Relationships And Development:

Relationships in Development Stephen Seligman, 2018 First published in 2013 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company Development and Vulnerability in Close Relationships Gil G. Noam, Kurt W. Fischer, 2013-06-17 How do people develop in their important relationships How do two people come together to form a new close relationship How do relationships affect or determine who we are and who we become These questions should be central to the study of mind and development but most researchers neglect relationships and focus instead on analyses of individuals as if people were basically alone experiencing occasional fleeting moments with other people Research based on this individualist assumption has dominated the behavioral and clinical sciences but there are other voices and they are growing In this book many of the scholars who are moving relationships and attachments back to the center of human development outline their central concepts findings and perspectives People are fundamentally social and relationships are part of the fabric of being human forming an essential foundation that molds each person's mind and action A mind does not reside in one person but in relationships and communities composed of many people's interconnected minds which mutually support and define each other From the start and throughout life each person develops strengths and vulnerabilities in important relationships in communities and cultures Those relationships are so central to each person's activity and experience that without them no scientific explanation can even begin to analyze mind and action There is no mind without other people There is no psychological vulnerability that does not involve others The contributors to this book aim to establish a firm foundation for the role of relationships in human activity and health and to promote strong research by bringing together in one place most of the best research and theory on development and relationships Their goal is to stimulate a more radical inclusion of relationships in mind an ecological focus on the ways that relationships constitute action feeling and thought Social Development Marion K. From Neurons to Neighborhoods National Research Council, Institute of Medicine, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Committee on Integrating the Science of Early Childhood Development, 2000-11-13 How we raise young children is one of today's most highly personalized and sharply politicized issues in part because each of us can claim some level of expertise The debate has intensified as discoveries about our development in the womb and in the first months and years have reached the popular media How can we use our burgeoning knowledge to assure the well being of all young children for their own sake as well as for the sake of our nation Drawing from new findings this book presents important conclusions about nature versus nurture the impact of being born into a working family the effect of politics on programs for children the costs and benefits of intervention and other issues The committee issues a series of challenges to decision makers regarding the quality of child care issues of racial and ethnic diversity the integration of children's cognitive and emotional development and more Authoritative yet accessible From Neurons to Neighborhoods presents the evidence about brain wiring and how kids learn to speak think and regulate their behavior It examines the effect of the climate family child care community within which the child grows Understanding Research in Personal Relationships William Dragon, Steve Duck, 2005-05-01 Understanding Research in Personal Relationships is a comprehensive introduction to the key readings on human and close relationships Organized into twelve thematic chapters with editorial commentary throughout the editors offer a critical reading of the major research articles in the field of relationship studies published in the last few years Scholarly papers two per chapter are presented in an abridged form and critiqued in a carefully structured way that instructs students on the way to read research and to critically evaluate research in this field The book therefore has a thoroughly didactic focus as the student is given historical theoretical and methodological contexts to each article as well as an explanation of key terms and ideas The Promise of Adolescence National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Committee on the Neurobiological and Socio-behavioral Science of Adolescent Development and Its Applications, 2019-07-26 Adolescence beginning with the onset of puberty and ending in the mid 20s is a critical period of development during which key areas of the brain mature and develop These changes in brain structure function and connectivity mark adolescence as a period of opportunity to discover new vistas to form relationships with peers and adults and to explore one's developing identity It is also a period of resilience that can ameliorate childhood setbacks and set the stage for a thriving trajectory over the life course Because adolescents comprise nearly one fourth of the entire U S population the nation needs policies and practices that will better leverage these developmental opportunities to harness the promise of adolescence rather than focusing myopically on containing its risks This report examines the neurobiological and socio behavioral science of adolescent development and outlines how this knowledge can be applied both to promote adolescent well being resilience and development and to rectify structural barriers and inequalities in opportunity enabling all adolescents to flourish

Inclusive Aid Leslie Christine Groves, Rachel Barbara Hinton, 2013 Rapid and profound changes are taking place in international development The past two decades have promoted the ideals of participation and partnership yet key decisions affecting people's lives continue to be made without sufficient attention to the socio political realities of the countries in which they live Embedded working traditions vested interests and institutional inertia mean that old habits and cultures persist among the development community Planning continues as though it were free of unpredictable interactions among stakeholders This book is about the need to recognise the complex non linear nature of development assistance and how bureaucratic procedures and power relations hinder poverty reduction in the new aid environment The book begins with a conceptual and historical analysis of aid exposing the challenges and opportunities facing aid professionals today It argues for greater attention to accountability and the adoption of rights based approaches In section two practitioners policy makers and researchers discuss the realities of power and relationships from their experiences across sixteen countries Their accounts from government donors and civil society expose the highly politicised and dynamic aid environment in which they work Section three explores ways forward for aid agencies challenging existing political institutional and personal ways of working Authors describe procedural innovations as strategic ways to leverage change Breaking the barriers to ensure more inclusive aid will require visionary leadership and a courageous commitment to change Crucially the authors show how translating rhetoric into practice relies on changing the attitudes and behaviours of individual actors Only then is the ambitious agenda of the Millennium Development Goals likely to be met The result is an indispensable contribution to the understanding of how development assistance and poverty reduction can be most effectively delivered by the professionals and agencies involved
