Australian Education since 1910 Clarissa Carden, 2021-11-08 The phrase free compulsory and secular is central to Australia's understanding of its own education system Yet the extent to which education in Australia or anywhere else for that matter can be described as secular is never clear or settled This work examines the history of education in Australia from 1910 through to the present through an interdisciplinary survey of key scholarship and a series of six original case studies It seeks to uncover the extent to which the education system has undergone a process of secularisation and argues that the very meaning of the term secular is always contingent and changeable The Sacred & the Digital F.G. (Frank) Bosman,2019-04-18 Video game studies are a relative young but flourishing academic discipline But within game studies however the perspective of religion and spirituality is rather neglected both by game scholars and religion scholars While religion can take different shapes in digital games ranging from material and referential to reflexive and ritual it is not necessarily true that game developers depict their in game religions in a positive confirming way but ever so often games approach the topic critically and disavowingly The religion criticisms found in video games can be categorized as follows religion as 1 fraud aimed to manipulate the uneducated as 2 blind obedience towards an invisible but ultimately non existing deity ies as 3 violence against those who do not share the same set of religious rules as 4 madness a deranged alternative for logical reasoning and as 5 suppression in the hands of the powerful elite to dominate and subdue the masses into submission and obedience The critical depictions of religion in video games by their developers is the focus of this special issue

American Book Publishing Record ,2003 Faith-based Radicalism Christiane Timmerman,2007 Terror attacks against Western symbols of power suicide terrorism in Chechnya or bombing of abortion clinics in the United States these are a few of the violent religious outbursts that the media never seem to stop broadcasting While these outbursts are mostly linked to Islamic extremism it should however be acknowledged that every religion has its own violent side Despite all the events the media are too prompt to show us it would be dishonest and insensible not to accept that every religion has also a potential for religious peace building and communal renewal How can it be explained then that religions sometimes react violently against the society surrounding them by trying to overthrow it while at some other times they willingly help and try to build a better world for everyone The University Centre Saint Ignatius Antwerp organised an interdisciplinary summer seminar in September 2005 and gathered senior scholars all experts in their own fields and junior scholars who will be the experts of tomorrow from all over the world to discuss these burning issues The seminar focused on miscellaneous topics all pointing towards the question of religion and society like literalism and the Holy texts the ambivalence of faith based radicalism the psychology of religion and terrorism nationalism and religion and religious social movements Publisher

Code the Islamic Other and science fiction's response to 9/11 and the Christian Right and popular culture Today's pervasive saturated media culture this work shows has utterly collapsed the sacred/profane binary so that popular culture is not only powerfully shaped by the discourses of religion but also shapes how the religious appears and is experienced in the contemporary world

Implicit Religion in Contemporary Society Edward I. Bailey, 2006 The book reports three studies that were undertaken of what moves people firstly as individuals through verbal interviews secondly in a public house through working behind the bar and thirdly in a residential community through being the Rector of a parish In each case it poses the question whether our understanding of the human reality revealed in the situation can be progressed by comparing it with what is known about religion In other words can Religious Studies help us to understand secular life in the way that Social scientific Studies have helped us to understand the religious life The Implicit Religion that is looked for in the three studies is defined in terms of people's commitments or integrating foci or intensive concerns with extensive effects The first study revealed an all but ineffable apprehension and valuation of the Self The second revealed a context in which Selves can hold their own with other Selves The third unexpectedly revealed a commitment which was as ultimate as it was intimate to what was called Christianity The content of this belief is analysed and compared with historical forms of Christianity This attention to intentionality may be seen as the particular contribution that the study of Religion and of Religions as type cases can make to the social scientific understanding of human behaviour and human being In the three decades that have passed since Dr Bailey began to test this approach much post modernity theory has moved in a similar direction This volume constitutes the first full length report of the first systematic tests to have been made of a concept that has come to be accepted in both academic and religious circles
