Progress in improving stroke care Great Britain: National Audit Office, 2010-02-03 The National Stroke Strategy 2007 is a comprehensive response to the concerns raised by the NAO in its 2005 report on stroke HC 452 session 2005 06 ISBN 9780102935707 The strategy has been underpinned by strong national leadership and performance indicators as well as 59 million of central funding over the first two years 30 million of which was allocated to local authorities specifically to provide support services to stroke patients and their carers The NHS is now starting to deliver better care from stroke services and outcomes for patients are also improving Patients treated in a specialist stroke unit are more likely to survive have fewer complications and regain their independence but in 2008 only 17 per cent of stroke patients reached the stroke unit within four hours of arrival at hospital Brain imaging is also very important for stroke patients but many patients are not given a scan quickly enough and access at weekends and evenings is significantly more limited There is better awareness of the symptoms of stroke and that it is a medical emergency following the Department's Stroke Act FAST advertising campaign launched in February 2009. The number of calls categorised as being a suspected stroke during April to June 2009 increased by 54 per cent in comparison with the same period in 2008. But a third of patients are not getting a follow up appointment within six weeks and only a half of stroke survivors in the NAO's survey said that they were given advice on further stroke prevention when leaving hospital.

World Report on Ageing and Health World Health Organization, 2015-10-22. The WHO World report on ageing and health is not for the book shelf; it is a living breathing testament to all older people who have fought for their voice to be heard at all levels of government across disciplines and sectors. Mr Bjarne Hastrup, President International Federation on Ageing and CEO DaneAge. This report outlines a framework for action to foster Healthy Ageing built around the new concept of functional ability. This will require a transformation of health systems away from disease based curative models and towards the provision of older person centred and integrated care. It will require the development sometimes from nothing of comprehensive systems of long term care. It will require a coordinated response from many other sectors and multiple levels of government. And it will need to draw on better ways of measuring and monitoring the health and functioning of older populations. These actions are likely to be a sound investment in society's future. A future that gives older people the freedom to live lives that previous generations might never have imagined. The World report on ageing and health responds to these challenges by recommending equally profound changes in the way health policies for ageing populations are formulated and services are provided. As the foundation for its recommendations, the report looks at what the latest evidence has to say about the ageing process, noting that many common perceptions and assumptions about older people are based on outdated stereotypes. The report's recommendations are anchored in the evidence, comprehensive and forward looking yet eminently practical. Throughout, examples of experiences from different countries are used to illustrate how specific problems can be addressed through innovation solutions. Topics explored range from strategies to deliver comprehensive and person centred services to older populations to policies that enable older people to live in comfort and safety to ways to correct the problems and injustices inherent in current systems for long term care.
