Awareness of the Heart Dennis Maglinte, 2011-05-24 So often in many people's lives there is an awakening. For some it comes out of nowhere and for others it seems as though it has always been. Seemingly from darkness a light turns on and all that was once confusing becomes clear and all that was once hidden is revealed. Some call this enlightenment. Some call this a revelation. Some call this peace. I call it an awareness of the heart. The following passages were written between late 2002 until 2010. Inspired by those around me including loved ones, family, friends and strangers and by the happenings of the world, we share my heart was poured onto paper. Though these words were written by my hand and sometimes spoken by my tongue, there is nothing unique about them for the stirring in me is also in you. So whether you choose to read the following passages in order, read it backwards or randomly allow yourself to pick a page, don't follow me. Instead, take a journey into your own heart and see where it takes you. Throughout these pages you will find references to God, Allah, Great Spirit, The Divine, Elohim, Yahweh, Jehovah. He who has no name and a myriad of other beliefs. Though our words and our thoughts may differ, today allow yourself to read with an open mind, an open heart and an open spirit. Let your heart inspire you. Let God work through you by being you.

A New Beginning Anna Aguilar, 2009-12 I have found that writing was my therapy to ease the pain or confusion or even joy that I couldn't express to others. I closed myself to others about my feelings for a very long time so writing was my escape to avoid being judged. The paper never judged me so I vented as much as I could. I found my joy in writing in middle school but I decided to document my poems around my freshman year of high school. This book is of about ten years of my personal feelings, experiences or just inspiration. For the first time I'm allowing people to come into my personal world exposing myself in a way I've never thought I ever would.

Night of a Thousand Blossoms Frank X. Gaspar, 2019-10-01 In these poems the poet restlessly inhabits the night, finding it terrifying and beautiful, searching for meaning in the yard, the neighborhood, the heavens and every wise book he owns. These urban pastoral meditations employ ritual and repetition to create a kind of mantra seeking surrender to that state of meditation leading to enlightenment yet arguing with the idea of surrendering any attachments at all to this world we've been given to learn and love. A city garden cohabitated by ancient Romans and tattooed kids, automobiles and hollyhock, maul-raiding cats and the Buddha. I should be satisfied with the household gods he mourns but is satisfied with nothing, determined to fit the whole world into his poems lest the one essential thing slip by. From The One God is Mysterious. The king and his queen are feasting. They recline sumptuously on long divans and are attended by naked servants. They can have anything they want. This much is clear and I believe they have been having sex with one another and with the servants. Why wouldn't they? Who among the servants would not be honored to help? And it's Babylon after all and doesn't Babylon exist in your memory? Isn't Babylon the clear rumbling of your heart at ease with its every craving, not the way it is now fenced off with spiked wire and old pipes with signs telling the pedestrians to beware the litter, the old cans rusting. No, this is my own memory of excess and extravagance of abandonment to the weight of everything that pulls me down to ruin those same ticks and voices that lift me up and fill me.

with breath Frank Gaspar's poems are agile and forceful their narratives clear and absorbing In them he is speaking to the reader but also to himself or perhaps to some hazy divinity or to the blue sky I felt in his voice no attempt to persuade me of anything I felt only the abiding imperative to get it right Which is of course what real writing is all about Mary Oliver
