Lynn Wingard,Chris Schneider,Gregory P. Dietl ,Damien Fordham, Policy makers and resource managers must make decisions that affect the resilience and sustainability of natural resources including biodiversity and ecosystem services However these decisions are often based on evidence or theory derived from highly altered systems and over short time periods of low magnitude environmental and climatic change Because natural systems change and evolve across multiple timescales from instantaneous to millennial long term understanding of how past life has responded to perturbations can inform resource managers By using these natural laboratories of the past conservation paleobiology and paleoecology provide the framework necessary to anticipate and plan for future changes The goal of this Research Topic is to heighten awareness among conservation and restoration practitioners to the value and applications of long term perspectives provided by conservation paleobiology and paleoecology Most conservation studies focus on systems already impacted by anthropogenic change these studies would benefit from paleontological data through expanded temporal scales identification of baselines and an understanding of how organisms have responded to past changes However resource management decisions rarely include input from paleontologists and paleoecological research is rarely incorporated into conservation decision making We seek to bridge this research implementation gap by highlighting the application of paleoecological data to issues such as biodiversity dynamics extinction risks and resilience to perturbations among other topics We hope to foster new cross disciplinary synergies by encouraging conservation scientists and managers to collaborate with paleontologists to improve conservation decision making and by increasing awareness among paleontologists to the needs of the resource management community This Research Topic will provide a forum for both the paleontological and resource management communities to exchange ideas that will enhance restoration and conservation decision making We invite papers on conceptual advances reviews of specific topics to guide efforts in research or practice case studies of successful applications articles describing datasets with applied value and perspective papers summarizing a body of paleontological research with relevance to the resource management community Topics can include but are not limited to Responses of species communities and ecosystems to perturbations Strategies to achieve the direct integration of paleobiology and paleoecology into on ground resource management Identifying baselines and reference conditions Increasing the robustness of forecasting models through the

Adaptive Value of Languages: Non-linguistic Causes of Language Diversity, volume II Antonio

Benítez-Burraco, Steven Moran, 2024-03-18 This Research Topic is the second volume of The Adaptive Value of Languages Non Linguistic Causes of Language Diversity Please see the first volume here The goal of this Research Topic is to shed light on the non linguistic causes of language diversity and specifically to explore the possibility that some aspects of the structure of languages may result from an adaptation to the natural and or human made environment Traditionally language diversity has been claimed to result from random internally motivated changes in language structure Ongoing research suggests instead that different factors that are external to language can promote language change and ultimately account for aspects of language diversity Accordingly linguistic complexity has been found to correlate with features of the social environment such as the absence of cross cultural exchanges or the number of native speakers Likewise language structure could be influenced by the physical environment as the effect of dry climates on tone seemingly shows Finally core properties of human languages like duality of patterning have been argued to result from iterative learning and cultural evolution as research in village sign languages illustrates On the whole this means that some aspects of languages could be an adaptation to ecological social or even technological niches Eventually certain gene alleles provided that they bias language acquisition or processing may affect language change through iterated cultural transmission and ultimately to language structure
