Relationality And The Concept Of God:

Relationality and the Concept of God Henry Jansen, 1995 Classical theism the dominant tradition in Christian theology has stressed the metaphysical concept of God i e God s ontological transcendence and independence from the world In this century however this concept of God has increasingly met with criticism On the basis of the Bible and new philosophical considerations it is argued that a relational concept of God better answers the fundamental concerns of the Christian faith In this book the author investigates the questions of whether one can conceive of God apart from the metaphysical attributes and whether reflection on the biblical depiction of God leads necessarily to a relational concept of God The author explores the questions by examining the relational concepts of God found in two contemporary German theologians J rgen Moltmann and Wolfhart Pannenberg and uses the divine attribute of immutability as a focus for the discussion He argues that the relational concept of God presupposes another metaphysical conception of God which raises problems as serious as those in classical theism and that the Bible itself because of its nature as a narrative text is ambiguous in many respects as far as God is concerned A truly Christian doctrine of God must take both the metaphysical and relational aspects of God into account

Some may think it's downright blasphemous. Can creatures actually partner with God? This book answers that question in the affirmative. The responses vary and the proposals provoke new insights. Along the way, the ideas break new ground. It turns out partnering with God has various meanings and dimensions. The seventy-seven contributors explore this rich diversity in accessible language, deep insight, and multiple stories. Their explorations inspire, elucidate, and motivate. What they're saying: This helpful book provides both important concepts and lived experience that invite us to consider how what we think about God affects how we live in the world.

God and World in the Old Testament Prof. Terence E. Fretheim, 2010-08-01. Fretheim presents here the Old Testament view of the Creator God, the created world, and our role in creation. Beginning with The Beginning, he demonstrates that creation is open-ended and connected. Then, from every part of the Old Testament, Fretheim explores the fullness and richness of Israel's thought regarding creation, from the dynamic created order to human sin, from judgment and environmental devastation to salvation, redemption, and a new creation.

Contemplating God with the Great Tradition Craig A. Carter, 2021-04-20. Southwestern Journal of Theology 2021 Book of the Year Award, Theological Studies 2021 Book Award, The Gospel Coalition Honorable Mention, Academic Theology. Following his well-received Interpreting Scripture with the Great Tradition, Craig Carter presents the biblical and theological foundations of trinitarian classical theism. Carter, a leading Christian theologian known for his provocative defenses of classical approaches to doctrine, critiques the recent trend toward modifying or rejecting classical theism in favor of modern relational understandings of God. The book includes a short history of trinitarian theology from its patristic origins to the modern period, and a concluding appendix provides a brief summary of classical trinitarian theology. Foreword by Carl R. Trueman.

The Social God and the Relational Self Stanley J. Grenz, 2007-02-05. In this volume, Stanley Grenz creatively extends the insights of contemporary Trinitarian thought to theological anthropology. The Social God and the Relational Self is an example of theological construction as an ongoing conversation involving biblical texts, the theological heritage of the Christian tradition, and the contemporary historical social context. Grenz develops a communal understanding of the imago dei in the face of the demise of the centered self. He delineates the biblical theological foundation for a new social conception of the divine image and reformulates an understanding of the self in a postmodern context, a context characterized by the loss of the self coupled with the quest for relationality in community. Grenz concludes by identifying the basis of the Trinitarian theological foundation for Christian anthropology and opens the door for the examination of other anthropological questions.
