykjavík and its suburbs while the rest is spread around the inhabitable area of the country. Until fairly recently the Icelandic nation was unusually homogeneous both in cultural and religious terms. In 1981 around 98 percent of the nation was born in Iceland and 96 percent belonged to the Lutheran state church or other Lutheran religious sects. In 2007 these numbers were down to 89 and 86 percent respectively reflecting the rapidly growing multicultural nature of Icelandic society. The A to Z of Iceland traces Iceland's history and provides a compass for the direction the country is heading. This is done through its chronology, introductory essays, appendixes, map, bibliography and hundreds of cross referenced dictionary entries on important persons, places, events and institutions and significant political, economic, social and cultural aspects.

Party Patronage and Party Government in European Democracies Petr Kopecký, Peter Mair, Maria Spirova, 2012-07-26 Party Patronage and Party Government in European Democracies brings together insights from the worlds of party politics and public administration in order to analyze the role of political parties in public appointments across contemporary Europe. Based on an extensive new data gathered through expert interviews in fifteen European countries, this book offers the first systematic comparative assessment of the scale of party patronage and its role in sustaining modern party governments. Among the key findings are: First, patronage appointments tend to be increasingly dominated by the party in public office rather than being used or controlled by the party organization outside parliament. Second, rather than using appointments as rewards as used to be the case in more clientelistic systems in the past, parties are now more likely to emphasize appointments that can help them to manage the infrastructure of government and the state In this way patronage becomes an organizational rather than an electoral resource Third patronage appointments are increasingly sourced from channels outside of the party thus helping to make parties look increasingly like network organizations primarily constituted by their leaders and their personal and political hinterlands Comparative Politics is a series for students teachers and researchers of political science that deals with contemporary government and politics Global in scope books in the series are characterised by a stress on comparative analysis and strong methodological rigour The series is published in association with the European Consortium for Political Research For more information visit www.essex.ac.uk/ecpr The Comparative Politics series is edited by Professor David M Farrell School of Politics and International Relations University College Dublin Kenneth Carty Professor of Political Science University of British Columbia and Professor Dirk Berg Schlosser Institute of Political Science Philipps University Marburg
