

the basin by large rivers draining the emerging marginal mountains. By Pliocene times the lake was filled with an extremely thick lacustrine sedimentary sequence and fluvial sedimentation occurred (BÉRCZI & PHILLIPS, 1985; JUHÁSZ, 1991, 1994). Basin inversion during the Quaternary resulted in significant uplift of the marginal areas and local subsidence of the basin centre (ROYDEN & HORVÁTH, 1988; NAGYMAROSY & MÜLLER, 1988; HORVÁTH & CLOETINGH, 1996). The deepest parts of the basin, however, are still subsiding, although the depocentres migrated slightly after the compressional phase. The studied Körös Basin is one of these continuously subsiding areas where fluvial sedimentation occurred in an interior basin distant from the sea, and sediment thickness reached 400–500 m in the study area (Fig. 2).

3. METHODOLOGY AND DATASETS

The work has been carried out by subsurface facies analysis, correlating large-scale architectural components (sensu MIALL, 1996) and tracing unconformity bounded stratigraphic units on a basinal scale, using mostly wireline-log datasets. The terminology of the paper refers to MIALL (1996). The sequence stratigraphic terminology is discussed in detail in Section 6.

Hundreds of wells have been drilled in the area, and the best available lithological data and logs were provided by the water utility company. Most wells do not have cores but they generally SP, resistivity logs. For this reason resistivity logs were used for correlation. The correlation was based on lithological and resistivity logs. On seismic sections the correlation was based on the Quaternary.

Some 65 water wells were drilled in the study area. The profiles were checked and the distance between them was 15 km. The results were taken into consideration for correlation. The shapes and stratigraphic units were identified by lithological and resistivity logs. The facies analysis was carried out on a regional scale (lithological and resistivity logs). The interpretation of the logs was based on the lithological and resistivity logs. The overall architecture of the basin can be identified by the large-scale architectural units. However, significant details remain to be identified. The main problems are that (1) in the study area the processes can be identified and (2) similar vertical facies can be identified in different autogen-

Reconstructing Quaternary Environments J.J. Lowe, M.J.C. Walker, 2014-07-10 Examines the various forms of evidence used to establish the history and scale of environmental changes during the Quaternary. The evidence is extremely diverse ranging from landforms and sediments to fossil assemblages and isotope ratios bringing the book fully up to date since its last publication. The Pleistocene Boundary and the Beginning of the Quaternary John A. Van Couvering, 2004-12-16 This book documents the agreed geological reference point for the Pleistocene boundary and its worldwide correlation. Regional Geology and Tectonics Domenico Chiarella, Nicola Scarselli, Jürgen Adam, 2024-04-16 Regional Geology and Tectonics Volume 2 Phanerozoic Rift Systems and Sedimentary Basins Second Edition is the second volume in a three volume series covering Phanerozoic regional geology and tectonics. Experience in analyzing and assessing rifts locations where the Earth's outer shell and crust have been stretched over time by seismic activity is critical for exploration geologists in identifying Earth's most lucrative hydrocarbon locations in which extraction is both efficient and safe. Vast compilations of related industry data present regional seismic lines and cross sections and summaries of analogue and theoretical models are provided as an essential backdrop to the structure and stratigraphy of various geological settings. The new edition of Regional Geology and Tectonics Volume 2 Phanerozoic Rift Systems and Sedimentary Basins features updated summaries of analogue and theoretical models. New to this edition are chapters on deepwater foldbelts and lithospheric extension as well as new case studies on volcanic and passive margin basins. Provides a practical reference for petroleum geologists that discusses the importance of rift systems and the structural evolution of the Earth. Includes analyses of active rifts in East Africa, China, Siberia, the Gulf of Suez, and the Russian Arctic that provide immediately implementable petroleum exploration applications in regions heavily targeted by oil and gas companies. Presents overviews of sequence stratigraphy in rifts and structural controls on clastic and carbonate sedimentation that are critical to the exact mapping of the most lucrative hydrocarbon locations by exploration geologists. Quaternary Paleoclimate W. C. Mahaney, 1981 22 papers given at the fourth conference on Quaternary Research, May 18-20, 1979, which discuss methods of reconstructing paleoclimate. The Mediterranean Basins Bernard Durand, 1999 The coexistence in space and time of growing mountain belts and actively extending basins poses a number of yet unsolved questions in terms of mechanics. This problem is particularly crucial in the Mediterranean regions where all Cenozoic basins opened in the internal zones of mountain belts. This volume brings together contributions from geologists and geophysicists in the quest to solve the complex dynamic problem posed by the Mediterranean region. It presents a wealth of new data on various topics centred on the Mediterranean region from the deep mantle structure to the detailed geometry of sedimentary basins. BOOK JACKET Title Summary field
