Between professions and countries. Highly skilled Latin American migrants and the negotiation of cultural capital Ilana Nussbaum Bitran, 2020-11-10 The migration of highly skilled individuals brings together two important and well developed institutional systems on the one hand the organization of professions and on the other hand the state and its migration and integration regime Therefore professional migrants move between two levels of regulation The first one applies to their specific professional group and regulates the acquisition of knowledge as well as the participation in the labor market The second one controls the access to and settlement in a given country Taking the examples of medicine and the information technologies IT in Germany and Chile the present research asks how different institutional settings shape the cultural capital negotiation strategies of highly skilled Latin American migrants Using Bourdieu s relational theory and especially his concepts of field and capital this book seeks to understand professions as fields and to follow the trajectories of highly skilled Latin American migrants within two transnational professional fields Using a reconstructive praxeological approach this book presents three typologies showing how the interaction between transnational professional fields and national regulations creates different possibilities for highly skilled migrants to negotiate their capital and the strategies they develop to reach a good position in their host country s labor market concentration on communication processes is essential to sorting out fundamental problems in interpersonal relationships. This book provides a general theory of the role of communication in interpersonal relationships that is grounded in the rules perspective and focuses on self concept and interaction as the generative mechanisms of relationship formation and growth. The authors explore the kind of information that is exchanged in the process of initiating, developing and maintaining friend and mate relationships. Both types of relationships are explored in numerous cultural settings including America and American subcultures as well as Korea, Nigeria, Japan and China. The inclusion of Nigerian culture is particularly significant because the research literature in interpersonal communication is lacking any information from the continent of Africa. Implications are then considered for communication exchange across three categories of interpersonal communication: culture, conflict and quality.

Interpersonal Communication in Friend and Mate Relationships Anne Maydan Nicotera, 1993-03-24 A

A Grammar of Nuosu Matthias Gerner, 2013-10-14 This is the first modern grammar of Nuosu written in English. Nuosu belongs to a little known section of Tibeto-Burman. The 2.5 Million ethnic Nuosu are part of the Yi nationality and live in Sichuan, China. This grammar informs Tibeto-Burman linguists, typologists, scholars of language contact and foreign learners of Nuosu.

The Nature of Purchasing Florian Schupp, Heiko Wöhner, 2020-05-20 This book was created in the spirit of learning from nature in the field of professional purchasing. It describes real world purchasing problems faced by companies as well as individuals and presents natural, hands-on solutions that apply scientific approaches. The book answers what the core of purchasing could be: the inner structure of it or in other words, the natural way. Nature masters effectiveness based on immanent laws and ensures efficiency by best results for minimal investment. Especially in complex and ambiguous situations, purchasers benefit from this book by understanding the broader context with the help of recent scientific research. Focusing on the problems that purchasers face in managerial practice rather than oversimplified generalizations, the book features step-by-step explanations allowing readers to find tailored solutions to address challenges in key purchasing areas. The book was written in collaboration and with the help of experts in purchasing and logistics, biology, law and economics, human resource development, media and sports, and merges perspectives from theory and practice to provide natural strategies for purchasers.

The Structure of Arguments I. M. Schlesinger, Tamar Keren-Portnoy, Tamar Parush, 2001-01-01 An important tool for scientific study in any field is a formal language in which the phenomena can be described and hypotheses formulated. In this book, a formal notation is developed for the description of the cognitive structure of arguments. The analyses based on this notation are more fine-grained than the analyses in previous attempts and they are applicable not only to arguments but to all types of moves in a discourse. Further, the notational system provides a basis for the description of relations between arguments and the structure of the discourse as a whole. In the final chapter, some empirical studies of retention of arguments in memory and of precise writing are reported based on hypotheses formulated in terms of the notational system.

Valency over Time Silvia Luraghi, Elisa Roma, 2021-10-25 Valency patterns and valency orientation have been frequent topics of research under different perspectives, often poorly connected. Diachronic studies on these topics is even less systematic than synchronic ones. The papers in this book bring together two strands of research on valency: i.e. the description of valency patterns as worked out in the Leipzig Valency Classes Project ValPaL and the assessment of a language's basic valency and its possible orientation. Notably the ValPaL does not provide diachronic information concerning the valency patterns investigated; one of the aims of the book is to supplement the available data with data from historical stages of languages in order to make it profitably exploitable for diachronic research. In addition, new research on the diachrony of basic valency and valency alternations can deepen our understanding of mechanisms of language change and of the propensity of languages or language families to exploit different constructional patterns related to transitivity.

The Oxford Handbook of Ergativity Jessica Coon, Diane Massam, Lisa deMena Travis, 2017. This volume examines the phenomenon of ergativity, a grammatical patterning whereby direct objects are in some way treated like intransitive subjects to the exclusion of transitive subjects. It includes theoretical approaches from generative, typological and functional paradigms as well as 16 language-specific case studies.

An Introduction to Syntax Robert D. Van Valin, 2001-04-26. This introduction to syntactic theory and analysis presents syntactic phenomena from a wide range of languages and explains to students the major typological issues that syntactic theories must address. It includes a number of exercises.

A Grammar of Tshangla Erik E. Andvik, 2010. A Grammar of Tshangla is the first major linguistic description of Tshangla, a Tibeto-Burman language spoken in Bhutan, northeast India and southwest China. Written from a functional typological perspective, it contains a wealth of illustrative examples both from elicited data and from spontaneously generated texts. It is a truly comprehensive description including sections on phonology, lexicon, morphophonemics, morphosyntactic structure, clause concatenating constructions as well as discourse/pragmatic features. The volume will be of interest to language students and to linguists and ethnographic scholars seeking to understand the Bhutanese and South Asian linguistic situation. The large amount of raw language data presented here makes this Grammar of Tshangla an indispensable tool for students of Tibeto-Burman comparative linguistics and morphosyntactic theory in general.

Morphologie G. E. Booij, Christian Lehmann, Joachim Mugdan, 2000. This series of HANDBOOKS OF LINGUISTICS AND COMMUNICATION SCIENCE is designed to illuminate a field which not only includes general linguistics and the study of linguistics as applied to specific languages but also covers those more recent areas which have developed from the increasing body of research into the manifold forms of communicative action and interaction. For classic linguistics there appears to be a need for a review of the state of the art which will provide a reference base for the rapid advances in research undertaken from a variety of theoretical standpoints, while in the more recent branches of communication science the handbooks will give researchers both an overview and orientation. To attain these objectives the series will aim for a standard comparable to that of the leading handbooks in other disciplines and to this end will strive for comprehensiveness, theoretical explicitness, reliable documentation of data and findings and up-to-date methodology. The editors, both of the series and of the individual volumes, and the individual contributors are committed to this aim The languages of publication are English German and French The main aim of the series is to provide an appropriate account of the state of the art in the various areas of linguistics and communication science covered by each of the various handbooks however no inflexible pre set limits will be imposed on the scope of each volume The series is open ended and can thus take account of further developments in the field This conception coupled with the necessity of allowing adequate time for each volume to be prepared with the necessary care means that there is no set time table for the publication of the whole series Each volume will be a self contained work complete in itself The order in which the handbooks are published does not imply any rank ordering but is determined by the way in which the series is organized the editor of the whole series enlist a competent editor for each individual volume Once the principal editor for a volume has been found he or she then has a completely free hand in the choice of co editors and contributors The editors plan each volume independently of the others being governed only by general formal principles The series editor only intervene where questions of delineation between individual volumes are concerned It is felt that this modus operandi is best suited to achieving the objectives of the series namely to give a competent account of the present state of knowledge and of the perception of the problems in the area covered by each volume

Social Networks, Drug Abuse, and HIV Transmission ,1995 NIDA Research Monograph ,1976 Cases and Thematic Roles Beatrice Primus,2010-09-03 This book is concerned with the mapping of thematic roles such as agent and patient onto syntactic cases such as nominative or ergative or onto structural relations It shows that cases and structural relations code different aspects of thematic structure The thematic determination of the structural relation of an argument is confined to its position in the thematic structure of the predicate Case mapping is determined by the number of basic thematic concepts involved in this structure This fact and other facts presented in the book presuppose an approach to thematic roles that decomposes them into more basic concepts involving volitionality causation activity sentience possession etc and motivate the hypothesis that syntactic cases cannot be derived from structural relations in universal grammar The phenomena pertaining to relational typology that classifies languages into ergative accusative and active languages are shown to be restricted to case mapping The specific thematic determination of case mapping and the hierarchical organization of case systems explain not only the existence of these types of mapping but also the fact that ergative and active phenomena are typically case based The book provides a global cross linguistic perspective but German data recurrently serve as an illustration of the main theoretical assumptions Differential Subject Marking Helen de Hoop,Peter de Swart,2007-12-04 Although almost all sentences have subjects not all sentences encode their subjects in the same way Some languages overtly mark some subjects but not others depending on certain features of the subject argument or the sentence in which the subject figures This phenomenon is known as Differential Subject Marking DSM Languages differ in which conditions govern DSM Some languages differentiate their subjects on the basis of semantic features of the argument such as thematic role volitionality animacy whereas others

differentiate on the basis of clausal features such as tense aspect and the main dependent clause distinction DSM comes in different formal guises case marking agreement inverse systems and voice alternations Relatively much is known about cross linguistic variation in the marking of subjects yet little attempt has been made to formalize the facts This volume aims to unify formal approaches to language and presents both specific case studies of DSM and theoretical approaches Salish Applicatives Kaoru Kiyosawa, Donna Gerdt, 2010-06-14 This book offers a comprehensive view of the morphology syntax and semantics of applicative constructions in Salish a language family of northwestern North America The historical development and discourse function of applicatives are elucidated and placed in typological perspective Ten Studies in Dependency Syntax Igor Mel'cuk, 2021-05-10 The monograph presents the Meaning Text approach applied to the domain of syntax from a typological angle it deals with several long standing syntactic problems on the basis of a dependency description Its content can be presented in five parts an Introduction The Introduction explains the architecture of the book and sketches the Meaning Text linguistic model underlying the subsequent discussion I Surface syntactic relations in the languages of the world with special studies of subjects and objects II Grammatical voice in the dependency framework the passive construction in Chinese III The relative clause a calculus and analysis of possible types the pseudo relative headless clause IV Binary conjunctions such as IF THEN free indefinite pronouns He went nobody knows where and syntactic idioms V Word order linearization of dependency structures The monograph offers a new perspective in syntactic studies It is strongly typology oriented using the data from typologically diverse languages English Russian Chinese Korean Basque Georgian etc and based on a system of rigorous definitions of the notions involved which ensures a link with computational linguistics and Natural Language Processing
