Case Studies in Neurological Rehabilitation Tarek A-Z. K. Gaber, 2008-03-27 Rehabilitation medicine is one of the fastest growing specialties in medicine. The largest sub set of this field is neurological rehabilitation. This timely book presented as a series of case studies describes the wide range of clinical scenarios encountered by the rehabilitation medicine team and advises on management issues and options. Areas covered include ethical, medico-legal and social factors touching on issues such as service organisation and patient reintegration. The book concludes with a set of multiple choice questions to test understanding and as the basis for preparation for professional examinations. This will be essential reading for all trainees in rehabilitation medicine specialists from fields such as neurology where an understanding of the principles is important and professionals from supportive allied health disciplines including physiotherapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy and nursing.

Neurologic Interventions for Physical Therapy Suzanne C. Martin, Mary Kessler, 2007-01-01 Master the role of the physical therapist or physical therapist assistant in neurologic rehabilitation. Neurologic Interventions for Physical Therapy 3rd Edition helps you develop skills in the treatment interventions needed to improve the function of patients with neurologic deficits. It provides a solid foundation in neuroanatomy, motor control and motor development and offers clear how-to guidelines to rehabilitation procedures. Case studies help you follow best practices for the treatment of children and adults with neuromuscular impairments caused by events such as spinal cord injuries, cerebral palsy and traumatic brain injuries.
