Quest Ce Que La Litterature:

"What is Literature?" and Other Essays Jean-Paul Sartre, 1988 What is Literature challenges anyone who writes as if literature could be extricated from history or society But Sartre does more than indict He offers a definitive statement about the phenomenology of reading and he goes on to provide a dashing example of how to write a history of literature that takes ideology and institutions into account

The World Republic of Letters Pascale Casanova, 2004 The world of letters has always seemed a matter more of metaphor than of global reality In this book Pascale Casanova shows us the state of world literature behind the stylistic refinements a world of letters relatively independent from economic and political realms and in which language systems aesthetic orders and genres struggle for dominance Rejecting facile talk of globalization with its suggestion of a happy literary melting pot Casanova exposes an emerging regime of inequality in the world of letters where minor languages and literatures are subject to the invisible but implacable violence of their dominant counterparts Inspired by the writings of Fernand Braudel and Pierre Bourdieu this ambitious book develops the first systematic model for understanding the production circulation and valuing of literature worldwide Casanova proposes a baseline from which we might measure the newness and modernity of the world of letters the literary equivalent of the meridian at Greenwich She argues for the importance of literary capital and its role in giving value and legitimacy to nations in their incessant struggle for international power Within her overarching theory Casanova locates three main periods in the genesis of world literature Latin French and German and closely examines three towering figures in the world republic of letters Kafka Joyce and Faulkner Her work provides a rich and surprising view of the political struggles of our modern world one framed by sites of publication circulation translation and efforts at literary annexation

The Labour of Literature in Britain and France, 1830-1910 Marcus Waithe, Claire White, 2018-04-20 This volume examines the anxieties that caused many nineteenth century writers to insist on literature as a laboured and labouring enterprise Following Isaac D Israeli s gloss on Jean de La Bruy re it asks in particular whether writing should be called working Whereas previous studies have focused on national literatures in isolation this volume demonstrates the two way traffic between British and French conceptions of literary labour It questions assumed areas of affinity and difference beginning with the labour politics of the early nineteenth century and their common root in the French Revolution It also scrutinises the received view of France as a source of a leisure ethic and of British writers as either rejecting or self consciously mimicking French models Individual essays consider examples of how different writers approached their work while also evoking a broader notion of work ethics understood as a humane practice whereby values benefits and responsibilities are weighed up
