Stand-up Comedy in Theory, or, Abjection in America John Limon, 2000-06-23 Stand Up Comedy in Theory or Abjection in America is the first study of stand up comedy as a form of art John Limon appreciates and analyzes the specific practice of stand up itself moving beyond theories of the joke of the comic and of comedy in general to read stand up through the lens of literary and cultural theory Limon argues that stand up is an artform best defined by its fascination with the abject Julia Kristeva's term for those aspects of oneself that are obnoxious to one's sense of identity but that are nevertheless like blood feces or urine impossible to jettison once and for all All of a comedian's life Limon asserts is abject in this sense Limon begins with stand up comics in the 1950s and 1960s Lenny Bruce Carl Reiner Mel Brooks Mike Nichols Elaine May when the norm of the profession was the Jewish male heterosexual comedian He then moves toward the present with analyses of David Letterman Richard Pryor Ellen DeGeneres and Paula Poundstone Limon incorporates feminist race and queer theories to argue that the comedification of America stand up comedy's escape from its narrow origins involves the repossession by black female queer and Protestant comedians of what was black female queer yet suburbanizing in Jewish male heterosexual comedy Limon's formal definition of stand up as abject art thus hinges on his claim that the great American comedians of the 1950s and 1960s located their comedy at the place which would have been conceived in 1960 as a location between New York City or Chicago and their suburbs where body is thrown off for the mind and materiality is thrown off for abstraction at the place that is where American abjection has always found its home
