Regulator No 3 Deadly Justice:

Your Guide to Federal Firearms Regulation, 1978 Your Guide to Firearms Regulation, Your 1977 Guide to Firearms Regulation United States. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms, 1977 Restorative Justice & Responsive Regulation John Braithwaite, 2002 Braithwaite's argument against punitive justice systems and for restorative justice systems establishes that there are good theoretical and empirical grounds for anticipating that well designed restorative justice processes will restore victims offenders and communities better than existing criminal justice practices Counterintuitively he also shows that a restorative justice system may deter incapacitate and rehabilitate more effectively than a punitive system This is particularly true when the restorative justice system is embedded in a responsive regulatory framework that opts for deterrence only after restoration repeatedly fails and incapacitation only after escalated deterrence fails Braithwaite's empirical research demonstrates that active deterrence under the dynamic regulatory pyramid that is a hallmark of the restorative justice system he supports is far more effective than the passive deterrence that is notable in the stricter sentencing grid of current criminal justice systems Dual Justice Anthony Grasso, 2024-09-17 A far reaching examination of how America came to treat street and corporate crime so differently While America incarcerates its most marginalized citizens at an unparalleled rate the nation has never developed the capacity to consistently prosecute corporate wrongdoing Dual Justice unearths the intertwined histories of these two phenomena and reveals that they constitute more than just modern hypocrisy By examining the carceral and regulatory states evolutions from 1870 through today Anthony Grasso shows that America's divergent approaches to street and corporate crime share common self reinforcing origins During the Progressive Era scholars and lawmakers championed naturalized theories of human difference to justify instituting punitive measures for poor offenders and regulatory controls for corporate lawbreakers These ideas laid the foundation for dual justice systems criminal justice institutions harshly governing street crime and regulatory institutions governing corporate misconduct Since then criminal justice and regulatory institutions have developed in tandem to reinforce politically constructed understandings about who counts as a criminal Grasso analyzes the intellectual history policy debates and state and federal institutional reforms that consolidated these ideas along with their racial and class biases into America's legal system Publications of the National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice, 1980 Decision-making and Radioactive Waste Disposal Andrew Newman, Gerry Nagtzaam, 2015-11-19 The International Atomic Energy Agency estimates that nuclear power generation facilities produce about 200 000 cubic meters of low and intermediate level waste each year Vital medical procedures industrial processes and basic science research also produce significant quantities of waste All of this waste must be shielded from the population for extended periods of time Finding suitable locations for disposal facilities is beset by two main problems community responses to siting proposals are generally antagonistic and as a result governments have tended to be reactive in their policy making Decision making and Radioactive Waste Disposal explores these issues utilizing a linear narrative case study approach that critically examines key stakeholder interactions in order to explain how siting decisions for low level waste disposal are made Five countries are featured the US Australia Spain South Korea and Switzerland This book seeks to establish an understanding of the political economic environmental legal and social dimensions of siting across those countries This valuable resource fills a gap in the literature and provides recommendations for future disposal facility siting efforts The book will be of interest to students and scholars of environmental law justice management politics energy and security policy as well as decision makers in government and industry

Miskel, 2008 Hurricane Katrina is the latest in a series of major disasters that were not well managed but it is not likely to be the last Category 4 and category 5 hurricanes will according to most predictions become both more frequent and more intense in the future due to global warming and or natural weather cycles In addition it is often said that another terrorist attack on the United States is inevitable that it is a question of when not whether Add to that the scare over a possible avian flu pandemic As a result the United States should expect that disaster response to natural and other types of disasters will continue to be of vital concern to the American public and the policymakers and officials who deal with disaster response and relief including the military The U S disaster relief program reflects a basic division of responsibility between federal state and local governments that has generally stood the test of time At the federal level a single agency FEMA now under the Department of Homeland Security has been charged with the responsibility for coordinating the activities of the various federal agencies that have a role in disaster relief A successful disaster response requires three things timely and effective coordination between state and federal governments effective coordination among the federal agencies and effective coordination between and among state and local government agencies Miskel examines the effects that operational failures

after Hurricanes Agnes Hugo Andrew and Katrina have had on the organizational design and operating principles of the disaster response system program He also discusses the impact of 9 11 and the evolving role of the military and he identifies reforms that should be implemented to improve the nation s ability to respond in the future Ethics and Engineering
