

We'll Be Okay

My greatest dream,
Is to spend the rest of my life with you;
Laughing and sharing,
Making wonderful memories in all that we do

To grow together, to be strong as one,
To talk, to communicate,
To unite when things come undone

To be your best friend,
And for you to be mine;
To support one another
When we give things a try

To be honest and faithful
To be kind and comforting,
Generous and respectful
For now and for always

Poetic Relations Constance M. Furey, 2017-06-05 What is the relationship between our isolated and our social selves between aloneness and interconnection Constance M Furey probes this question through a suggestive literary tradition early Protestant poems in which a single speaker describes a solitary search for God As Furey demonstrates John Donne George Herbert Anne Bradstreet and others describe inner lives that are surprisingly crowded teeming with human as well as divine companions The same early modern writers who bequeathed to us the modern distinction between self and society reveal here a different way of thinking about selfhood altogether For them she argues the self is neither alone nor universally connected but is forever interactive and dynamically constituted by specific relationships By means of an analysis equally attentive to theological ideas social conventions and poetic form Furey reveals how poets who understand introspection as a relational act and poetry itself as a form ideally suited to crafting a relational self offer us new ways of thinking about
