

Electromechanical Facilities

The large rooms in the building were allowed the central section of the ceiling along the function without artificial light for the greater part of the day. In addition, the lighting system has been fitted with thermal switches which help conserve energy. An important criteria in the selection of many of the fittings has been whether they save energy.

Special attention should be given to the perfect integration of the installations in the architectural concept.

Special zones were identified for housing piping, tubes and wiring for instance, in the round chamber the location of the ventilation grids emphasises the main form of the roof in spring.
