Leprosy and colonialism Stephen Snelders, 2017-05-31 Leprosy and colonialism investigates the history of leprosy in Suriname within the context of Dutch colonial power and racial conflict from the plantation economy and the age of slavery to the modern colonial state It explores the relationship between the modern stigmatization and exclusion of people affected with leprosy and the political tensions and racial fears originating in colonial slave society exerting their influence until after the decolonization up to the present day In the book colonial sources are read from shifting perspectives of the colonial rulers and from below the ruled Though leprosy is today a neglected tropical disease recognizing influences of our colonial heritage in our global management of health and disease and exploring the perspectives of other cultures are essential in a time in which migration movements make the permeability of boundaries and transmission of diseases more common than perhaps ever before

White Lies and Black Markets Karwan Fatah-Black, 2015-04-21 In White Lies and Black Markets Fatah Black offers a new account of the colonization of Suriname one of the major European plantation colonies on the Guiana Coast in the period between 1650 1800 While commonly portrayed as an isolated tropical outpost this study places the colony in the context of its connections to the rest of the Atlantic world These economic and migratory links assured the colony's survival but also created many incentives to evade the mercantilistically inclined metropolitan authorities By combining the available data on Dutch and North American shipping with accounts of major political and economic developments the author uncovers a hitherto hidden world of illicit dealings and convincingly argues that these illegal practices were essential to the development and survival of the colony and woven into the fabric of the colonial project itself
