Forest Landscape Restoration John Stanturf, David Lamb, Palle Madsen, 2014-12-14 Restoration ecology as a scientific discipline developed from practitioners efforts to restore degraded land with interest also coming from applied ecologists attracted by the potential for restoration projects to apply and or test developing theories on ecosystem development Since then forest landscape restoration FLR has emerged as a practical approach to forest restoration particularly in developing countries where an approach which is both large scale and focuses on meeting human needs is required Yet despite increased investigation into both the biological and social aspects of FLR there has so far been little success in systematically integrating these two complementary strands Bringing experts in landscape studies natural resource management and forest restoration together with those experienced in conflict management environmental economics and urban studies this book bridges that gap to define the nature and potential of FLR as a truly multidisciplinary approach to a global environmental problem The book will provide a valuable reference to graduate students and researchers interested in ecological restoration forest ecology and management as well as to professionals in environmental restoration natural resource management conservation and environmental policy

Stanturf, 2015-08-14 Humans have influenced the landscapes and forests throughout the temperate and boreal zones for millennia Restoration of Boreal and Temperate Forests Second Edition focuses on the negative impact of human activity and explains the importance of forest restoration as a way to repair habitat restore forest structure and function and counteract t Large-scale Forest Restoration David Lamb, 2014-09-19 Landscapes are being degraded and simplified across the globe This book explores how forest restoration might be carried out to increase landscape heterogeneity improve ecological functioning and restore ecosystem services in such landscapes It focuses on large landscape scale reforestation because that is the scale at which restoration is needed if many of the problems that have now developed are to be addressed It also shows how large scale forest restoration might improve human livelihoods as well as improve conservation outcomes A number of governments have undertaken national reforestation programs in recent years some have been more successful than others The author reviews these to explore what type of reforestation should be used where this should be carried out and how much should be done For example are the traditional industrial forms of reforestation necessarily the best to use in all situations How can forest restoration be reconciled with the need for food security And are there spatial thresholds that must be exceeded to generate economic and environmental benefits The book also examines the policy and institutional settings needed to encourage large scale reforestation This includes a discussion of the place for incentives to encourage landholders to undertake particular types of reforestation and to reforest particular locations It also considers forms of governance that are likely to lead to an equitable sharing of the costs and benefits of forest restoration New Perspectives in Forest Science Helder Viana, Francisco Antonio García-Morote, 2018-04-26

The Forest Landscape Restoration Handbook Stewart Maginnis, Jennifer Rietbergen-McCracken, Alastair Sarre, 2012-05-04 Forest loss and degradation have caused a decline in the quality of ecosystem services around the world But fixing the problem takes more than just planting trees practitioners increasingly realize that a landscape approach is essential This handbook authored and edited by international authorities in the field of forestry is the first practical guide to using forest landscape restoration FLR to repair the damage done to forest lands by poor land management practice Using research backed by respected institutions such as ITTO and the World Conservation Union IUCN it explains how to increase the resilience of landscapes and the communities they support through FLR The main aim of FLR is not to re establish pristine forest even if this were possible rather the objective is to make landscapes more resilient and thereby keep future management options open It also aims to support communities as they strive to increase and sustain the benefits they derive from land management This book explains the concept of FLR and guides the reader through the steps that must be taken to put it into practice It is an indispensable aid for practitioners in all aspects of forestry and natural resource management

Restoration of Tropical Forest Ecosystems Helmut Lieth, M. Lohmann, 1914 The destruction of the tropical forests continues rapidly We all know that this has global ecological and economic consequences The problem is of such magnitude that it can only be compared to warfare The destruction of tropical forests is both detrimental to the global ecology as well as posing a serious threat to the people living in these areas Furthermore the overutilization of such a valuable resource poses a serious threat to the next generations Besides the problem generated for the people in these regions and for the earth in general there is a moral obligation to preserve the vast biological diversity in the tropical forests We have a commitment to all species on earth as well as man and therefore need to preserve as many as possible if not all This book discusses the problem from different angles from forestry ecology and nature conservation The two main problem areas are first the wise utilization of that portion of the forest which will be used especially the introduction of planned forestry in such areas and second the development of a good plan for nature conservation in the tropics

Forest Restoration in Landscapes Stephanie Mansourian, Daniel Vallauri, 2006-02-23 Is it a sign of the times that last year the Nobel committee chose to award the Nobel Peace prize to Wangari Maathai for having planted 30 million trees We believe so We think that while in the 20th century conservation made significant progress on setting up a global protected area network the 21st century will be a time of forest restoration The fact that Wangari Maathai is the first African woman to receive such an honourable distinction is in itself a major accomplishment. What is even more remarkable is that for the first time this highly esteemed prize which has long been associated with political feats was given for an environmental achievement. And not just any environmental achievement but forest restoration. It is a comfort to see that it is not just us at WWF, the global conservation organisation who believe forest restoration to be of global significance but that the Nobel committee is in agreement.

Forest Landscape Restoration Stephanie Mansourian, John Parrotta, 2018-09-03

Forest landscape restoration (FLR) is a planned process that aims to regain ecological integrity and enhance human wellbeing in deforested or degraded landscapes. The aim of this book is to explore options to better integrate the diverse dimensions: spatial, disciplinary, sectoral and scientific of implementing FLR. It demonstrates the value of an integrated and interdisciplinary approach to help implement FLR, focusing specifically on four issues: understanding the drivers of forest loss and degradation in the context of interdisciplinary responses for FLR; learning from related integrated approaches; governance issues related to FLR as an integrated process; and the management, creation and use of different sources of knowledge in FLR implementation. The emphasis is on recognising the need to take human and institutional factors into consideration as well as the more obvious biophysical factors. A key aim is to advance and accelerate the practice of FLR given its importance particularly in a world facing increasing environmental challenges, notably from climate change. The first section of the book presents the issue from an analytical and problem-orientated viewpoint while later sections focus on solutions. It will interest researchers and professionals in forestry, ecology, geography, environmental governance and landscape studies.
