The Newfoundland Diaspora Jennifer Bowering Delisle, 2013-06-01 Out migration driven by high unemployment and a floundering economy has been a defining aspect of Newfoundland society for well over a century and it reached new heights with the cod moratorium in 1992

This Newfoundland diaspora has had a profound impact on the province's literature. Many writers and scholars have referred to Newfoundland out migration as a diaspora but few have examined the theoretical implications of applying this contested term to a predominantly inter provincial movement of mainly white economically motivated migrants. The Newfoundland Diaspora argues that diaspora helpfully references the painful displacement of a group whose members continue to identify with each other and with the homeland. It examines important literary works of the Newfoundland diaspora including the poetry of E J Pratt, the drama of David French, the fiction of Donna Morrissey and Wayne Johnston and the memoirs of David Macfarlane. These works are the sites of a broad inquiry into the theoretical flashpoints of affect, diasporic authenticity, nationalism, race and ethnicity. The literature of the Newfoundland diaspora both contributes to and responds to critical movements in Canadian literature and culture, querying the place of regional, national and ethnic affiliations in a literature drawn along the borders of the nation state. This diaspora plays a part in defining Canada even as it looks beyond the borders of Canada as a literary community.

The Letters of Dr Charles Burney Stewart Cooke, 2023-09-06. This volume of letters by Charles Burney, the first to be published since 1991, runs from 1794 to 10 January 1800, beginning with his recovery from a debilitating attack of rheumatism, continuing with the death of his wife in 1796 and ending with the shocking death of his daughter Susanna. Certain leitmotifs typical of Burney's concerns stand out throughout the volume: his trepidation over the war with France and its effect on domestic politics; his exhausting social life; his travels; and his publication of the memoirs of the poet and lyricist Metastasio. A staunch monarchist and a self-confessed alarmist, Burney is haunted day and night by the French Revolution and the threat that Republican France poses to religion, morals, liberty, property, life. He frets frequently over those he considers to be domestic Jacobins, a word he uses forty-seven times in the course of the volume to describe anyone whose politics differ from his own conservative values. Although Burney turns sixty-eight in April 1794, in this volume he barely slows down his habitual hectic pace of teaching and publishing. In the summer of 1795 he publishes his final book, Memoirs of the Life and Writings of the Abate Pietro Metastasio, despite a hectic social life that sees him hobnobbing with the elite in society and politics and a love of travel that takes him to the homes of friends in Hampshire and Cheshire and into his past on a nostalgic visit to Shrewsbury, his childhood home.
